

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. THE REPRINTS OF NEW BRUNSWICK.

By J. MURRAY BARTELS.

Up to about four years ago very little was known about the reprints of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. Single sets of each had been sold at an auction sale in New York, realizing something like $25 each, but further details have never been published. In Gibbons' catalogue we find the following note after the first issue of New Brunswick: "Reprints of all values were made in 1890 on thin, hard, white paper; the 3d is bright orange, the 6d and 1s violet-black." The story of the find of these New Brunswick reprints has never been told in print and will undoubtedly be of interest to our readers.

At the time the writer was living in a bachelor's hotel in Boston. Being engaged in some stamp work one evening, several of the young men happened to notice it and had something to say about stamps. One young Canadian named Blair, after speaking of his collection, stated that somewhere at home he had a lot of New Brunswick reprints "which, of course, had little or no value." At first it was apparent that he referred to some rather common remainders of the cent values, but he was able to give a good description of the lot, stating that there were a number of sheets and he could undoubtedly obtain them. It was very difficult to convince him that they were of any value, and when a round sum was offered for the lot unseen, provided they were as described, he was very much surprised, and immediately wrote to his brother to forward the stamps. As he happened to know the address of another stamp dealing concern, he communicated with them in the meantime, stating that he had some New Brunswick reprints and asking what they were worth. This firm also believed that he referred to the common remainders of the later issue, and replied that they were pretty well stocked with the same, but might buy more if the price was very low. A few days later the consignment arrived, and it was not many hours before we concluded the deal. The story of the find soon became known, and immediately others were deeply interested. Several offers were made to acquire the entire lot from the purchaser at more than double the original price, but all of these were declined. The letter, transmitting the reprints to the late A. G. Blair, at that time Minister of Railways and Canals at Ottawa, the father of our young friend, is published for the first time, and shows the exact quantity of sheets and specimens printed. It reads:

"Ottawa, 21st June, 1897.

Dear Mr. Blair:—Some years ago, when Mr. Haggard was Postmaster General, he authorized a limited reprint of obsolete New Brunswick postage stamps. Of course, these reprints were perfectly worthless, both for postage and commercial purposes. Very few of them were given out to stamp collectors and the bulk of them have up to the present, remained in our vaults. Similar reprints of Nova Scotia obsolete stamps were, some time ago, sent to Mr. —, and I think that the best thing that can be done with the New Brunswick reprints is to transfer them to you, which I now beg to do. Subjoined is a memorandum showing quantities and denominations of these reprints. Perhaps you will be good enough to let me have a receipt for them at your early convenience.

Yours faithfully,

(Signed) Wm. WHITE."

New Brunswick.

	Quantity
3 sheets (160 each sheet) 3d	480
2 broken sheets (148-140) 3d	288
3 sheets (160 each) 6d	480
2 broken sheets (150-140) 6d	290
2 sheets (160 each) 1s	320
3 broken sheets (146-140-110) 1s	396

Total, 2,254 stamps.

From the above it will be seen that the lot consisted originally of five sheets of each value containing one hundred and sixty specimens each, or in all eight hundred copies of each value. However, it must be stated that forty specimens consisting of four rows of ten of the 1s on each set were worthless, as they had been completely smudged with the violet black ink in which the 6d and 1s had been printed; evidently something had happened to that portion of the plate. It is furthermore quite evident from the above list that up to that time only the following quantities had ever been distributed:

A FEW NOTES ON CONFEDERATES.

By GEO. W. LINN.

Regarding "Communication" in latest WEEKLY about Confederates I have read several letters in old volumes of The American Stamp Mercury, Boston, 1867 (Trifet's publication), and give a few facts as stated in these letters. The first three stamps, Scott's Types I, II and III were lithographed by Hayes & Ludwig of Richmond, Va. The lithographic stones for these stamps were destroyed by fire in September, 1861, so one writer in the Mercury states.

Scott's type A4 and A10 were made from plates made by De La Rue & Co. of London. These are not engraved in the sense we understand an engraved stamp in these days. They were printed from electrotypes. I always wondered why Gibbons catalog listed the stamps of Type 4 as local impressions from lithographic transfers. If this is correct there must also be a local impression made direct from the plates as a fraction of a plate, consisting of 9 stamps, 3x3 is here in Columbus in the Relic Room of the State House and was, I believe, captured during the war. The original and first contract for Confederate stamps was placed with Hayes & Ludwig, lithographers of Richmond, Va.

Gibbons catalog refers to the late issues of the Confederacy, Gibbons type 5, 6, 7, 8 as printed by Archer and Daly. This is wrong. Archer and Daly succeeded Hayes & Ludwig as contractors for supplying the stamps, but the printing was done by Messrs. Keating & Ball; because Archer & Daly fell down on the job after engraving the plates and a contract was then made with Keating & Ball. Gibbons says three steel plate stamps were engraved by Mr. Archer and one by Mr. Halpin. Quoting from the Mercury: "Mr. Archer engraved the first steel plate postage stamp for the Department and a Mr. Halpin employed in his office (*presumably Archer's office.—LINN) engraved all of the others."

The greater portion of the above is copied from a letter signed by H. St. Geo. Offutt, who was First Asst. P. M. General of the Confederacy under Postmaster General Judge John H. Bryam of Texas, from beginning to end.

There was at one time, an attempt made to place a 10c stamp with Stonewall Jackson's picture on it, in the hands of collectors as a genuine stamp. This was supposed to have been made by De La Rue & Co. at same time as the 5c and 1c values were made.

COMMUNICATIONS.

(We do not hold ourselves responsible for the views expressed by our readers. Our columns are always open for communications of general interest.—Ed.)

TO THE EDITOR:
In the last issue you have quoted editorially what Mr. George A. Chandler of Milwaukee wrote to you in regard of using an ordinary two-cent stamp for postage due. It may be of interest to you to know that I have something in my collection which is just contrary to his finding. I have the original cover on which a two-cent postage due stamp has been used for regular postage instead of ordinary two-cent stamp. The stamp is in right position in upper right corner of the envelope, bears the ordinary cancellation and is in good condition. It came to my hands fresh from the mails, so there is no doubt of being not used as described. One is certainly puzzled how the sender of that letter ever got hold of such a stamp and how it went through without interference from the postoffice people.

Another philatelic curiosity—as it may be called—is the registered postcard from Russia bearing besides the registry stamp two other stamps, 4 and 10 kopeykas ones.

I have also noted what Mr. L. C. Hooper of Winnipeg has to say in regard to 1c King George stamp with inverted precancellation "Toronto-Ontario." Did he ever mention the 1c King George stamp precancelled "Winnipeg-Manitoba" which precancellation is, too, inverted? I have one nice specimen of this kind in my possession and friend of mine also has one copy of the same kind.

Very truly yours,
JOHN MOLEK, Chicago.

TO THE EDITOR:

Have you ever recorded a variety of the 1c, 1890-93, with a continuation of the right tail of the left figure one, upward nearly the length of the figure? If so could you give me an idea of the value in your paper?

[This variety or one similar to it has been mentioned. It has little if any market value.]

ATTRACTIVE STAMP AUCTION

JANUARY 10th AND 11th, IN PHILADELPHIA

Our sale upon the above dates is unusually attractive, the first session comprising nearly six hundred lots of British Colonials all unused. The second session includes a nice collection of United States stamps, general foreign and some excellent wholesale lots. The catalogues are out and should be in the hands of all collectors. If you have not received one, write for it.

The CHRISTMAS STAMP DRUMMER, just out, is free for the asking.

OUR ROLL OF HONOR.

The following subscribers have been on our list from the date of our first publication day, January 7th, 1891, to the present day:

C. B. Duffy, Columbus, O.
 W. C. Stone, Springfield, Mass.
 Henry McConnell, Walloon Lake, Mich.
 Chas. A. Townsend, Akron, O.
 J. C. Jay, Mt. Pleasant, Iowa.
 C. F. Richards, New York City.
 D. H. Eaton, Cincinnati, O.
 Joseph S. Davis, Los Angeles, Cal.
 E. L. Whitney, Washington, D. C.
 James A. Cook, Waterloo, Iowa.
 W. R. King, Grand Island, Neb.
 Fred Doughty, Saginaw, Mich.
 Edward W. Heusinger, San Antonio, Tex.
 George L. Toppan, Chicago, Ill.
 J. C. Piper, Elmo, Missouri.
 H. C. Kendall, Upham, North Dakota.

Mr. Piper writes: "I have been taking your paper ever since the beginning. I started with the issue of January 7th, 1891, Volume I, Number 1 and have a complete file. I have got a great deal of information of value from it and would not do without it at twice the price of the paper. I want to be on the list as it will do me good." Mr. Kendall says: "I began taking philatelic papers when Scott issued his journal in the early seventies and have since been a subscriber to nearly all of the larger and many of the smaller ones and those on hand will show to the amount of nearly a ton. I am only sixty-seven years old and so have lots of time yet to get more—'Maybe'." Mr. E. H. Russell, Wilbur, Oregon, has this to say: "I notice that you are printing a roll of honor of subscribers to the 'Grand Old WEEKLY', and am wondering if I can get on the list; but as I did not commence at the beginning, I am afraid not. My first copy is dated, August 26, 1892, Number 85, and have all complete except Nos. 1 to 84 and part of 1897-1898 when I lacked the $). I am like Bro. McConnell of Walloon Lake, Michigan (although not quite as old) and would miss the WEEKLY very much. Wishing you continued success and the compliments of the season." Mr. Walter Molatsch, Nanuet, New York, writes: "I began collecting stamps in 1894 and have been a subscriber to the WEEKLY since then. I shall remain a subscriber as long as I am in the stamp game."

KNICK-KNACKS.

Philately reigns in snow-time.

How do you like the new stamp album that Friend Wife gave you. Better than last year's cigars, eh?

"What, in your opinion, is the curse of philately?" writes an intense friend. "O. G." we have no hesitancy in saying.

A writer says that his stamps talk to him in a myriad of tongues. Not to be personal—but it is time that he got on the water-wagon.

One of the new stamp papers asks why some dealers think that collectors are to be hooked like fish. We do not know but we are willing to bite. Why?

"Take, for instance, the Sydney Views in your friend's collection," exclaims a learned philatelic scrivener. Somehow, our friend seems to watch us too closely when he shows his collection.

A gentleman in the back of the room rises to ask if the name of his correspondent in Hamburg, Otto Gumme, could not be anglicized into O. Gum. We cannot say until Ad Hesive, of whom we have spoken before, has been consulted.

Number five of the Busting Hand Organ, official hand organ of the society of the same name, addressed to Parnassus Penflip has been received. Even the best of them have their secret history. Horrors, little Ermentrude is playing with papah's razor.

The new machine to be used by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, the invention of Benjamin R. Stickney "will print, perforate, gum, dry, and either cut into sheets or coil in mile lengths the product of the press." What collector though wants his stamps in mile lengths.

Chicago bandits made the mistake of robbing a country post-office of parcel post stamps just before Christmas; and the possession of the stamps in question before the date of their issue is counted upon to send the culprits to the penitentiary. No one but philatelists should rob post-offices is the immoral of this tale.

EXHIBITION NEWS.

The new year opens with two substantial subscriptions. One hundred dollars from the American Philatelic Society and twenty-five dollars from Edwin A. Fleisher. There is room for a good many more to get in their subscriptions early. The plate glass to cover the stamps will cost over two thousand dollars. Arrangements have been made with the insurance company to insure the collections from the time they leave the owner's hands to the day they get back to him, all without any trouble for the collector. I am not saying anything about the beautiful Exhibition stamp, but write to the editor of

CHAPTER XXV.

90 Cents, Issue of 1869.

This week I take up the study of a stamp which has long been one which has claimed my unbounded admiration. Unfortunately it is a hard stamp to obtain in any condition, and this makes it difficult to give it the study it deserves. The 90 cents 1869 is, to my mind, the handsomest of the series; it bears a splendid likeness of the martyred Lincoln, and in other ways it has charms which no other stamp of this issue possesses.

Like most of this series of postage stamps the perforating is a nightmare, and the process of cancellation was overdone. Of the 47,490 delivered by the engravers, it seems to me that not more than the last two figures escaped to be what is termed perfect stamps. The balance are off center, in perforating; head out of center of the frame, and thousands show the visage almost obliterated by the ink dauber.

The stamp appeared about the latter part of May, in 1869, and then only to replace the 90 cents stamp of the previous issue as they were exhausted at the postoffices. Ten months later they were withdrawn and gave way to a 90 cents wholly in carmine, which, while it gave better satisfaction to the buying and using public, always suffered in comparison with the previous one, in the eyes of the student of philately.

The official colors are known as black and carmine, and black and rose carmine. There are intermediate shades of the carmine, however, and if one has a fine eye for color one can shade up at least ten stamps and not have two to look exactly alike. There is also a difference in the black, it appearing in a grayish black; this may have been caused through influence of the light, causing the color to fade somewhat. I am inclined to think that all were not printed in an identical shade of black, however.

Three sizes of grilles are known to exist, besides split grilles and double grilles. The sizes are:

Size.	Points.
9 1/2 x 9 1/2	13 x 12
9 x 9 1/2	12 x 12
9 x 9	12 x 11

The stamp also exists without grille, and comes in deep black and carmine only. As this is the exact shade of the reprint, the two are sometimes confounded, if one happens to have the stamp unused, which shows no grille. There is a difference in paper texture which distinguishes the two and experts have no trouble in determining which is which.

As was stated above, there were 47,490 stamps printed and delivered to the government by the engravers. From the scarcity of the stamp I feel certain that a considerable number of these were turned back to the postoffice department and destroyed.

The prints were made from plates numbered 22 and 22—both the portrait and the frame in all cases bearing the same imprint and plate number.

In common with the others of this series this stamp was reprinted in 1875 for the nation's first world's exposition. The engravers made 10,000 of them, but there was little demand for these reprints, so only 1,356 were sold and 8,644 were passed back to the government to be put away forever from public view, via the furnace door.

The reprints are printed in deep black and carmine, upon thin white paper, and some probably were gummed, although I will confess I have never seen enough of them to be certain on that point.

The originals are very scarce in unused condition, and are, I believe, underpriced in the catalogs. Pairs unused are rarities of considerable value, while blocks of four unused are practically unattainable, except where here and there a block exists in some collection.

Black is the ruling color of cancellation; occasionally one finds a blue circle or bar cancellation. Red is very scarce, while I have never seen but one green cancellation and one with year date. I have been privileged to see two or three cancelled "Paid" and another with an express-railway cancellation. This is as far as I have been able to study.

Proofs, both in cardboard and india paper should be made a part of the collection, if one wants to complete the handsomest set of stamps and proofs. The series can be had in sets, in both the card and paper proofs; one is practically as cheap as the other. The higher values are a bit scarcer as some are found taking the place of the stamps in collections where the collector feels that he is not able to possess the original stamps.

North Haven, Conn.—(North Haven—Conn.) in two lines, ordinary type capitals with serifs, between two horizontal rules, 1 mm. wide. Space containing inscription, 12 mm. wide. 1c, 1912.

Cleveland, Ohio.—Two lines (Cleveland—Ohio), horizontal inscription in sans-serif capitals, between two rules, 1 1/2 mm. apart, rules 1 mm. in thickness. 1c, 1912.

BALKAN WAR STAMPS.—We take the following from Ewen's Weekly:

It has by now become common that the misery of war enriches the stamp collector. At any rate they are bound to gain by the war in the Balkans. Until the new stamps appear Greece has issued provisionals for Lemnos, Imbros, Samothrace and Thasos—the islands restored by her fleet to the Athenian Empire after two thousand years. This provisional issue will be withdrawn at the conclusion of the war, so many philatelists will have to content themselves with the commemorative stamp at present being printed. The Westminster Gazette says: "The design for the new stamps is originally Greek, being an adaption of an idea furnished by the Director of the Numismatic Museum at Athens." The stamps issued by the Allies for the conquered provinces are to be all of the same type in design and decoration, the only difference being that the vignette in the middle of the stamp will be a picture of Sofia in the case of Bulgaria; Belgrade for Serbia; Cetinje for Montenegro; and of Athens for Greece. Above the four capital cities appears the same bright cloud with the fiery cross and inscription "In hoc signo vinces."

BARBADOS.—W. H. Regan writes the following very interesting letter to Ewen's Weekly with regard to this country; he also submits an old "Barbadoes" 1d coin:—

"Having read your notices concerning the new Barbados stamps, I thought a sight of the enclosed coin might interest you. It is a Barbados (spelt 'Barbadoes' on the coin) 1d of George III, 1792, and depicts the reigning monarch as Neptune seated in a marine car.

"Might I suggest that the lady in the marine car on the present stamps may be Queen Mary. That one does not recognise Her Majesty's features is little to go by, taking into consideration the difficulty we have had in perceiving the identity of King George V on some of the new stamps."

CANAL ZONE.—Frank E. Greene has shown us a new printing of the surcharge on the current 2c stamp. The spacing is slightly wider and the "C" of "Canal" is minus serif at the bottom. The stamp itself is also a new printing as the paper has a slight bluish tint. It was issued in the Zone Dec. 6 or earlier.

CEYLON.—A. C. Roessler sends us specimens of the new stamps as previously noted.

GILBERT AND ELLICE ISLANDS.—Ewen's Weekly quotes from the Bazaar as follows:

Our readers are aware of the high prices demanded for the 1/2d and 1d values of the first issue (1911) of Gilbert and Ellice Islands surcharged on Fiji. A correspondent has sent to Messrs. Whitfield King & Co. the following information:

"The great majority of the 1/2d and 1d surcharged Fijian stamps were used for postal purposes for inter-island postage. When the Post Office here first started the postal rates were 2d to Australia and other countries and 1d between islands, and it was only natural that the 1/2d and 1d were needed for the Group. . . . The total native population is, roughly, 26,000, of whom ninety per cent. over ten years of age are able to read and write, and the native mail probably exceeds that of any white country per population. There are twenty-eight populated islands in the Protectorate, and although there is a good service in each Group (Gilbert, Ellice, and Union) the actual connections between Ocean Islands and the Gilberts, the Gilberts and the Ellice, the Ellice and the Unions, is so bad that at times it has taken a letter over five months to travel from Ocean Island to the Unions."

The white population has been put at fewer than 150. We find these statements somewhat amusing. It is difficult to imagine how, if all these ninety per cent. of natives over ten years of age were bursting to write letters, they managed before 1911. Apparently from the foregoing they did without a post office altogether until that time. What do they write about? Be it remembered that there were 12,240 of the 1/2d stamps supplied, and 12,000 of the 1d, and that in a very few weeks after the start the Pandanus tree set was in use. And if they were so keen on letter-writing, what has become of the letters with the stamps attached?

With such long waits between islands it would seem that the greater part of the letter-writing in the "Provisional" period must have been between people in the same island—taking, of course, island by island. Collectors will observe that the total native population is 26,000. We have then to eliminate all under ten years of age—probably a good number—and then ninety per cent. of the remainder are possible letter-writers. And the people had to be educated to the use of stamps!

The difficulties and doubts about these two values seem to be increased rather than removed by the information in question; and assuming the facts to be as stated, they do not support the notion of bona fide postal uses to the extent that would appear on a first reading. But accepting all that, there is still to be answered the question: Where are all the used labels? Caution in purchasing at ruling prices seems more necessary than ever.

Hermann Focke writes: "In last week's number of the WEEKLY it was stated that the missing values of the new series of stamps for the Gilbert and Ellice Islands Protectorates with head of King George would be issued in January, but I can inform you that I possesses the finest stock of these stamps in existence, while it is being constantly increased and improved by the purchase of single rarities, and most of the well-known collections that come upon the market.

MY PURCHASES FOR 1912 INCLUDED

The general collection of the Rt. Honble., The Earl of Crawford, K. T.
A fine unused Colonial Collection—the property of a well-known London collector.

The collection of Cayman Islands, formed by Mr. A. Leon Adutt.

A magnificent collection of the Straits Settlements containing the pick of the market for many years, including most of the rarities out of the well-known Bagshaw collection.

British Honduras: A specialised collection of this popular Colony, including such rarities as the 2c, in black upon 1sh grey, and the 2c in red and black upon 1sh grey, etc., etc.

British Guiana: A very carefully made collection in which particular attention has been paid to condition, strong in the early issues, and pairs and blocks of the perforated stamps.

Fine specialised collections of Sarawak, British South Africa (including complete sheet of 1d on 4sh). [49-51]

The necessary essentials of reasonable prices and the finest condition are matters which have my most careful attention.

have had the values given below for about 2 weeks, my specimens bearing cancellation mark of Oct. 14, 1912, so that they must have been in use by that date. On the other hand the 1d, 2d, and 2½d are not out yet, my last remittance being still in the Pandanus type."

GREAT BRITAIN.—M. T. Perkins reports having received a letter prepaid with a 1d King George, first type and issue, dated London W. C. Dec. 9, '12. The stamp does not bear the faded red tint common with the first issue but is in the almost scarlet color of the re-issue. This stamp was bought in the post office at London on the above date.

The following is from the facile pen of Fred J. Melville:—

"One never can tell when an issue of stamps may develop into a series of interesting philatelic varieties, and many collectors have probably been neglecting to keep pace with the Georgian issue of the stamps of our own country in the mistaken idea that they will be able to get these whenever they want them. Our familiarity with the use of the stamps may breed negligence so far as the collecting of them is concerned, but collectors will pay for their neglect later on. Generally speaking, an issue of stamps for Great Britain, where the numbers printed run to millions, must remain common for many years to come. But there have been factors making for frequent and little appreciated changes in our stamps just lately, and some of the varieties thus brought about may be difficult to obtain later on.

"As instances of scarce varieties of our Georgian stamps already known, there is the ½d, with the error of perforation gauging 14, i.e., with the old perforation instead of the new one gauging 15 by 14. There is also the 1d lion stamp (second type) without watermark. Now the new watermark of the Royal cipher appears in two varieties. In the first type of the new watermark the devices were in alternating rows, but the watermark is now produced by a dandy roll, on which the devices appear in regular perpendicular rows. The difference may be indicated thus:

First Cipher Watermark.

New Cipher Watermark.

GR	GR	GR	GR
GR	GR	GR	GR
GR	GR	GR	GR

"Both watermarks are of the 'all-over' or 'multiple' kind, but hitherto the multiple watermarks used for the Colonial stamps have been arranged similarly to the first of the cipher watermarks. The paper made with the first cipher watermark was in hand in readiness for postage stamps at the time when the demand for insurance stamps became pressing, and before the specially watermarked insurance stamp paper was ready. So the Royal cipher postage stamp paper was used for some of the insurance stamps. Before the stock of the old postage paper (watermarked Crown) was exhausted the new arrangement of the cipher was decided upon and brought into use. But it comes as a surprise to most collectors to find that there has been an issue of the postage stamps on both styles of the cipher paper, and it shows how desirable it is for collectors to keep a close scrutiny over the Georgian stamp denominations at this period of many changes."

HONDURAS.—Dr. Roy F. DeSart reports having seen the 20c official, Scott's No. 183, with surcharge, "Official" in black instead of carmine.

HONG KONG.—John Jacobs has shown us the first of King George stamps. The design is the same as the previous issue except that the Swastika has disappeared from the lower corners. The value in figures is printed in square tablets in the place of the deposed ornaments, in colorless characters, the value in words is as before, except that the ends of the frame are cut off, leaving simply lines above and below. Mr. Jacobs has shown us the 10c value. The other information given below was taken from the Schweizer Briefmarken Zeitung, which says that the remaining Edwardian stamps will be destroyed as soon as the new stamps appear.

PANAMA.—Dr. Roy F. DeSart informs us that he has a copy of Scott's No. 183, with a small inverted "v" in place of the second "A".

SIAM.—A. C. Roessler sends us a specimen of the new stamps with portrait of the young King. The design which is entirely new is 19x25 mm., an upright rectangle. Four tablets are enclosed within a double-lined border. At the left is a tablet extending from top to bottom of stamp, 5 mm. wide, having fanciful figures and foliage ornaments. At the right a large tablet, 11x15 mm., has a finely-engraved portrait of King Wajirawudh. Below this is a narrow tablet having the name of the country in both and English. A larger tablet above the portrait has the value, also in two languages, the English being expressed "2-stg" in two lines. The new stamps were designed by M. Tamagno, and were printed in Leipzig, Germany.

Adhesive.

2s yellow brown.

ST. VINCENT.—The postmaster at Kingstown informs Hermann Focke that the new issue to supersede the present one on the first of January will consist of the values of ½d, 1d, 2d, 3d, 4d, 6d, 1sh, 2sh, 5sh and £1, but fails to give an idea as to the style of the stamps. The omission of the 2½d from the list given above is noticeable. Possibly it was a mistake.

COMING AUCTION SALES.

(For the benefit of our advertisers as well as subscribers we shall keep all sales posted and desire early receipt of catalogs that dates may be promptly entered.)

Jan. 8.—J. M. Bartels Co. will sell 300 lots of U. S. in locals and blocks. Also early Turkey.

Jan. 8.—B. L. Drew & Co. will sell 600 lots of U. S. and foreign stamps, the property chiefly of John S. Allen, of Boston.

Jan. 10-11.—Phila. Stamp Co. will sell stamps of Great Britain and colonies, all unused. Also lots of U. S. and other countries.

NEWS CLEANINGS

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from the Economist Stamp Co., Geo. W. Schaefer(3), Hugo Kuentler, (8).

—After his strenuous work in connection with the Stamp Exhibition Fred J. Melville is evidently off on a bit of a vacation. We are in receipt of a card of greetings from him bearing a postmark of the Somali Coast.

—The regular meeting of the New England Philatelic Association and the American Envelope Society Consolidated will be held Tuesday evening, Jan. 14th. This being the eighteenth anniversary, the same will be celebrated by a banquet at the "Hayward", 16 Hayward Place, Boston. Dinner will be served at 8 o'clock. Tickets $2.00 per plate. Kindly notify A. P. Brown, Chairman, 88 Carruth St., Dorchester Centre, Mass. saying you will be present. Annual reports will be read followed by the election of officers. An enjoyable time is anticipated.

—Dealers take notice! Ralph N. Nelson, Newark, N. J., sent check for $29.25 to the H. S. Powell Stamp Co. for a packet. The company delayed filling the order long enough to ascertain that the check was worthless. We take this opportunity for complimenting the firm for its care in handling the order.

—We are advised of the death of Chas. S. Cates, Pasadena, Cal. Mr. Cates has been interested in philately for the past twenty years. For eight years he has been an invalid.

—M. Ohlmann finds himself greatly delayed in filling orders for his 20th Century packet, and begs the indulgence of his patrons until he is able to catch up with his orders.

—The International Stamp Co., DeGraft, Ohio, publishes a daily bargain list. This is a unique idea and is evidently proving successful.

—E. C. Krohne, 256 Church St., N. Y. City, also reports C. E. Crandall, Belmont, N. Y. Other dealers interested should write Mr. Krohne so that concerted action may be taken.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box #31, Altadena, Calif.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

SPECIAL DELIVERY STAMPS.

In a recent article on special delivery stamps I was in error with regard to the date the United States "1902" design was resuscitated. Mr. F. W. Hodge writes as follows regarding the matter: "Permit me to invite attention to an error in your description of the U. S. Special Delivery stamps. You state that the reissue of the old design of 1902, after the retirement of the green special delivery label of 1908, can be easily identified by the paper bearing the new watermark. As a matter of fact this reissue was made in 1909, not 1910, and retained the double line watermark. It can be distinguished from the 1902 issue only by the date '1909,' engraved on the margin of the sheet. The paper with the new watermark was not used until the following year."

Another correspondent, Mr. J. Dreyer, writes as follows:—

"The Special Delivery stamp, series of 1902, at present in use was re-issued rather early in 1909—not 1910—for I bought some at Nampa, Idaho, along with Alaska Y. P. stamps in the summer of that year. I got one with the plate number 5240 attached. Plate number 5239 is a 10c denomination of the 1908-09 series; No. 5144, No. 5145, No. 5250 are Alaska Y. P. 2c plates, hence my conclusion. Besides the old plates, from which special delivery stamps, series 1902, were printed prior to the order of the Post Office Department to discontinue printing the Special Delivery stamps of that series, were cancelled upon receipt of that order and afterwards destroyed. When the P. O. Dept. ordered the printing of the green 'Merry Widow' stamp discontinued, they requested the Bureau to make new plates from the same roller that had been used in making the old plates of 1902. This was done and the Bureau issued 56,627 sheets of stamps from these new plates. Later, these new plates had engraved upon them the figures '09, following the serial number on the margin, to show that they were made in that year. The reissued 10c Special Delivery stamps were thus printed on paper with the double-line letters U. S. P. S. (old watermark), since no stamps were printed on the new paper before August 22nd, 1910. For the ordinary collector such stamps are not distinguishable from those printed before 1908 or during that year. The specialist will have to search for copies with plate numbers attached. The highest plate number I have seen is 5339."

It will, thus, be understood from the above that so far as the general collector is concerned it is impossible to distinguish the reissue from the original 1902 stamps until after the single-line watermark came into use. Specialists may claim to differentiate the two by shades but except in the case of those stamps having the marginal plate numbers attached it is impossible to say with certainty that any particular stamps belong to the reissues.

SANITARY FAIR STAMPS.

A correspondent asks for information regarding the labels inscribed "Great Central Fair Postage" and "U. S. Sanitary Commission." These labels are not postage stamps and though cancelled copies are known they were so obliterated through carelessness or by an obliging postal clerk. Mr. C. E. Severn has written an interesting history of these and similar labels in the Collectors' Journal from which we gather that the labels bearing the inscriptions quoted above were issued in 1864 in connection with the Great Central Fair held at Philadelphia in that year. Their status and use is clearly shown in the following letter written from Washington on Dec. 10th, 1888, by the then Third Assistant Postmaster General:—

"The stamp of the Sanitary Commission submitted with your letter of the 30th ult., is herewith returned. This stamp, with the other forms to which you allude, was issued by the United States Sanitary Commission during the late war (in 1863 or 1864), for use in a great fair held for the benefit of the Commission. I think, in the city of Philadelphia. The stamps were not postage stamps, were never used for the purpose of having matter transmitted from one place to another, and had no recognition whatever from the Government."

The set consisted of three values—10c, 20c and 30c—and they were beautifully printed by the line-engraved process by the American Bank Note Company. The Company donated the stamps to the Fair management but evidently only a small proportion of the visitors were charitably inclined for less than 2,000 of each value were sold. These labels have, of course, no philatelic value at all but are simply curiosities or mementoes of the Fair of 1864.

REPRINTS.

Mr. S. M. Reed writes as follows:—"Please tell me whether there is any way to restore the color of oxidized U. S. Revenues. (2) If a certain stamp is reprinted is the public informed or is the collector left a prey to unscrupulous dealers? (3) If reprints are made from the original plates why should there be any difference between them and the originals except in shades?"

With regard to the first query immersion in peroxide of hydrogen may help restore the color a little.

Reprints fall into two classes—Government reprints and private reprints. The former are made by a government and the latter by private individuals into whose hands the plates have fallen. We have dealt with the matter fairly fully in these columns already and though the fact that a stamp has been reprinted is not usually advertised broadcast it does not necessarily follow that the reprints are going to be sold to innocent collectors as the genuine article. The fact that reprints exist is generally discovered by a specialist or dealer (not one of the "unscrupulous" variety of course!) who has probably been victimised. The leading catalogues generally refer to those stamps which have been reprinted and if the distinguishing points are slight the collector had best leave such varieties alone or purchase only from a responsible dealer. The collector who gets "had" with a reprint is generally one who buys "bargains" from people of doubtful honesty or, more often, colossal philatelic ignorance. Reprints must, of course, be printed from the original plates but they may differ from the genuine stamps in a variety of ways—paper, color, perforation or all three may be different.

THE PASSION FOR PHILATELY.

(As seen by the London Sketch.)

There is more behind a stamp than the gum.

A look round the Philatelic Exhibition at the Horticultural Hall convinced the Daily Sketch that stamp collectors are a race unto themselves. It is impossible to imagine anybody deliberately cultivating the stamp collecting hobby. It comes into the world with you like a birth-mark, and remains with you to the grave. The ordinary man loves his country; the philatelist loves other countries' stamps.

The craze for collecting other people's old envelopes with the magic little oblong that franks them through the world's post offices begins at a tender age, and the real stamp collector would be happier in the cradle with the envelope that enclosed the demand for the water-rate than with the most elaborate rattle designed by man.

The Seven Ages of Stamp Fever.

The passion burns fiercely through the seven ages. A boy stamp collector will cheerfully part with his prize lop-eared rabbit and the book his mother gave him to acquire another boy's stamps.

As he grows older he may forget the winsome face of his childish sweetheart, but he will always remember the expressionless faces of the Kings and Queens of his early collections.

If he grows rich in his old age he will spend his time and money in obtaining the stamps of others, and he will go to the grave tormented by the thought that he has not secured them all. If the problem of the baby or Raphael's Madonna were to confront the philatelist in the burning house he would forget both and save his stamp collection.

Philately's Freemasonry.

There is a good side to philately. It is the most democratising influence in the world. Its devotees number all ages of men and all classes of Society, and constitute a freemasonry that includes all races.

If all diplomatists were philatelists there would be no more war; they would never obey the order of recall while a stamp remained in the country. If war ever did occur it would be not to annex fresh territory, but to acquire old collections.

In the Horticultural Hall there are thousands of stamps valued at anything from a penny to a thousand pounds. To the uninitiated they all look alike, except that some are uglier than others. The faces of kings, queens, and presidents printed on them wear a pained expression as though they were tired of being stared at.

Result—Boredom.

The Daily Sketch tried valiantly to get enthusiastic at their history and feel amazed at their phenomenal price, but only succeeded in getting bored.

The sight of Nelson's sword and uniform in the Painted Hall at Greenwich conjures up a picture of the heroism and horrors of Trafalgar, but to the man who is not a stamp collector the philatelic rarity means nothing but a stamp.

To the ordinary mind it is as impossible to enthuse about philately as it is to ignore the passion that animates the true collector.

PRECANCEL PARAGRAPHS.

By JOHN A. SOLOMON.

Electing a new President, European wars, and other great worldly affairs seem to have little effect on precancel collecting. The general call that is being sounded for more and more precancels has proved that precancel collecting is not a false alarm but one that rings true. The past year has added many new followers and precancels have undoubtedly taken firm root. Even though the past year has probably brought out more issues than any other year, it does not seem to satisfy the enthusiastic "precancelist" especially the latter day collectors who find it a difficult problem to obtain the obsolete issues.

Although much advertising with alluring cash offers are proposed it fails to tempt the more fortunate possessor of these "rarities" to part with them.

Smudgy looking precancels have always been an eye sore for all.

Floral Park, Pa., sends out beautiful pictures of flowers, ferns, etc., with one of the ugliest appearing precancellations possible. It is my belief that could these handsome things talk they would enter a protest against such an unsightly blotch.

We will soon be looking for "Panama Exposition Precancels."

In looking over collections it is interesting to note the contrast of mounting inverted precancels. Some preferring to mount the stamp inverted to show the overprint reading normal. This is contrary to my idea. In mounting an inverted precancel, the stamp should be placed normal to give the reading the inverted effect, this I believe is the proper method.

To many people the number thirteen is looked upon as an unlucky figure, but in precancel collecting you can lay aside any such doubts. The collector who possesses a goodly number of them can consider it a lucky strike, and the skeptics will find that thirteen cent precancels are accumulated with no little effort.

Indianapolis, Ind., bears the peculiar distinction of being the only city that placed the name of the city, state and country, on a precancelled stamp. Its first issue was set up in a circle reading, Indianapolis, Ind., U. S. A.

I know of no other city lettered in this manner.

Lowell, Mass., must be admired for its consistency. Way back in 1894 Lowell issued its first precancelled stamp. Lowell is to-day still using that same type of precancellation and its issues have always been without flaw or blemish. Such a record is one that any city can point to with pride.

Until recently, Springfield, Ohio, and Springfield, Mass., and Niagara Falls, N. Y., and Niagara Falls, Ont., were the only cities of like names issuing precancels. A short time ago two other cities were admitted to this select class in Lansing, Mich., the home of the well-known railroad type and Lansing, Kansas.

The precancelist will have to step lively to keep up with the Christmas precancels between Tacoma, Washington and Gloucester, Mass.

Recently I uncovered a few specimens in purple ink that looked like "real finds" but upon closer examination I discovered that some "near clever" person had carefully marked over the original dull black ink with a purple indelible pencil.

Once again, for the good of Precancel collecting use every effort to keep our issues clean.

Brockton, Mass., has flooded the principal cities and towns in this country, as well as some cities abroad with its shoe advertisements carried by Brockton precancels, but not until recently were any but the one cent stamps used. Brockton's shoe advertising has expanded to such proportions that the use of the 2, 3, and 4 cent denominations are now required.

VERY IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT!

On January 29-30 next, we shall sell at Auction the collection of Col. H. W. Anderson, of Exeter, N. H. This is a property little known outside of a very few, but will be a pleasant surprise to all others. In it will be found Rare B. N. A., including both 1sh values, a superb lot of "mint" Cape of Good Hope triangles, early Philippine, the finest line of Puerto Principe offered for years, early Hawaii, France tete beche, and hundreds of others of lesser value but at least equally interesting. Two hundred of very fine "collections by countries" follow at the end.

We Shall Hold This Sale in BOSTON, where it will prove the biggest attraction since the famous King sale of last year, but shall exhibit it also in New York.

CATALOGUES (illustrated) are now ready. You will get one if we have your name on our mailing list. If you are not, your name and address on a postal card should be sent us at once. No one who really values his albums should miss this sale.

SECOND NOTICE:—Following this, we shall put on the market at auction also, what we believe to be the largest, best and finest Twentieth Century collection of the stamps of 1901 to 1908 ever offered at Auction. 6000 varieties, all unused, actually complete in Portuguese Colonies, practically so in British, very strong in Spanish and other countries. Watch Out For It!

We Are Open to Engagement Now, for Sales after the middle of March. "Now is the high time of the year."—(Lowell).

CHAPTER XXVI.

The Stamps of 1870 to 1881.

That the artistic does not appeal to the average American may be said to be evidenced by the storm of disapproval which followed the advent of the postage stamps of 1869, which was continued with such force and vigor that the post office department soon felt that new postage stamps must be provided. This action was determined late in the year 1869, and designs for a new issue were prepared, and approved. The engraving and printing of these stamps were done by the National Bank Note Company, New York, and the stamps appeared in April, 1870, and quickly superseded the square stamps of the previous issue.

Although designated in the various catalogs as issues of 1870, 1871, 1873, etc., there was no marked change in the design. Only minor characteristics determine these different "issues" and for that reason I shall treat these stamps as a single issue, with remarks as to the various minor varieties and their production. This procedure will, I am sure, be more satisfactory to readers of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS than would be the case if I took up the different denominations of the 1870, the 1871, the 1873, and on to the change in designs. Besides, if I were to treat each denomination according to the catalogs the series of chapters would run on almost indefinitely, and there are many matters pertaining to the later issues which are of quite as much interest as any which have been discussed, or which are due for consideration in the near future.

I believe time and patience will be conserved by a general foreword in advance of the study of these stamps, so that only brief reference need be made to the main facts hereafter. With these few preliminaries I will discuss in a general way the stamps which were issued between the years 1870 and 1881.

The new designs began appearing in April, 1870, the same denominations being furnished as those of the 1869 issue, namely—1, 2, 3, 6, 10, 12, 15, 24, 30 and 90 cents. With the exception of the two cents the colors of each denomination were changed. The 2 cents remained brown.

The earlier printings were grided, but in a very slipshod and unsatisfactory manner; and after a short season this practice was abolished, never to be taken up again, except in the case of the Continental prints which were grided for other purposes rather than for use postally.

It probably was the practice to pass several sheets of stamps through the grille machine, as often only a few points of the grille will show, like pinpricks. This has militated against the study of the grilles themselves, as few are of sufficient distinctness to count and measure. It, too, has made the task of the expert difficult in determining the genuineness of stamps alleged to be grided. There are, however, said to be distinguishing marks upon later stamps which aid the expert in his diagnosis of the case considered. The knowledge of these marks is said to be in possession of a few ultra-experts—and it is averred by some who claim to know that this knowledge is jealously guarded. I am inclined to agree with this statement, because of my own study and observation I know that some of the stamps are marked to show the year of printing, and as this is the case it is not at all improbable that all stamps are so marked, a different minute insertion into the design showing to the expert eye facts which the average collector knows nothing about.

After the designs and denominations had been adopted the letter rate to Germany was changed to seven cents and nate the work of the two concerns as different issues. I cannot figure it out in that direction, and in my own study I classify the distinctions merely as varieties, and not as issues. I may be wrong in my view, however, and am perfectly agreeable that everyone shall call them by whatever title they please.

The Continental Bank Note Company placed "secret marks" in their work so that the stamps printed by them might be determined from that of their predecessors. These "secret marks" will be treated as they come in the succeeding chapters of the study.

While this later contract was in force the Continental Bank Note Company became a part of a new concern known as the American Bank Note Company, and the contract of the Continental concern was carried out by the new concern.

In 1879 we have what is termed another "issue" with stamps printed upon "soft, porous" paper, printed by the American Bank Note Company. While the designs of the previous issues were printed upon that variety of paper at about this time, it is certain that stamps were printed before 1879 on the same "soft, porous" paper. This we know without opportunity to dispute the statement, for the reason that stamps printed upon this identical paper exist cancelled with the year date, showing that they were used as early as 1878.

This is not hearsay, for I have a 2 cent vermilion showing the "78" very distinctly. A St. Louis collector also has a very nice cancellation of the same stamp in his collection.

During the life of this contract a number of "safety patents" were experimented with, but unsuccessfully. Among these may be noted the double papers upon which possibly every denomination was printed; chemical paper designed to change its color when cancelled or cleaned; "cog-wheel" cuts upon the face of the stamp; horizontal slashes cutting the thin upper paper, etc. These, too, will be treated as varieties in their proper place later on.

The special printings of 1875 can hardly be termed reprints. There is no doubt but the stamps were printed upon the same paper as were the other special printings, or reprints, as I have termed them, but there was no especial reason for this. The stamps of this design were current at the time, and one only had to secure the stamps in use to round out the issues for a complete collection. These so-called special printings exist, however, and perhaps that name is as good as any other. They can be identified by the color—the work being more like finished proofs than the regular stamps. The paper, texture and color is the same as the other special printings. The price, too, is very distinctive.

With these few forewords upon the issue covering these years up to the next change in design, I will leave the actual study of the stamps for the next few chapters.

PRINTS 12 MILES OF STAMPS AN HOUR.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Millions of dollars will be saved the government by the use of a newly devised stamp-printing machine. The apparatus is scheduled to turn out a mile of postage stamps every five minutes. It was designed by Benjamin R. Stickney. There will be a saving of 57 per cent. in the production cost of stamps.

This new machine, which prints, gums, dries, perforates, and either cuts into sheets or winds into coils 12,000 stamps in one minute will save the government several million dollars in the cost of stamps alone in the course of a few years. The bureau of engraving and printing now turns out 40,000,000 stamps daily, but with the use of the new machine and because of the increased demand it will be able to manufacture many more millions a day.

Previously it has been necessary to wet stamp paper to get an impression from the engraved ink-covered plate, but Mr. Stickney has made it possible to do away with the hand-wetting process and to substitute dry printing. Mr. Stickney's invention will revolutionize plate printing, which heretofore has involved much manual labor and time. Now stamps can be printed perfectly from a roll of paper at high speed.

J. E. Ralph, director of the bureau, foreseeing heavy business after the passage of the postal savings and parcel post acts, directed Mr. Stickney to plan if possible, a machine method for producing the vast number of stamps required. This machine is considered a remarkable invention because many countries have tried unsuccessfully to get such an apparatus.

It is believed that with the saving in cost of stamp production and some possible economies by further machine development, penny postage may follow in time.

AEROPLANE CANCELLATIONS.

By ARTHUR T. BROWNE, B. P. S. No. 543.

No. 29—Birmingham, Ala.

The twenty-ninth aeroplane cancellation was used at Birmingham, Ala., at the Alabama State Fair, which was held October 3-12, 1912. Joseph Stephenson, a New York aviator, was authorized to carry mail. While making a trial flight on the fifth day of the fair he fell thirty feet to his death. Letters and postal cards had been stamped with the aeroplane cancellation on the grounds, but no mail was carried. The postmark was circular in shape and consisted of small dots. At the top and bottom were the words "Birmingham, Alabama." In the center was the date. The cancellation consisted of eight lines, one and three quarters inches in length. In the space between the fourth and fifth lines were the words "Aeroplane U. S. Mail." Both the postmark and the cancellation were in reddish purple ink.

EDITORIAL

Things of Beauty—The Pacific-Panama stamps and the parcel post set are impressive contributions to the stamp issues of the United States. Promptly on January 1st, 1913, both sets, with possibly a few exceptions, were available at many offices; and collectors lost no time in feasting their eyes on the new stamps. The parcel post due stamps with their simplicity and uniformity of design make an excellent foil for the general issue and the philatelic world has been enjoying a seven days' wonder in the contemplation of the contents of the veritable philatelic cornucopia.

A Big Hit—The newspapers have been full of accounts of the scenes and incidents attending the baptism of the parcel post. From all over the country come reports of the popularity of the innovation and it is told, here, how the amount in stamps sold to a single customer was limited pending the receipt of a new supply and there, how certain values soon were exhausted. The parcel post stamps mark an epoch in American history as well as philately; and their designs and workmanship are strong and vital. The stamps are worthy of all praise on the score of appropriate selection of subjects and mechanical creation. The Pacific-Panama issue has not received the same degree of attention from the press as the parcel post set but they stand on a substantial base of merit and philatelists will recognize the newcomers with much satisfaction. The beauty of the five-cent is remarked by all and if any weakness is to be noticed it is in the ten-cent which has not the advantage of presentation in a color that emphasizes a wealth of detail. All the new stamps will afford themes for many a philatelic comment or sermon.

EUGENE KLEIN, Inc., Empire Bldg., 13th & Walnut Sts., Philadelphia, Pa.

The Song of Sinpod—Sinpod, the stamp sage, says that he has uncovered a collector who does not want to know the market value of the albino envelope that he has found. An auctioneer whose description of the stamps in his sale does not do them full justice: A collector who has not a tale of how he nearly found a lot of valuable stamps and a collector who does not think that he could pick up some "snaps" on the Paris stamp bourse, if he ever went to that city.

Real Stamp News—For some time past, the Annual Report of the Director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1912, a pamphlet of twenty-six pages and cover, has been awaiting attention. The report submits information of a kind always acceptable to philatelists; and the statistical tables fairly bristle with figures that will be appreciated best by stamp collectors. The appendix following Director Ralph's concise report details the operations of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing for the year, fiscally, and among the statements are those showing the internal revenue stamps, customs stamps, United States postage stamps, Philippine postage stamps and postal savings stamps, respectively, delivered during the fiscal year 1912. In addition, there are summaries listing the number of "specimen" postage stamps delivered to the Third Assistant Postmaster General for the official collection of the Post Office Department; the number of specimen postage stamps delivered for the use of the International Bureau of the Universal Postal Union at Berne and four sheets of the one-cent, series of 1908, or four hundred stamps, marked specimen for use as exhibit in a trial case. Four hundred stamps of the series of 1911, one, two, eight, ten, fifteen, fifty cents and one dollar and ten cent registry stamps, respectively, were surcharged for Postal Union exhibits. The declining demand for the dollar values is indicated by the figures that 9,000 of the one dollar; 1,238 of the two dollar and 1,608 of the five dollar stamps were delivered.

Inviting Trouble—An ingenious reader has turned out the following question which we throw upon the tender mercies of our readers, merely stopping to remark casually that in our opinion, the "eithers" have the better of the "neithers." "In the course of an open discussion after a debate of the Philadelphia Stamp Club last evening, I offered a suggestion that came to my mind in connection with the subject. The point was this,—that such stamps of Great Britain and colonies as are labelled 'Postage and Revenue' are neither postage nor revenue stamps in unused condition; they are potentially postage or revenue, the use to which they are put as determined by the cancellation, alone classifying them as postage or revenue stamps. Be it understood that I am far from the point of slighting British colonials, used or unused, as postage stamps but I offer this point of distinction as the nucleus of discussion on the subject."

Asking Anxiously—What has become of the old-fashioned collector who delighted to make a joke on the name Heligoland? Is he playing a friendly game somewhere with the o. f. c. who says that Lallier's was the best stamp album ever published? What has become of the old-fashioned dealer who says that since the condition cranks have got the upper hand, the stamp business has been on the decline? Is he sky-larking somewhere with the o. f. d. who unwittingly included a few genuine stamps in the frame of counterfeits that hangs on the wall?

Testimony—Mr. W. L. Kinkead, Patterson, New Jersey, gives us pleasure by saying: "I, too, am an old-fashioned collector in that I keep a record of my stamps that are placed on each page of my albums. I go further than this and check my collection in the Scott catalogue each year and then secure the catalogue value of each country. I use blank albums for mounting my stamps but do not divide my stamps into centuries, finding it more convenient to keep each country together. At present my collection is contained in seven Krassa albums; Volume I, U. S. Adhesives Cut Envelopes and Revenues, 2426, value $2057.60. Volumes II and III, Great Britain and Colonies, 5152, value $2782.10. Volume IV, Mexico, Central and South America, 3687, value $1,008.53. Volumes V and VI, Europe and Colonies, 6399, value $1590.67. Volume VII, U. S. Colonies and balance of world, 2536, value $918.60. Total number, 20,200; value $8257.50. In each of the volumes the order is alphabetical, although to a certain extent geographical as the heading for volume IV indicates. I also keep up with my additions by placing a sheet in each volume on which all additions are noted as made so that I know the totals at once. I am also o. f. c. enough to mark on each sticker holding stamp, date of receipt, from whom or how acquired and cost. This adds to the story and acts as a check against counterfeits."

Break—Mr. C. T. Rogers, Chicago, shows a copy of the 1899, Porto Rico surcharge on the two-cent United States on which the top of the second "o" of Porto is broken off as clean as a whistle making the word, "Portu."

OUR BOOK REVIEW.

The Postage Stamps of Holland, XIX Century, by Joseph B. Leavy has been published by P. McGraw Mann of Philadelphia. The contents of this pamphlet of fifty pages appeared originally in the columns of the Philadelphia Stamp News and the merits of Mr. Leavy's study become the more apparent when it is permitted that the treatise in its completeness be examined at leisure. Mr. Leavy's book is a valuable contribution on the subject of the stamps of Holland and it is a fitting addition to the other somewhat numerous works on the stamps of a very popular country. The illustrations of the retouches in the first issue are very helpful; in fact, so exactly are the details of the first issue pre-

MISSION & CONVENT STAMPS

COMPETITION IMPOSSIBLE

The only genuine Mission stamps offered. Sent direct from convent in Kansas to buyers by parcel post prepaid. Big demand—sure to be a great rush—its imperative that you order now! Never before such a lot at Any Price.

3 lb bag, $2.45; 5 lbs., $3.95; 11 lbs., $7.50

WHY They Will Please YOU

Clean well mixed stamps from many countries with good variety. You buy stamps—not tea-leads, real estate, etc. Many free from paper—a large percentage must be as there are 25-50,000 to the 3 lbs. No United States in this mixture.

Read on and be Convinced!

Wm. S. Bellows, M. D., the well known collector of Jamaica, N. Y., writes,—"The 3 lb. bag came safely to hand and contents thoroughly satisfactory. Good value and a well assorted mixture—clean—and many thousands free from paper. A good example of the Powell Quality." "The 3 pounds came yesterday. Thanks! Lots of fun looking them over. Parker F. Scripture."

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—H. T. Willcox, Jewett City, Conn., would like to hear from all parties who have had unsatisfactory dealings with the American Stamp Co., Baltimore, Md.

—W. S. Aldrich reports unsatisfactory dealings with C. E. Crandall, Belmont, N. Y. Will other dealers lay facts before the postal inspector of that district? Mr. Aldrich also reports Milton McKean, Houston, Texas, as a substituter.

—H. Clark Jarrett of Carnegie, Pa., submits two Pittsburgh "1913" cancellations. The first one bears the marking "Dec. 5 6:30 P. M." and the other "Dec. 6 6:30 P. M." showing that the 1913 cancellation was continued during a period of more than twenty-four hours. Mr. Jarrett remarks that the cancellation on Dec. 4 and 7 were O. K.

—"I feel that Scott would greatly enhance the value of their catalogue, certainly the usefulness of it, if they would prepare a color sheet showing the shades by which they describe the stamps listed and prepare pages of the variations of paper, showing all grades referred to, as well as what is termed "laid paper."—A. H. ROBERTSON.

—Henry R. Cowan sends us a new subscription with "Still boosting" as his watchword. Of late our Boosters Club has been somewhat neglected but the managing editor has been kept busy in other directions.

—Ed. W. Smith, who will be remembered by San Francisco collectors as a which are of the greatest value to all first-class dealers.

The books are highly attractive and contain about 160 stamps each, with blank space to insert your name and address.

There are from 6 to 8 books in each lot ranging in value up to $7.00 or $8.00 for a single book and often more. They comprise a large variety. Each Lot Catalogues Over $26.00

PRICE $4.00

No book contains duplicates. Not over 5 of the same stamp in one set of books. All stamps priced according to catalogue.

You can give 50 per cent, 60 per cent, or even 75 per cent discount and still double your money.

FULTON STAMP CO.,

dealer on Montgomery St. from 1894 to 1908, has resumed operations as a dealer and opens this week an advertising campaign in the WEEKLY. We have known Mr. Smith for years and are positive that his stock of stamps is all that he claims for it. From his advertisement found elsewhere in this issue one will get a good idea of the extent of the splendid stock which he now offers, including a fine lot of U. S. and colonies and British Colonials, in which are early Australian rarities.

—"Relative to the lines in the WEEKLY concerning the number of the plate from which the one cent Postal Savings stamps were printed, will say that this office received a sheet printed from plate No. 5648. The two cent black from plate No. 5501 and the 10c red from plate No. 5613."—C. B. MEGARITY.

—Wolsieffer's sale of January 25th contains something for almost everyone a fact that is well attested to by an examination of the catalogue. The next booking of Mr. Wolsieffer is the sale of the collection of Dr. W. I. Mitchell of Wichita, Kansas, to be followed by that of W. R. Patterson, once Vice-President of the Chicago Philatelic Society; his 20,000 variety collection contains many a desirable item.

—The managing editor is indebted to W. L. Aldrich and Silas Weatherby & Co. for first specimens of the Panama stamps. They were purchased January 1. From H. R. Lloyd and Alvah G. Clark clippings are received showing illustrations of the new parcels post stamps. Beneath the cuts in the Phila. Public Ledger is the following: "Reproduced by permission of the P. O. Dept."

—"I have been shown twenty or more --some in blocks of nine of the 13 cent dark red Hawaiian on which the word "specimen" had been so skillfully removed as to almost defy detection. Not a sign of the word specimen was left, and the face of the stamps was not injured so far as I could see. Collectors of Hawaii should be on the lookout. All the copies I saw had original gum, which was not injured."—E. W. SMITH.

—"A correspondent in Jamaica has just informed me that the four pence, Queen's Head, red on yellow paper, is likely to become just as scarce as its predecessor, the 4 pence black on yellow paper, and possibly scarcer. It was in use only about a year, and was superseded early in December by the 4 pence, King George's Head. Strange how many of the 4 pence values of British Colonials have become rare! First there was the 4d Cayman Islands, King Edward; then Natal, King Edward Single C. A.; then Jamaica, Queen's Head, black on yellow and now the above mentioned stamp."—BENEDICT PRIETH.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from Edgar Anthony, A. W. Blackman (2), J. Russell Hickey, E. S. Bissinger, H. Clark Jarrett (5), Alvah G. Clark, H. R. Lloyd, T. C. Mann.

—Edw. W. Bridge, West Lynn, Mass., very kindly favors our office with a real philatelic calendar, for which we are greatly obliged. A handsome surf scene mounted upon a well proportioned card is surrounded by a number of U. S. stamps prettily arranged.

Small Ads Column.

This column is for the use of our patrons who desire only a few lines of space. If you want to buy, sell or exchange, it is without doubt the best advertising medium in the world.

RATE.—20c per line, cash in advance. No display allowed. Six words to the line, including address. We offer 50 lines for $7.50, where cash is paid in advance. This space can be used at such times and in such quantities as may be desired.

We shall use every possible endeavor to protect our subscribers, but we cannot undertake to be responsible for unsatisfactory trade relations. Advertisers against whom complaints are proven will be debarred the further use of these columns.

Advertisers sending out approval selections must take precautions to secure satisfactory references. We cannot undertake to settle all the petty disputes arising from the wide-spread scattering of approval selections.

that there are small round spots of white near the bases of the small numerals, somewhat similar to those previously reported on the Postal Savings stamps. No less than 20 of the 45 stamps on the sheet have one or more of these colorless spots, most frequently on the left numeral."

Part of the Panama Exhibition stamps were placed on sale on the New Year's day, but the supply appears to be limited and no 2c stamps have yet been reported from any office. These stamps have been so often described as to need no further attention in this direction. The criticism of Mr. Krause, given below, will be echoed by Philatelists generally, though the design or the frame is the same for all values. The color in which the 10c is printed does not bring out the engraving, the 1c and 5c being much more satisfactory. In size, the new stamps measure the same as the Jamestown stamps and the Alaska-Yukon issue.

Maxwell Krause writes: "The new parcel post stamps and Dues come in panes of 45, 5x9. I looked over a good many of the stamps and found the shades very uniform for a red printing. However, I managed to find slight variations in shade of all values but the 4c—two shades of each, one showing a slightly more rosy tint than the other. Of the dues, I found two shades of the 10c, the one being considerably darker than the other. The 1c, 2c, 5c and 25c dues were uniform, in all the sheets I looked over. The postage set is in a peculiarly smeary shade of red which will, I believe, be difficult to duplicate in future printings.

"The new Panama Stamps come in panes of 70, 7x10. The 5c and 10c values are certainly not very handsome stamps, mainly due to the shades in which they are printed. The 10c is especially bad, and almost impossible to decipher. The 1c on the other hand, is very artistic, the 2c I haven't seen as yet. I found two shades of the 10c, one distinctly lemon in tone. The 1c and 5c I examined were uniform. The plates of the 1c I saw were 6127, 6128, 6131, 6132. By the way the 4c Parcel Post is miserably homely in design."

BRUNEL.—Maxwell Krause reports having seen two different shades of the 4c of 1907, Scott's No. 16, one red lilac and the other bright lavender, the centre being in black in both cases.

BULGARIA.—The Scott Coin & Stamp Co. has shown us the commemorative stamps chronicled in a couple of beautiful used sets. Bulgaria has come to the front in its stamp issues, the 1911 series and this commemorative set ranking among the finest in Europe. Possibly this indicates why the Bulgarians have also forged ahead in recent political events. A country with such beautiful stamps deserves well of the world.

SWITZERLAND.—Frank Kocher has shown us a postmark which is unique, the cover being stamped at St. Gallen, Switzerland, on Dec. 12, 1912, at 12 o'clock, the date reading 12-XII-12-XII. The cover also has a charity stamp on the reverse, dated 1912, the legend reading "Viel Sonnenschein im neuen Jahr!" with "10 Rp" in the upper corner.

WEST AUSTRALIA.—A. C. Roessler, F. W. Reid and Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the 2d yellow, watermarked crown and double lined A, surcharged with new value, "One Penny" in black near the bottom of the stamp.

Mr. Roessler confirms the statement that the 2d envelope, with the same type of stamp has been surcharged "One Penny" diagonally in blue. This provisional envelope is reported to have been on sale only at Perth, and was exceedingly scarce even there.

INSURANCE OF FOURTH-CLASS MATTER (Domestic Parcel Post).

Office of Third Asst. P. M. Gen. To All Postmasters:

Special attention is directed to Section 62 of the Parcel Post Regulations effective January 1, 1913, which provides for insurance of fourth-class matter against loss in an amount equivalent to the actual value of the article, not to exceed $50, on the payment of a fee of 10 cents in addition to the postage, both postage and fee to be prepaid by parcel-post stamps affixed to each parcel.

Attention is directed also to Section 63 of the Parcel Post Regulations which reads as follows:

"SEC. 63. In view of the provision for the insurance of fourth-class mail and the furnishing of receipts for such mail when insured, the necessity for registration is removed, and therefore fourth-class matter shall not be admitted to the registered mail."

Postmasters must be prepared to report immediately after June 30, 1913, as to the number of pieces of insured fourth-class matter mailed at their offices from January 1, 1913, to June 30, 1913, inclusive. A form will be prepared for this report and issued to each postmaster just prior to June 30, 1913, without requisition therefor.

KNICK-KNACKS.

Parcel Post and Pacific-Panama. Four peas in the philatelist's pod.

"Consider the stamp ideographically," says a philatelic bulgy brow. Not if we know ourselves.

You could not blame stamp collectors if they were to turn their heads to look after the new stamps if they saw them walking down the street.

Have you noticed the name of Parnassus Penflip in the newspapers as the probable appointee as postmaster general? That shows that you cannot believe what you see in the papers.

Mr. F. R. Cornwall, St. Louis, president of the American Philatelic Society sent us a New Year's draft for 365 days of prosperity. We shall go him one better and in return wish him a leap year of happiness.

The wedding announcement of Miss Edythe Parsell and Mr. Sterling L. Post is published in a newspaper down the state just in time to allow us to remark seasonably that the Parsell-Post idea is all right.

The St. Louis Stamp Collectors' Society dined wisely and well on January Seventh and the New England Philatelic Association and the American Envelope Society (Consolidated) is to ditto on January 14th, 1913, at Boston.

"At a meeting of the — Philatelic Society, Mr. — was called upon for a few remarks, whereupon the meeting adjourned," runs the record of the proceedings of a stamp society. Mr. Blank must feel that this is a cruel world.

Mr. Hugh M. Clark, one of the philatelic bright lights of New York City, spent the holidays at his old home in Chicago. After partaking of the excitements of the city, he will welcome the pastoral calm of his adopted habitat, no doubt.

"Am I justified in accepting a gift of valuable stamps from a stranger who does not know their value?" asks one of the heart-to-heart philatelic writers. We do not know, old Highspot, but we shall not desert you in your hour of need; send our address to the stranger.

Our home-grown philatelic poet vows that he will make Parnassus Penflip sit up and take notice. Hear him: At its height is philatelic cheer In the sturdy cold month of Janiveer.

THE PARCEL POST STAMPS.

I am surprised that all of the twelve stamps in the new parcel post series, which will now be in use in a few days are printed in the same color, red. That is, it is the color officially termed red, but in reality carmine, the same shade of ink used in the ordinary two-cent stamp. The uniformity of color cannot fail to be confusing to both the clerks who sell the stamps and the people who are to buy and use them. In case of the ordinary stamp, it is the color that catches the eye and carries the information about the value, rather than the figures or engraving on the stamp. It is not unlikely that the scheme of having all twelve denominations of the parcel post stamps the same color will prove to be impractical in operation, whereupon there will be a re-arrangement—to the great joy of the philatelists. —Boston Herald.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 231, Altadena, Calif.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

THE BEGINNERS' GUIDE.

POSTAL FISCALS.

The status of postal fiscals is a matter which has been frequently discussed and which presents many difficulties to all classes of collectors. Some philatelists affirm that they might with advantage be omitted from the catalogues as the slight interests they possess can only appeal to an extreme specialist. While we cannot agree with this wholesale condemnation we believe that quite a large proportion of the fiscal stamps recorded in the catalogues as having postal standing have really no right to be considered postal varieties at all.

Postal-fiscals, or fiscal-postals as they are often termed, are stamps originally issued for revenue purposes, but which have been allowed to do duty as postage stamps. They fall naturally into two classes, viz:—

I.—Those regarding which official notification was made or implied to authorize their use.

II.—Those allowed to pass through the post owing to the carelessness or ignorance of postal employés, or simply postmarked by the favor of an obliging postal clerk, but which were never officially recognised.

The stamps that come under our second heading may be promptly dispatched as unworthy the attention of any serious collector. They are simply postmarked fiscals and have no more philatelic interest than a postmarked advertising sticker.

The first class—fiscals that were undoubtedly officially authorised or recognised as available for postal use—may be further sub-divided into the following groups:—

(a) Those stamps officially recognised but not really necessary, owing to the fact that proper postage stamps of corresponding denominations were available.

(b) Those stamps officially authorised, and of which there were no similar denominations in the ordinary postage series.

(c) Those fiscal stamps which were officially issued as provisional postage stamps.

While admitting that all three groups are of undoubted interest to the specialist, we contend that those which come under the description of (a) are quite unnecessary luxuries for the general collector. Take the case of the postal fiscals of Great Britain for instance. By Acts of Parliament passed in 1881 and 1882 all sorts of fiscal stamps of a not higher facial value than 2s 6d were allowed to be used for postal purposes. But, as all these values were already included in the normal postal series, and the privilege was one of which the general public took only the smallest advantage, it is obvious there was never any actual necessity for them, and their collection may be left entirely to the specialist.

The collectibility of stamps included in group (b) is a point that offers plenty of scope for argument. A glance at Scott's catalogue will show that New Zealand, Victoria, and Queensland provide appallingly lengthy lists of "revenue stamps used for postage" but the necessity of most of them is a questionable matter. Take those of New Zealand as an example. Until 1878 1s represented the face value of the most expensive postage stamp proper issued by this British colony. In that year 2s and 5s postage stamps were issued, and down to the present time no higher denomination than 5s has been deemed necessary by the authorities so far as the postage series is concerned. One would certainly imagine that if stamps of a higher facial value than five shillings were necessary and a public convenience, they would certainly have been issued by such a progressive country as New Zealand. That being so, there can be little legitimate postal demand for the fiscal labels having a higher facial value than 5s. Even if we admit the convenience of such values as 10s and 20s such odd denominations as 4s 4d, 5s 4d, 6s 4d, 7s 6d, 9s, etc., can hardly be seriously treated as legitimate postage stamps. Personally, we think the general collector would be well advised to exclude all the stamps in this group, as well as those comprised under (a).

The stamps in group (c) are undoubtedly collectible, for they form an interesting (though small) class of unimpeachable postal provisionals. They should, more correctly, be interspersed with the ordinary postal series in the catalogues, rather than classed with the postal fiscals. As an excellent example we may point to the $1 on $2 stamp of Hong Kong issued in 1897 and listed under the numbers 212 and 213 in Scott. In September, 1897, the $1 postage stamp current in Hong Kong consisted of the 96c, printed in purple on red paper, surcharged "1 DOLLAR" in black and with Chinese characters. It will be noted that the color of this stamp is identical with that of the 10c current at the same period and taking advantage of this fact the postmaster of one of the sub-offices surcharged a number of the 10c labels with "1 DOLLAR" in similar type to that appearing on the genuine stamps and relied on the similarity of color allowing his deception to escape notice. How long the fraud was perpetrated is not known but directly it was discovered all the dollar stamps were hurriedly withdrawn from circulation. Messrs. De La Rue and Co. of London, were ordered to supply some temporary $1 stamps as quickly as possible. They selected the then current $2 fiscal stamp, and surcharged it "ONE DOLLAR" in two lines, with a thick bar below to cancel the old value, and two short bars near the top to obliterate the numerals "2" on each side of the Crown. The Chinese overprints were added in the Colony and indicate the labels are $1 postage stamps. These temporary stamps were in use for eight months—from September, 1897 until April, 1898—and during that period they represented a proper postage stamp, and were the only $1 stamps available for postal use. As this stamp was never issued or intended for fiscal use it is curious that the cataloguers persist in including it among the "postal-fiscals." The only other stamp of a similar character I can call to mind at the moment is the Natal 1d revenue stamp which was overprinted "ZULULAND" and used in the latter colony as a postage stamp.

CONSERVES LIVES AS WELL AS TREES.

A Newspaper Story of Mr. Pack.

LAKEWOOD, N. J. Dec. 13.—The gardener's face was all worked up into little red welts. He was raking up the leaves on the lawn. Just as soon as one little patch was clear of leaves the wind swept swirls of them back again.

Then Mr. Chas. Lathrop Pack came along. "Say, James," he said, "if you would rake diagonally—this way—you'd have the wind with you, and I believe the job would ease up a bit."

Half an hour later James had the lawn at "The Spirit of the Pines" as clear as the smooth lake that showed through the tree trunks.

HIS GOSPEL OF LIFE.

Chas. Lathrop Pack's little passage with "James" occurred before he was officially "interviewed." But it showed that conservation with Mr. Pack is a gospel of life.

For Chas. Lathrop Pack, just elected president of the National Conservation congress, is a REAL conservationist. It was born in him.

"Have a cigaret," he asks as he starts the conversation in the old-rose library of his magnificent home at Lakewood. "These cigarets won't hurt you," he says. "I have them made especially for me. I import the tobacco myself, and then I have it chemically examined. The paper is also pure."

This is Pack's second little lesson in conservation before he has uttered a single word on the subject.

IT'S A BIG SUBJECT.

"And now," you finally say to Pack, "what are your views on conservation—conservation of trees and such things?" "Oh," laughs Pack. "That's just a little piece of conservation!"

"Don't you really guess what conservation means? Why, conservation stands for the proper use of everything and everybody in all the world, and is dead against the abuse of any of them."

"Pretty large order—that isn't it? But we're going to fill it—we of this nation. We are coming to the time when not a single one of God's gifts or God's people is going to be exploited for selfish gain."

IT MEANS A LOT.

"In the past men have not been contented with gathering in just the right harvests of resources and of people. They have been so greedy that they have stretched out for more—and have destroyed the producing agents themselves. This is what we are to correct—we of this National Congress for Conservation."

"Only the harvests of growing things must hereafter be garnered in, and only the crops—the legitimate amount of labor—must be taken from people. Inroads on the products of nature cannot be tolerated much longer!"

Even Pack's pastimes are agents of conservation with him. Take his well known fad of stamp collecting.

"I collect stamps," says Pack, "because it saves my nerves. When I am tired out with one sort of work, I turn to them. They rest me up right away."

GOT EARLY LESSON.

Pack has been interested in timber ever since he was a boy. When he and his father went to Carlsbad many years ago—while Gifford Pinchot was still in kilts—he got the municipal forester to explain the "German idea" of renewing forests. He returned to Germany later, going into the subject exhaustively. Almost as soon as he landed in America once more, the late Jay Gould gave him a tremendous fee for prescribing for his forest lands.

Pack used to live in Cleveland, where he was president of the Chamber of Commerce, before he became a citizen of New Jersey. His colonial mansion in Lakewood is set in what looks like a primeval forest of pine.—San Francisco Daily News.

Snaps For January

Through a large purchase of U.S. Departments I can offer some real bargains in a few things. A boom is certain to come shortly in Departments, and these never will be offered at a lower price. As an investment they ought to appeal to shrewd buyers:

*582—1 cent War—absolutely perfect stamps, mint condition, and hard to get in this shape. The catalog price is $2.50; my price, only..... .80
*546—1 cent Postoffice—well centered, original gum; some mint, others hinged once. Desirable and dirt cheap. Catalog 40 cents, my price..... .15
588—12 cent War used but in nice condition, lightly canceled, well centered. Cat. 30c..... .10
Postage—12 Cents black, 1861—good, lightly canceled, but trifle off center, as is the case with 99 out of every 100 of these stamps. Worth half catalog (75c). My price, only..... .25

Three Great Rarities

10 cent August, 1861—unused, original gum, never hinged but once; was the gem of a gentleman's collection; perfectly centered, fine color. It is well worth full catalog ($80) simply as an investment. My price, only..... $50.00
12 cent 1861—horizontal strip of 5—in good condition for such a strip. A big bargain at..... $15.00
24 cent lilac, 1867—strip of three, canceled with paid gridirons. Perls. at bottom are slightly clipped. Very rare, price..... $10.00
Cash must accompany all orders. Money returned if not satisfactory. Postage extra on orders under $1.

burgerhofbrau, than an idea that I was to be an un subpoenaed witness to what will probably go down in unnatural history as the most terrific uncorroborated snake fight on record.

I can see it all now—in my eyes.

Happening to turn my gaze toward the corner where the sign "No credit. Watch your hat and overcoat" hangs, I suddenly noticed with a shudder that what I had supposed to be a harmless necessary steampipe was in reality the coils of a sarpiant—two sarpiants, in fact, entwined in the deadly embrace of mortal combat.

Which would win?

The blacksnake seemed to have the best fighting chance, and yet instinctively I started to put my money on the red.

But, what ho! I could not make head or tale of this snakentine mixup.

For why?

(Concluded Next Chapter.)

CHAP. III.

Each snake had the other's head in its mouth and was swallowing for all it was worth.

The reptiles were about evenly matched as to length and size. They were disappearing into one another at the rate of about half an inch per second, going slowly, because the swallowing began at the tail and thus was against the scales.

The reptilian ring they formed had now the diameter of a life preserver and was rapidly diminishing. Presently it was no bigger than a circular loaf of Italian bread. Then it dwindled to the size of a doughnut.

Then, presto! it was gone.

Those sarpiants had swallowed each other simultaneously and nothing was left save myself to tell the tale.

I showed the vacant spot on the floor to the head keller, and tried to narrate what I had seen, but he said that was too much to swallow.

But I know better, for those snakes were buoy constructors—not Ananiases, as some scientific friends of mine, who used to lend me money, have suggested.

THE MAN BEHIND.

By H. V. BLACKBURN.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

There has been a lot said both in song and story about the "Man Behind the Gun" and during my lifetime I have made the acquaintance of other men behind, one in particular who was the envy of my boyhood days; and that one was the man behind the counter in the novelty store where the Foreign Stamps were sold. Strange, very strange it seemed to me; here was a man without a soul, or I supposed so, as he did not see any beauty in the colored bits of paper and used to call us boys fools because we spent our pocket money for stamps. This was a long time ago.

Here was a man behind who did not appreciate the position that fortune had placed him in. We boys used to write a sentence entitled: "Cast not thy pearls before swine;" this was by way of punishment, and we wrote it a certain number of times according to the gravity of the offence; and we came to the conclusion that in this case the motto was reversed, for here was a swine cast among pearls, and this man who despised the triangular Capes and the early issues of Europe was so unfortunate as to get sent to prison for stealing twelve penny stamps (the irony of fate) and thus lost his position in society. The last time I saw him, was about 14 years ago; he was a sandwich man for a theatre in Liverpool, England.

I have come across other men behind the stamp dealer's counter almost without souls. There is one not a thousand miles away from Niagara Falls who does not possess a single stamp of his own, but he knows Scott's Catalog from A to Z.

There is another man behind that I know very well. I see him every day, his name is legion, he is a nuisance to himself and everybody around him. I refer to the man behind the times. The collector who does not subscribe to—well not to put too fine a point on it—the WEEKLY, that is the man behind the door, without doubt and the wonder is that he exists at all because he has no knowledge of the day's doings in the Philatelic World; he simply lives in the past. The questions he asks are enough to distract the average man and when you answer him, it is doubtful if he believes you, owing to the many changes which are taking place almost hourly in the world of stamps.

I came across a man not long ago, who did not see the necessity of subscribing to a stamp paper; I could not convince him that a stamp paper was necessary to a philatelist. However, I saw that a sample copy of the WEEKLY got into his hands. It happened that he had some loose change at the time and he saw two or three ads that looked very tempting, he answered them, and the result was that he figured out that he had spent about $9.00 in stamps and had saved more on the deal than the amount of the yearly subscription; it is needless to state he became a subscriber, and nobody is louder in his praise of the stamp paper than himself. He changed from the man behind the time to the man behind the information, and he knows which is the best.

In my capacity as a secretary of a philatelic society, I was once asked by what I considered a fairly intelligent man, "If stamp collecting was a remunerative hobby." My answer was, that it depended entirely how he went about it. I gave him all the pointers I knew that would help him, but the main pivot on which success was assured I pointed out was to keep posted, be up to date, and to do that was to subscribe to a good sound stamp journal. Sometimes I find my interest in stamps getting lukewarm, but my interest in the WEEKLY never varies. I am impatient until I get the current copy in my hand and I become master of its contents; and presently some article or even a sentence appears which arouses my interest and once more my collection is resurrected from its corner, and for a while I am again an enthusiast with regard to surcharges, perforations, shades, etc.

A few weeks ago I was in the company of some members of a philatelic society, who were entire strangers to me, but in the course of conversation I found out that those who were the most enlightened in "stampology" were those who subscribed regularly to stamp journals. In conclusion I would advise all stamp lovers to subscribe to a stamp journal, so that they will be posted as to changes, new issues, provisionals, yes, even precancels are given some space in the WEEKLY.

I would like to see MEKEEL'S made a welcome weekly guest in the house and home of every philatelist on the great American continent and here in Canada we don't want to do without it. I am sorry that John Bull's government won't let the paper be distributed at the same rate as it is in the U. S., but even at the dollar rate it is cheap at the price and will repay the subscriber fully a hundred fold in information only, let alone the numerous bargains which appear every week in its adv. columns. Rally round the WEEKLY, boost it, send up the circulation, so that it will not only be the premier stamp paper of the American continent, but of the whole civilized world.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Two errors occurred in the Elmer auction advertisement of Jan. 4. Lot 24 should have read "U. S. 1895 2c" instead of 22c. Lot 96 should have read "Half of two pieces" instead of half of two pence.

—H. Leonard reports W. E. Detwiler of Denver, Colo., supplementing information already given in these columns. Formerly at Leavenworth, Kans., his Denver address was 1727 Grant St.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from Hugo Kuenster (3), Edgar S. Bissinger (2), Herman W. Boers (3), O. D. Challans, H. B. Phillips, G. M. Schaefer (2), Maxwell Krause, Arthur Russell, H. S. Williams (6).

—H. B. Phillips sends us a clipping from the San Fran. Municipal Record describing a feature of the Panama Pacific Exposition. There is to be a "Forty Nine Camp" concession and we find the following item in relation to the same:—

"On the right side of the main entrance will be reproduced a log cabin postoffice after the style of those in vogue in '49. Here will be established the camp terminus of the Pony Express Route, which will be operated between the Camp and Sacramento. Postal cards, letters, souvenir packages and other mail matters will be forwarded via the Pony Express from this terminus to Sacramento."

—Illustrations of the parcel post stamps are being published in numerous papers. A Philadelphia paper inserted under its cut the following:—"Illustrated by permission of the P. O. Department." A letter to the Department asking that a similar courtesy should be extended our publication met with the following reply from the Acting Third Assistant Postmaster General:—

"In answer to your letter of January 2d, which the Postmaster General has referred to me, you are informed that the reproduction of postage stamps other than by Government agencies is held to be in violation of law, and can not be sanctioned by this Office. The reproduction of parcel-post stamps by a newspaper, to which you invite attention, will receive proper attention."

—W. F. Reid writes A. C. Roessler that the "One penny" on 2d Western Australia is sold out.

—Joseph Demers advises us of the death of Fred Doughty, Saginaw, Mich. Mr. Demers writes that he was one of the leading members in the Saginaw Stamp Club and was greatly respected by his friends and associates. Mr. Doughty was 51 years old and one of the veteran mail carriers of the city. For many years he has been a subscriber to the WEEKLY and many dealers and collectors will be pained in reading this item of news. He died Thurs., Jan. 9, of pneumonia at the Saginaw General Hospital.

—A clipping from a London paper presents us with a picture of the throng that crowded Station No. 12, Berlin, at 12 o'clock, Dec. 12, 1912, drawn thither by the desire to despatch mail to friends which should bear the five "12s" made possible by the unusual combination of station, date and hour. In a corner of the clipping is a postmark on a German stamp showing the combination referred to.

—Arthur W. Line sends us several clippings dealing with the opening of the parcel post service at Los Angeles, Cal. So great was the demand for the new set that the postmaster, Wm. H. Harrison, placed a ban on selling the new stamps to collectors for a period of fifteen days.

—M. Ohlmann desires to warn dealers of E. Bruce Campbell, 108 Capitol Av., Pierre, S. D. Mr. Ohlmann furnishes documentary evidence.

—The Burtis Stamp Co. of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., renewing their subscription, submits a specimen of a very useful pocket "Duplicate Stock Book." The firm makes a specialty of these stock books in different sizes.

—B. Douglas Goode advises us that an official communication from Washington states that the 2c Panama stamp will be issued "some time during the month of January." The 1, 5 and 10c of this set are reported from all quarters.

—"Dec. 28th issue had hardly had time to get in mail when I had letter from stamp house saying they would take entire stock I could furnish of the 1c Omaha with plate Nos. Pretty good work I think."—L. J. MOULTON.

—"I called at the window of the local postoffice the other day to get a drop letter that had been mailed with a one-cent stamp and consequently had one cent due. The clerk took my penny, stuck on an ordinary one-center, and then cancelled it with the registered etter stamp. That seems to be a mixture sure enough."—V. E. MCVICKER.

COMMUNICATION.

(We do not hold ourselves responsible for the views expressed by our readers. Our columns are always open for communications of general interest.—Ed.)

BEAVER DAM, WIS., Dec. 30.

TO THE EDITOR:—

The need for some system of abbreviations is now being demonstrated by the appearance of two new United States issues, The Panama Pacific Exposition, and the Parcels Post.

I would like to suggest a few simple abbreviations which will, if adopted, "make life easier" for some people.

- p. p. part perforated.
- pr. p. private perforation.
- m. p. machine perforation.
- P. P. Parcels Post.
- P. P. E. Panama-Pacific Exposition.

A rather unusual oddity came to light at the post office in this city, recently. A sheet of the 2c 1912 was in some manner torn or injured between the time of printing and of gumming. Some worthy Bureau employe, being of an economical mind, pasted a piece of transparent paper over the tear, after which the sheet was gummed and perforated as usual.

GEORGE A. CHANDLER.

WORTH YOUR WHILE TO READ

THE REASON We list "all postage" in our new price list so could not use these collections in filling orders as they contain a few HIGH GRADE U. S. REVENUES.

WHY WE CAN DO IT For 25 years we have been gathering stock. We have the largest stock of common and medium grade stamps in the world and use these stamps only for our packets and collections. There are stamps that we bought years ago that we include in these collections and only paid a small fraction of what they would cost today.

You Pay For Stamps Only and

Get Immense Value For Price Asked

WARNING! In our packet collections the stamps are neatly mounted and arranged in chronological order and the countries in alphabetical order. Not pasted in with mucilage as all other packet makers do their mounting, but with the very best imported peelable hinges.

BEWARE!! When a dealer says "mounted" it means pasted with glue unless he says WITH HINGES. A pasted collection is worthless—cannot remove the stamps without spoiling them—an Eastern minister told us that he bought such a collection and said, "it would make the best of preachers swear."

BUY DIRECT OF ASSEMBLERS GET REAL QUALITY & VALUE Our packet collections are mounted with hinges at our works at a convent—the work is done by sisters of the church—real experts—free of charge to you—you buy the stamps only. No other dealer can mount with hinges—pay clerk hire—and meet competition! Even if he could clerks would not do the work with care—the care of experts with years of experience. It takes 24 hours solid hard work to mount a 3000 var. collection with HINGES against 4 hours with the mucilage pot.

It's Our 3000 Variety Packet-Collection.
Worth NET $75 00.

Mounted neatly in Album with hinges. Insures safe arrival as all stamps are protected and will be found to be in good clean condition. All postage stamps except a few high grade U. S. Rev. Catalogues hundreds of dollars. A great "buy" for collectors with collections of 12,000 var. and a GOLD MINE for those with less. Big collectors have bought—have been surprised at the HIGH GRADE and found them "great" for their large collections. YOU TOO can use one!

Contains so many "good things" it's impossible to name them all in so limited a space. Glancing through one we notice Postally used—bicolored Salvador and new Uruguay. A fine lot of Fr. Col. Fr. Levant, Confederate States, and a fine lot of U. S. Civil War Rev. cataloguing up to $1.00 each. Austria Levant, Jubilees and Birthday Issues, Prince Luitpold Barvarias, Antwerp & Brussels Exhibition, 2 and 3 Fr. Parcels, old England up to 5sh values. Large bicolored Russia and Roumania, Switz. Jub. Old Turkey, Korea, Rare China, Dutch Indies, Persia, Gr. China, Kiaochoan, Canada, Prince Edw. Ind., Egypt, and Pictorial New Zealand. Many 2d, 3d, 4d, 6d and 1sh Br. Col. Many old and new postally used Argentine, Brazil, Canal Zone, Chile, Col. Rep., Costa Rica, Cuba, Ecuador, Panama and Paraguay.

Barvaria Off., Many large Bosnia, Gr. South West Africa, Italy Specials, Russia Levants, Old Saxony, Japan surch. for China and Korea, 50c Canada, Quebecs, Pictorial Newfoundland, 1sh Orange River, 1908 Brazil, etc., etc. This grand lot at only... $39.95

Proof. Wm. Shelton Nicholls, a large mfg. of steel, officing on Broadway, N. Y. City, had a half dozen dealers send 3000 variety packets for examination. He bought the one that had the best stamps in it and the one that of the highest grade with the best value for the price asked. It's not strange that he bought ours. And we made him no inducements. QUALITY TALKS!

4000 Var. Same as the 3000 var., but 1000 rarer stamps added. Only 3 for sale at the price of..... $62.45

These collections are not made up of the cheapest, but of stamps we know collectors need for their collections—that's WHY collectors having up to 12,000 var. use our packet-collections to real advantage.

When you want the best you go to Specialists. We not only sell you the best, but give you the highest QUALITY with the greatest VALUE and for the least MONEY.

ENTIRE SATISFACTION GUARANTEED OR MONEY REFUNDED.

Order the packet-collection you wish, deposit your check to cover the amount, look the lot over and if you don't find it to be all and more than we claim, return, and your check will be returned to you.

KNICK-KNACKS.

Turkey submits to the inevitable but with great restraint we shall say nothing about the "carving of Turkey."

It is now time for the parcel-post stamps to yield their position in the spot-light to the Panama-Pacific issue.

Prohibition philatelists are to petition that all the clarets be removed from the catalogues, if a rumor is to be believed.

A newspaper says that an office-boy after licking several thousand stamps went mad. His delusion must be that he is the Great White Hope.

"Hubby stays home on Saturday nights since he began to collect stamps and now I agree that philately is a grand moral agent," writes "One Who Knows."

"Pink, the color of joy, loans its haze to the stamps in my album," gurgles one of those palpitating writers. Now we know why he thinks that he has the 1861 three-cent pink.

"I have become closely attached to some of my stamps," writes a philatelic autobiographer. He should know better than to attempt to handle original gum specimens with sweaty fingers.

On some of those ten-cent Panama-Pacific stamps the legend is barely to be read and in truth they present a puzzle picture that almost defies solution. It is something to discover the Discovery.

"As I wended my way homeward with reluctant steps from the stamp meeting, I saw troops of elephants, tigers in their jungle lairs, hippos laving themselves in tropical streams, the antic zebras, the stately giraffes, the—" That is right, old Dingdong, blame it on the stamps.

Parnassus Penflip says that one of his first official acts as Postmaster-General in the Wilson cabinet will be to repeal the law prohibiting the portrait of any living celebrity on our postage stamps. We appreciate the compliment and shall do our utmost to send another payment on account of Penflip's great literary services.

THE TWO CENT STAMP.

Potatoes rise till the price gives pain. White sugar costs like the dickens now. We yearn for steak, and we yearn in vain. And milk—ah, plutocrat with a cow! But let us cheer for one bright spot That gleams the while like a signal lamp. There's one thing yet that the trusts have not—
Hurrah for the good old two cent stamp!

Hurrah for the good old, fine old two That will stick to its job for me and you And in spite of drought or of rain or snow Costs what it did just a year ago! The two cent stamp—give it glad acclaim. For the price is always just the same.

They raise our rent, and they raise each tax. They make us pay a lot more for shoes. The shirts and things that go on our backs Now cost so much they give us the blues. But this old friend is the one best bet. We buy it and have no spender's cramp. The rest increase; it's the same price yet.

Hurrah for the good old two cent stamp!

Hurrah for the fine old, good old two That we buy today as we used to do! It's the only thing in our native land That has not gone up fit to beat the band. So cheer, boys, cheer! Let us roar and ramp—
Hurrah for the good old two cent stamp!

EDITORIAL

Getting Acquainted With Them—The parcel post stamps still are the talk of the town, while by the big outside world they are not wholly ignored. The newspaper clippings on the subject of the parcel post, of a verity, are too numerous to mention and a single issue of the WEEKLY containing nothing but comment of the kind would make no impression on the aggregate sum of the publicity. Among the departmental orders attention is directed to the one informing postmasters that pending the receipt of return-receipt cards for use "in connection with insured parcels," the registry return-receipt card should be employed, with the word "Insured" stamped or written on the signature side of the card. An emergency order, dated January 8th, 1913, allows the use of either ordinary stamps or parcel post stamps on parcels addressed to foreign countries. This matter cannot be insured although it may be registered, as heretofore.

Red Cross Labels—The London newspapers have been describing labels that have been issued by the Red Cross and the proceeds of the sale of the stamps will be applied to the prosecution of relief work in the Balkans. The "design of the stamps is reproduced from a drawing by Mr. Bernard Partridge, and represents a wounded soldier tended by a figure symbolical of mercy and comfort, while a Red Cross detachment can be seen in the distance bringing help." The stamps are in three colors, green, blue and brown, respectively; the green has a value of one penny, the blue of two shillings and the brown, of five shillings. In this connection, occasion is taken to say that a correspondent describes a farthing yellow label, with King Edward National Memorial, across the top, "view in center," postally used, but of no postal validity, we need not say, that is not recalled; and any information as to the use of this label would be welcomed.

A Loss—Mr. Fred Doughty of Saginaw, Michigan, whose affiliation with philately has continued since the year 1872, passed away at his home on January 10th, 1913. Mr. Doughty's death, the result of pneumonia, was a sudden one and many a regret will be expressed by those who became acquainted with Mr. Doughty personally or by correspondence during his long and honorable philatelic career. Mr. Doughty was connected with the postal service and was a leader in the philatelic councils of his city and his great interest in philatelic literature is well remembered. He was a subscriber to the WEEKLY from the first number; and sadly, we include his name between the "turned rules" of our Roll of Honor.

On With the Chase—What has become of the old-fashioned collector who sold his collection each year at the approach of summer only to resume operations again when school "opened"? Is he in solemn session somewhere with the o. f. c. who liked to be sick so that his father would bring him home stamps from the dealer's down-town? What has become of the old-fashioned dealer who listed Straits Settlements as Singapore in his old price-lists? Is he seated behind the stove somewhere with the o. f. d. who delighted in calling the first issue of Brazil, the "bull's-eye" stamps?

Sinpod's Sayings—Sinpod the stamp sage says that he has tabbed a collector who would not take advantage of a dealer's mistake in pricing type I of the one-cent of the 1851 issue as the common type II: A collector who never made the remark while buying stamps that such-and-such a specimen would complete his set: A philatelic writer who never told his readers to study their stamps and a buyer who was never disappointed in the contents of a stamp packet.

Small Investment Required—Mr. Donald H. Graham in a letter commenting upon the possibility of making a collection at the outlay of a comparatively small amount of money shows that he developed a new field of enterprise in stamp hunting. He says: "I was a census enumerator in 1910 in a section of Oregon that was settled to some extent during the mining rush of the early sixties and while in service, I collected many entire envelopes of the early ten-cent denominations and many fine pairs and strips on covers of the 1861 to 1870 issues. Also, I had revenue stamps given me which catalogued over one hundred dollars and so it is seen that I have been fortunate in obtaining good stamps for purposes of exchange." Mr. Graham's collection has a catalogue value of $635. His unused stamps cost $37; his album, accessories and stamp papers, $25, and dealers were enriched by Mr. Graham's patronage to the extent of eight dollars. There is an offset of $15 against this $70, making the cost of the collection $55. Our correspondent scarcely could qualify as the Dealers' Delight.

Prize Awarded—No longer dare we defer the announcement of the prize winner of the great moral contest broached in the issue, editorially, of December 7th, 1912. The editor anticipated a ripple but was unprepared for the engulfing wave of interest that followed the notice; and not caring to assume the responsibility alone of making the award, he called in for conference several grave and reverend seigniors who exuded intellect. After a solemn conference, the court of last resort ruled that the solution submitted by Mr. D. F. Lybarger, Harrisburg, Pa., was entitled to the capital, even if only, prize of a one-dollar bill in mint condition. We repeat the philatelic problem of conduct that gave rise to all the excitement: "An impressionable young man calling for the first time upon a fetching young lady mentioned casually that he was a stamp-collector, whereat sweet Eglantine said that dear papah also was a collector. She called pater, who produced his album into the parlor; and in a burst of good nature, the young man got out his little duplicate book, which contained, among other stamps, a superb ninety-cent, 1869 that he had bought that very day for his own collection. Papah's face beamed and his prehensible fingers pounced upon the ninety-cent; and taking it, he said that the young man was welcome to have one of his duplicates, all common continentals, in return. What should the young man do? Smile or snort?" Old Trusty spoke again and another red-skin bit the dust. A mint one-dollar bill will be given for what the editor considers the best answer to the foregoing problem, in forty or fewer words, sent in by December 28th.—Parnassus Penflip barred from competition.

Mr. Lybarger's solution: "Juvenis non iratum est, sed ridet. The absurdity of the proposition takes him unawares; the very thought of exchanging a ninety-cent, 1869 for a common continental makes a chill run up his back. Juvenis desires to call again—the deed is done."

Philatelic Problem of Conduct—A certain eccentric and wealthy customer easily the dealer's best meal-ticket, according to the vernacular of the street, returned a defective stamp that he said that he had bought of the dealer the day before. The dealer knew absolutely that he had never had the stamp in stock, aside from having sold it, but he was sure that if he refused to replace the poor stamp with a good copy, the thin-skinned Croesus would transfer his trade and moreover circulate unpleasant tales about him. What should the dealer do? Make the exchange or hold steadfast? (No, unkind reader, the question is not: What will the dealer do?) If I only had car-fare I know where I could get a job.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8, 1913.

Until further notice either ordinary or parcel-post stamps may be accepted in payment of postage on parcels addressed to any foreign country. Such matter may be registered, as heretofore, but can not be insured.

ADVERTISING CHAT.

For some weeks we have been unable to spare the space or the time for an advertising chat but in an informal way we must make mention of a few things.

Note the Dalton Stamp Co.'s announcement on page 2, where the firm will be permanently located. This firm comes well recommended and will we trust get a goodly share of business.

Our old friend the Ararat Stamp Co. after a vacation of some months takes permanent space again on page 5 and the firm's announcements will hereafter be a regular feature. The manager, Mr. Moztian, will be found courteous and reliable.

A new firm, the S. & H. Stamp Co., of Rome, N. Y., makes its bow. W. E. Scripture, Jr., is the manager of the Company and the references submitted are of the highest order. We take pleasure in commending the S. & H. Stamp Co. for the patronage of our subscribers.

Have you noticed the quarter page advertisements we are running nowadays? Two or three nearly every week. This week the H. S. Powell Stamp Co. and M. Ohlmann are in the charmed circle, while the special number of next week will no doubt show considerable business in this direction.

INCLOSURES WITH FOURTH-CLASS

MATTER, AND CLASSIFICATIONS OF

FORMS PARTIALLY IN PRINT.

Office of Third Asst. P. M. Gen.,

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10, 1913.

Printed matter relating to an article of merchandise which it accompanies is regarded as descriptive of the article within the meaning of Section 483,

Postal Laws and Regulations, and therefore is a permissible inclosure with such article when mailed as fourth-class matter.

Printing on an article of merchandise,

A NOVEL PUBLICITY PROJECT.

By ERNEST S. JAROS, Columbus, O.,
Advertising Mgr. F. & R. Lazarus & Co.

You will doubtless be interested in knowing that one of the Christmas features of our store has been arousing a great deal of philatelic interest on the part of the boys of Columbus.

We had an "Indian Village" on our Fourth Floor—the floor that has all children's wear, and which we call "Kinderland". We also had a Santa Claus there who distributed packets of ten foreign stamps. Every boy who asked for the stamps filled out a slip giving his name, address, age and school.

Over 1,500 children responded to this—

And with this as a nucleus I am starting what I believe is an original idea for a retail store—a Boys' Stamp Exchange.

At present my plans provide that this shall be open from 2 to 5 every Saturday afternoon. Some member of the Columbus Collectors' Club will be here and will answer questions, give advice, and generally supervise the Exchange.
For the first day a letter will be sent to every boy who received one of the packet of stamps during the past month, notifying him to come and tell the other boys about it.

A small space will be used in our newspaper ads every Friday night telling of the features of the next Boys'
Exchange.

The boys are to come with their duplicates—and where they may have traded as far as possible with lads in their neighborhood, at this central point they can meet boys from other sections of the city and trade some more.

Every Saturday some gift will be given to the bona fide collectors.

For the first session, I have ordered several hundred Guatemala 1c 1902—
Nicaragua 1c 1912, unused.

These of course will not be given promiscuously—the boys who get them will have to show that they are actually collectors or want to become collectors.

At other times, we shall have other premiums, perhaps a set of some cheap stamps, perhaps a group packet—perhaps a stamp with a good catalogue value—perhaps a series of packets in every tenth one of which will be a fairly valuable stamp, a grab bag, etc.

Stamp publications will be kept on file, Scott's Catalogue will be there for consultation, and the whole session be made as interesting as possible for the boys.

In addition to this, I have arranged to use the front part of a long case for stamp exhibitions. It is splendidly lighted, has glass doors, about three feet above the floor level and about fifty feet long—altogether ideal for this purpose.

These will be sheets loaned by various collectors—either boys or grown-ups—and can be very nicely spread along the front of this case without interfering with the merchandise back of it. Such exhibitions, of course, will only be made during the hours of the Stamp Exchange.

One of the rules I have made is that nothing shall be sold on the floor.

Two things might work in profitably —various dealers might be willing to furnish gifts for certain days, to be given with any circular matter they might wish handed out with same.

And stamp papers might increase their popularity by putting the Advertising Department of this concern on their mailing list, for the Boys' Stamp Exchange.

Of course this is an experiment, but if it is successful, I see no reason why it cannot be worked in other cities by other stores—and from your point of view it cannot fail to increase very largely the interest of the boys in stamps and stamp collecting—and it would also do good service to the store (which is, I must confess, my real aim in this matter) by bringing boys there regularly.

BRAND NEW FOR THIS SEASON

We have prepared a few sets of

FILLED APPROVAL BOOKS which are of the greatest value to all first-class dealers.

The books are highly attractive and contain about 160 stamps each, with blank space to insert your name and address.

There are from 6 to 8 books in each lot ranging in value up to $7.00 or $8.00 for a single book and often more. They comprise a large variety.
Each Lot Catalogues Over $26.00

PRICE $4.00

No book contains duplicates. Not over 5 of the same stamp in one set of books. All stamps priced according to catalogue.

You can give 50 per cent, 60 per cent, or even 75 per cent discount and still double your money.

FULTON STAMP CO.,
102 West 42nd St., NEW YORK

ODDMENTS.

By FRANK E. GOODWIN.

Wm. H. Sprague, New York City,
N. Y., shows me a minor variety in the 5c 1847. It is a strong "dot" of color in the upper curve of the "S" at right top of the stamp. Mr. Sprague informs me that the variety is recognized by the experts in Gotham.

Jac. Meyer, New Orleans, La., has given me the pleasure of seeing a 3c 1861 cancelled "I'm Done." It is certainly a freak cancellation.

F. P. Tillotson, Craftsbury, Vt., has sent me a 3c green, 1873 issue, in which there is no design showing below the value label at the bottom. On the normal type the engraving shows square across. In the variety submitted the design is entirely missing below the ribbons.

While looking over several hundred 3c 1861 stamps I found one which is on true ribbed paper, exactly like the ribbed of the '70s. It has no appearance of the laid paper variety.

I have just come into possession of a pair of 1c blue 1870 in which the left stamp shows a very strong grille. The right stamp is entirely devoid of a grille. H. W. Marsten, St. Louis, informs me that he has seen a pair of 90c similarly affected. P. M. Wol-sieber, Chicago, says he has seen the same in the 7 and 15 cents, 1870.

A 24 cent red lilac, 1861, which shows double printing has been seen. It is very strong at the top, but lighter lower down.

The writer shall recommend to the
A. P. S. committee on advanced catalog that Scott's type III, in 1 cent unperforated, issue of 1851-56 be discarded, and the variety with circle cut away, corresponding with Type III, perforated, be declared to be the 1 cent, Scott's No. 42, issued unperforated. Broken circles, caused by improper rocking of the transfer roll should be declared varieties and not types.

PARCEL POST.

Return Receipt For Insured Parcels.

Office of Third Asst. P. M. Gen.,
WASHINGTON, Dec. 27, 1912.

To The Postmaster:

A supply of return-receipt cards for use in connection with insured parcels, as required by paragraph 4, Section 62, of the Parcel Post Regulations, will be furnished each postmaster as early as possible after January 1, 1913. Pending their delivery, the Registry Return-Receipt Card, Form 1548, should be used, special care being exercised in every instance to write or stamp the word "INSURED" on the signature side of the card.

WHY NOT COLLECT NEW ISSUES?

By BENEDICT PRIETH.

Collectors of current issues who do not purchase stamps as soon as they are issued, make a very grave mistake. One can never tell just when a stamp is going to be scarce. Who would have thought for instance, that the King George issues would be hard to get within a month after their appearance? And yet, here is Oswald Marsh's Weekly Circular, which offers the 4d Bahamas King George, at 60c and the 6d at $1.20, while it does not quote the 1sh at all. Verbum sap.

EXHIBITION NEWS.

75,000 Stamps Used to Adorn Furniture.

A suit of bedroom furniture, ornamented with more than 75,000 pieces of United States postage stamps, was exhibited in Horticultural Hall, Philadelphia, by Robert B. Blanken, designer and owner, in connection with a bazaar held under the auspices of the Girard College Alumni Association.

The furniture is an original and wonderful piece of workmanship. The decoration required five years. Thousands of the smallest pieces have been cut from certain parts of the stamps and woven into intricate and beautiful designs. The body of the work is in 2-cent pink, and the posts and edges are in green 1-cent. The designs have been arranged to relieve the monotony of the solid stamps, and, with a coloring of transparent varnish, the suit resembles Mosaic or Dresden china furniture.

On the top of the headboard is a fancy scroll piece, upon which is the United States shield composed of several hundred pieces. The knobs on the tops of the posts are ornamented with delicate lace-like effects. The center of the footboard on the inside bears a keystone, the insignia of the state of Pennsylvania, and on the outside, arranged within a diamond-shaped space, are American and Cuban flags crossed, with an eagle grasping a laurel wreath, and the Old Liberty Bell with the crack in it, all made with postage stamps.

The bureau contains several very beautiful designs, and is considered by some persons to be even more handsome than the bed. A lace-work of tiny arches, pink and green, are festooned around the mirror, and in the panel directly beneath it is found a wonderful design, which one will doubt being made of stamps, until it is examined closely.

Hundreds of Columbian and Pan-American Exposition and internal revenue stamps are used, in fact, some of the stamps of every series issued since 1850 are represented in the various designs.—Philadelphia No. American.

THE STATE OF NORTH BORNEO.

By C. A. HOWES.

The above title, when encountered by the philatelist, is very apt to bring but one word to mind—trash! Yet, while there is justification in some ways for such an opinion, there is still a certain amount of respectability which will serve to keep the stamps in their proper place among the world's issues. The main complaint, as is well known, has come from the fact that the London offices of the British North Borneo Company have sold the stamps in sheets at a fraction of their face value, all neatly "cancelled to order." Thus the market has been flooded with nondescripts—"used" stamps which were never used—cancelled stamps which never franked a cover or even saw the country of their supposed origin. Such practices naturally tend to discredit any stamp issues; yet the "bar" cancellation used in London serves to distinguish the "trash" from stamps properly used on correspondence in North Borneo, which bear dated postmarks of various towns, Sandakan, the capital, being the most common.

It may be interesting to American readers to note that there was once an opportunity for Uncle Sam to have obtained possession of North Borneo. A Mr. Moses, then American Consul at Brunei, on the northwest coast, obtained from the Sultan in 1865 a large concession of territory and transferred his rights to an American trading company. This company did not succeed, however, and the concession lapsed with its failure; otherwise, there might be a different story to tell. The concession was revived, however, by a syndicate of Englishmen in 1877, who applied for a royal charter. This was granted on Nov. 1, 1881, and in May, 1882, the British North Borneo Company, was formed and has since administered the territory. The original concession has been enlarged both by further acquisitions from the Sultan of Brunei, who formerly ruled all the northwest coast, and from the Sultan of Sulu, who claimed the east coast.

Being possessed of sovereign rights, the Company could, of course, issue postage stamps, and they were not long in doing so. In May, 1883, just a year after incorporation, a modest issue of one value, 2 cents, made its appearance, to be followed at the end of the year by four more—4c, 8c, 50c and $1. The three low values were of one design and labelled "postage"; the two higher values were of larger size and labelled "postage and revenue." All of them had the value expressed in Chinese characters on the right side and in Malay (using Arabic script) on the left. The stamps were engraved by Messrs. Blades, East and Blades of London, the low values being printed from electrotypes and the two higher evidently lithographed. The design shows the arms of the Company, accompanied by crest, supporters and motto on the two high values. The arms are: "in chief" a gold band charged with a red lion, being one of the lions from the English arms (though with coloring reversed) and therefore signifying "British"; beneath a sea-view with a Malay proa under sail, representing "North Borneo." The crest shows two arms, one of a European and one of a native, upholding the Company's flag—the red lion again on a yellow field. The supporters are two natives, one holding a parang or sword and the other a talabang or shield. The motto, PERGO ET PERAGO, means "I undertake and accomplish."

Other low values in the usual design were added to the set up to 1886, and a number of surcharges were deemed necessary; but in 1886 all the low values were altered to read "British North Borneo" at the top, to conform with the Company's name, and the word "postage" placed beneath the arms, while the two high values were similarly headed and two new values added in the large specialty of auction sales, and offers a very low commission rate of 10% (minimum charge, 50c per stamp). The auction sales conducted by this firm will be of the most reliable order and the class of material offered will be in keeping with the high standard that has always been maintained by the firm.

Our Gammans advertising has made many of our subscribers acquainted with this hustling dealer located at 61 Nassau St., N. Y. City. Mr. Gammans has just opened a branch office at 207 Market St., Newark, N. J. and Leslie Davenport is in charge.

The enterprise of W. C. Phillips & Co. in using the entire back page in colors is deserving of comment. It is one of the boldest strokes of advertising that the WEEKLY has had in recent months. The firm's name is so prominent that we shall not need to call special attention to its offerings.

The Mack Stamp Co. of Detroit using a small trade space for three weeks states that twenty-five replies were received and more were to be expected.

M. E. Marchena after a lengthy stay in South America has returned to New York City where he has reopened his stamp office. His advertising will be found each week on page five. The Dalton Stamp Co., a new firm will be located on page two.

Will advertisers please note that it is a profitable use of space to give the fullest description possible of every offer. Give year, denomination, color and if possible catalog value. Make it easy to locate the stamp.

ANNUAL MEET AT WASHINGTON.

By CHAS. R. MORRIS.

The Washington Philatelic Society held its annual reunion dinner in the Banquet room of the Ebbitt House, Washington, D. C., the evening of Jan. 15th. There were several novel features in connection with it including a genuine mail delivery by a genuine paid postman of Uncle Sam, with a bag full of genuine mail, stamped and canceled and addressed to the guests at table.

It was a parcel post delivery. Each packet bore a two-cent parcel delivery stamp and a one-cent parcel delivery due stamp. Inclosed in the packet was the menu card, with souvenirs of the occasion and two cigars.

The menu provided another unusual feature for the evening's gayety. On the cover was a block of four undetached stamps bearing the portrait of the president, W. A. Johnson; the name of the organization, Washington Philatelic Society and, in the stead of a valuation, the sign $1, as dues for membership. The uncanceled stamps were loosely fastened to the paper with hinges.

Philatelic vernacular was used in describing the edibles on the menu. Cape Cod oysters were designated as "split provisionals on original covers." The salmon steak was "watermarked 'Columbia river.'" Cigarettes were in "ribbed paper." Fancy cakes were delivered in "Variety Packets." Toasted crackers had "Straight edges" and all the cigars were "Postmarked Havana."

Howard C. Beck—denounced and discovered on the "nonsense page" of the menu as "Seebeck," responsible for excess of Central American stamp issues and one whom philatelists would delight to assassinate—presided as toastmaster.

Nearly all present responded in a few words to his call either with some good story or with philatelic reminiscences. Mr. Chas. R. Morris, who helped to prepare the fake stamps for the menu, presented the President with a set of "rare and expensive die proofs in various colors" of that stamp.

The Postmaster General was unable to be at the dinner owing to a reception at the White House. Director Ralph of the bureau of engraving and printing, who is the victim of a severe cold, sent word at the last moment of his inability to be the guest of the evening.

Those present were: H. M. Southgate, Judge E. P. Seeds, Auditor for the War Department; Cyrus Field Adams, Howard C. Beck, O. L. Ballard, C. W. Burnham, W. Hayden Collins, Burton G. Cowles, A. M. Caudell, H. F. Colman, John D. Cremer, H. F. Dunkhorst, J. H. Houston, Henry Hammelman, T. Russell Hungerford, William Allen Johnson, Charles R. Morris, Harry B. Mason, Dr. A. S. Mitchell, C. D. McCutchen, Alexander Scott, William Sahn, Francis B. Wheaton and Prof. Milton Whitney.

The officers are W. A. Johnson, president; F. B. Wheaton, vice president; J. Finney Engle, secretary; Rutherford Wysong, treasurer; T. R. Hungerford, sales superintendent, and H. C. Beck, superintendent of aucitons.

—A subscriber cannot understand our system in marking ahead renewals, so suppose we illustrate. The present Whole Number of the WEEKLY is 1152. If this number is on your wrapper your subscription has expired. Send us in 50c and we will date the subscription ahead fifty-two weeks, making the Whole Number 1204. Simple, isn't it?

TWO BOOKS ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY.

Scott's Catalog.—You cannot afford to collect stamps without Scott's catalog. It is the American standard and if you remit 75c to this office we shall send you a cloth bound copy. It is impossible for you to do justice to your hobby without possessing this absolutely essential guide.

Power's Book on U. S.—The price of this book on the Stamps of the United States was originally 75c but by a special arrangement with the Stanley Gibbons Co. we are permitted to sell it at 50c, and at this price it should be in the library of every philatelist. In this work on United States stamps E. B. Power has given us a compendium of valuable information of special value to every collector who specializes in the stamps of the U. S. Varieties are illustrated and shades are described by a master hand.

On orders less than 50c postage extra. Nearly all of these can be supplied in Pairs, Blocks etc. and some of the Imperforates with "lined" varieties. These are all a liberal cut under catalog value. None on approval, cash with order only and if not entirely satisfactory may be returned and amount promptly refunded. There would be no further reduction in wholesale quantities.

I am still sending out my series of "Large Selections" that are priced by 1910 and 1911 catalog. No prices have been changed. A good chance to fill up at prices much lower than such selections are generally sent out to approval buyers. Business, not Bank references required from parties not known to me.

If you are a buyer at Auction Sales you should investigate my system and request a catalog of next sale. See my ad. on this subject in another column. If your collection is for sale I can get you the most money for it in one of my sales.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding pre-cancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDREDGE, Attleboro, Mass. Specimens must accompany chronicle, with self-addressed stamped envelope for return of the same. Please note these rules.

CEYLON.—W. H. Peckitt sends us the new King George stamps previously noted.

CHINA.—A. C. Roessler has shown us the 2c Republic stamp chronicled in No. 1151 and F. B. Eldredge has shown us two covers from China having 1c, 2c and 5c Revolution stamps.

GILBERT & ELLICE ISLANDS.—W. H. Peckitt has shown us the 4d, 2sh, 2sh 6d and 5sh values announced in No. 1149.

GOLD COAST.—W. H. Peckitt sends us the 1/2d and 6d values of the King George set.

Adhesives.

1/2d green.

6d lilac and mauve.

LIBERIA.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us two new provisionals from this country, or rather varieties of stamps previously issued. Scott's Nos. 112 and 319 have been issued instead of rouletted, thus constituting a distinct variety. No. 319 has the frame in black and the centre in ultramarine.

NICARAGUA.—A. W. Dunning reports having received a Nicaragua official stamp, Scott's No. 889, with surcharge inverted.

SEYCHELLES.—The 15c value of the King George series has been shown us by W. H. Peckitt.

Adhesive.

15c ultramarine.

SIAM.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us further specimens of the new stamps. All are of the same size and design as the 2s previously announced except the 1 baht, which shows a standing figure of King Wajirawudh, three-quarters length, the design being 28x38 mm., and printed in two colors. This value is a striking stamp, the only inscriptions being the name of the country and the value in two colors. The 12s is also printed in two colors, the others being all in a single color.

Send 10 cents to

WESTERN AUSTRALIA.—W. H. Peckitt has shown us the provisional "One Penny" on 2d yellow, recently announced.

AMONG OUR FOREIGN ADVERTISERS.

Geo. C. Ginn & Co., who are with us in every special number, have a quarter page advertisement this week with a lot of interesting items. This firm puts out a beginner's packet of a very superior order and of which a specialty is made. We trust our readers will get acquainted with Mr. Ginn's way of doing business.

For nearly two years the Peckitt quarter-page advertisements have compelled the readers' attention not only to great rarities offered from the firm's purchases, but also to a new issues service that is unparalleled. The managing editor can vouch for the truth of the latter statement, inasmuch as he has patronized this service for the past eight years, and has many good investments to show as a result of his patronage.

The firm of Bridger & Kay has clinched its hold upon a leading position in the London stamp trade by its purchase of the Castle collections. This was a most important purchase and an enumeration of the many good things purchased would require columns of space. The firm's monthly "Items," a house organ of more than ordinary interest, is recommended to our readers as an excellent means of access to the firm's offerings.

Griebert's Philatelic Notes and Offers is another publication which while a house organ possesses much literary merit. Mr. Griebert is one of London's long established and favorably known dealers. He hopes to have the pleasure of attending the New York Exhibition next October.

Bright and Son have made MEKEEL'S WEEKLY one of their main stays in the publicity campaign they are waging and during the entire busy season their offerings are found on the editorial page. The Bright catalogue on entire is the only work of its kind in the English language and well worth having.

Among the English auctioneers Harmer Rooke & Co. have a leading position and the terms on which they conduct their sales are very liberal. February will be a busy month for this firm according to the list of dates posted for auction sales.

M. Giwelb is not a pretentious advertiser but his stock of rarities is all out of proportion to the space taken. Mr. Giwelb is a dealer whose acquaintance may well be cultivated.

EXHIBITION NEWS.

How many people will visit the exhibition? The figures run from fifty to one hundred thousand persons, but we think it too early to give a fair prediction, a great deal depends on the weather, torrents of rain would keep all but the most enthusiastic collectors away but the committee have selected a time, when we are likely to have nice weather in New York, the beautiful autumn days. Another matter has not yet been definitely decided, will the exhibition be kept open on Sunday? Six or seven days makes quite a difference. Then the crowd will be cut out on the opening day. Monday will be reserved for members and foreign dignitaries the crush will have to be eliminated while President Wilson is opening the exhibition. It will be a red letter day for Philately in America.

The largest donation for the week, $250.00 was received from Mr. E. M. Taylor one of the greatest of American collectors and a gentleman who can always be relied upon to come to the front when called upon. Next week we will give a picture of the beautiful building in which the great show will be held.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 331, Altadena, Calif.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

THE BEGINNERS' GUIDE.

STAMPS FOR OTHER SPECIAL PURPOSES.

We have described postage due, Official, parcels post, and other stamps issued for special purposes which form fairly extensive groups in most modern catalogues, and we come to those other special labels, mostly of lesser importance, which are represented by fewer examples.

Newspaper Tax Stamps.—Austria, Hungary, and France furnish examples of newspaper tax stamps. In the case of Austria and Hungary these labels had nothing to do with postage but simply represented a fiscal tax, collected by the postal authorities, on newspapers coming from foreign countries. It is, therefore, difficult to understand on what grounds these labels are included in a postage stamp catalogue.

The French stamps, issued in December, 1868, and used for a comparatively short period afterwards, represented a combined fiscal and postal charge. There were two values, 2c and 5c. The latter was for use in the Department of the Seine and Oise, and the 2c for all the other Departments. These stamps have a better standing as postage stamps but they are varieties the general collector can very well afford to ignore.

Private Stamps.—Spain and Portugal are the only countries contributing to this group of special labels. In the case of Portugal Scott only lists a stamp for the Red Cross Society. This is inscribed "Sociedade Portuguesa da Cruz Vermelha—Porte Franco." In addition to this Gibbons lists the private stamps issued for Civilian Rifle Clubs. These are inscribed "Uniao dos Atiradores Civis" and a different color combination was used each year from 1899 to 1910. In 1910 a special stamp was issued for the use of the Geographical Society of Lisbon and in 1911 a new edition of this appeared with the Royal crown omitted. In 1904 a special private stamp was issued for the National Aid Society for Consumptives this being inscribed "Assistencia Nacional Aos Tuberculosos." All these varieties, while interesting, can very well be left to the specialist.

In Scott's catalogue, under numbers 359 and 360 we find two labels listed as official stamps of 1875-82. These two labels are private postage stamps, the former, type 03, having been issued in 1869 (not 1875) for the benefit of Senior Castell who had written a work entitled "Cartilla Postal de Espana." This work was considered of such general utility that Senior Castell was allowed to send it through the mails without charge and he had the stamps made for "franking" it though, of course, no stamps were needed at all in reality. A label of similar character is that illustrated in Scott as type 04. This stamp was allowed to be used by Senior A. F. Duro for franking a work—Resena Historico—Descriptiva de los sellos de Correo de Espana—which he had written and which was also considered of public utility. This label was issued in 1881.

War Stamps.—A curious looking label that has puzzled numbers of collectors and which turns up fairly frequently in old collections consists of a rectangular frame containing four lines of inscription as follows:—"Exercito—Em Operacoes—contra—o Paraguay." The natural inference would be to class it as a curiosity from Paraguay unless one had some slight knowledge of the Spanish language. Scott ignores these labels but Gibbons lists them on blue, green, orange, yellow and rose papers. From this source we learn that these stamps were used by Brazilian soldiers in the war with Paraguay. The stamps were printed by a stationer in Rio de Janeiro and supplied free to the troops and the Government allowed them to frank letters to all parts of Brazil. A similar label, but with "Armada" (Navy) instead of "Exercito" (Army) at the top, was supplied to the sailors, only one variety of this is known.

Return Letter Stamps.—Gibbons lists certain labels under this heading which were used in Norway round about the period 1872. That they were stamps in the strict sense of the word seems improbable. They would appear to be labels, officially used certainly, of about the same interest as the "officially sealed" stickers used in many countries on packages accidentally broken open in the post. These particular labels are frequently met with in old collections so it's perhaps as well to describe them. They are of a particularly unpretentious appearance and consist of a frame lettered as follows:—"Som Ubesorger (or Uindlost) aabnet af Post-Departementet." The first variety, lettered "ubesorger" was used on letters which had to be returned to the senders as they could not be delivered for some reason or other. The other kind, lettered "uindlost" were used on letters which had not been called for and were returned to the senders after a certain interval. As collectible varieties the interest of these labels to the general collector is nil.

Municipal Service Stamps.—The Kingdom of Wurtemberg furnishes us with a class of labels unknown elsewhere called Municipal Service stamps. These labels are Scott's type 01 which are mixed up with the ordinary official stamps. These stamps are supplied by the Post-office to municipalities for use on their official correspondence. The 5pf stamps are for use on letters irrespective of weight, while the 10pf are for use on parcels and money orders. The inscription on the diamond-shaped band in the centre of these stamps—"Porto Pflichtige dienst sache"—means "Service matter liable to Postage."

ST. LOUIS' CELEBRATION.

A joint meeting of the St. Louis Stamp Collectors' Society, and the St. Louis Branch of the American Philatelic Society, was held on Tuesday evening, January 7th, at the Masonic Club, St. Louis. It was the occasion of the installation of new officers for the year, and was celebrated with a seven course banquet.

Twenty members were present and spent the evening in disposing of the good things upon the long table, and in extolling the glory of philately, and the greatness of St. Louis in the world of stamp collecting. S. M. Schoemann, president re-elected, acted as toastmaster. The seats of honor were assigned to F. R. Cornwall, president of the American Philatelic Society, upon his left, and Frank E. Goodwin, secretary-treasurer of the St. Louis Society, upon his right.

The ideal postage stamp, submitted by Fred J. Melville, was endorsed.

Several letters of regret and felicitations were read.

The speakers were Messrs. Cornwall, Diamant, Myers, Sisson, Borgman, Goodwin, and others.

The committee was made up of Messrs. Hunter, Collins and Eilers. The menu follows:

- Baltimore Locals
- on large piece of Original Cover.
- Side Lines
- Watermark, a la Queen's Head
- Sea-Becks from Fin-Land.
- Continental Mixture Sauce.
- Strips.
- Grilled Cow-Ry

STAMP ISSUE DESTROYED.

Thirty million two-cent Panama Canal stamps for the San Francisco Exposition have been destroyed in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing because some official in the third assistant Postmaster General's office didn't know the difference between the Gatun and the San Pedro Miguel locks of the big ditch.

It was discovered that the entire issue bearing an impressive picture of the Panama Canal locks, which follows closely the recent etching by the artist Joseph Pennell, was labeled "The Gatun Locks." Some veteran of the Panama excavation, who saw the stamps, pointed out that the picture was not of the Gatun locks on the Atlantic side of the Canal, but of the Pedro Miguel locks, just west of the Culebra Cut.

A quick inquiry showed the postal authorities their blunder, and rather than subject themselves to criticism and ridicule, they decided to destroy the entire issue. They thanked their lucky stars that none of the issue had left the Bureau of Engraving and Printing before the mistake was discovered.

The loss to the Government is not more than $2,000, as the Postoffice contract with the Bureau calls for stamps at the rate of 5½ cents per thousand. The new issue will bear the inscription "Panama Canal," without any reference to the identity of the locks. The picture will not be changed.

WANT LISTS

If you do not see what you want ask for it. We have a large stock of medium priced stamps and can usually dig up enough on a want list to make it worth while to all concerned. Prices are as low as any. We'll be glad to see your list.

APPROVAL BUSINESS

We have always made a specialty of approvals, believing that most collectors prefer to see before buying. No firm is better equipped to handle approval trade than we are. Our 60% books contain a good variety of desirable stamps. The 50% books, a nice line of stamps one country etc. to a book. Our net priced books and albums offer you an enormous variety at prices that will average about half list in most cases. We fill "holes" in some of the largest collections in America from these books. If you are a general collector our approval dept. is worth your careful investigation.

COLLECTIONS ON APPROVAL

O. K. for "Mr. Busy Man." Compare with your collection page for page. Scott's International Albums divided into 10 sections, and priced net, with an extra 10% discount on purchases of $25 or more. Catalog value of the set is around $10,000 and they are fine for those who can find nothing in ordinary lots. Sent any reliable person ready to spend at least $10 on a book, for prompt returns. Contents and value of books change but list below gives value as near as possible.

SPECIALIZED UNITED STATES.

By FRANK E. GOODWIN.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

1 Cent, Issue of 1870-79.

There is a wonderful field for research by the specialist in the various stamps of the issue of 1870-79. A great deal of this study will come into the 1 cent stamp, and long before the student has exhausted the possibilities which lie in this stamp he will have accumulated many shades, several paper varieties, one or two plate differences and other things to make quite a respectable collection in itself. Few stamps of the United States issues are more prolific in shades, many of which are most pronounced.

The 1 cent was the third of the lot to be issued—being preceded by the 3 and 2 cents. The issue was first announced in September, 1869, but the denomination now in process of study did not put in its appearance until sometime in May.

Contrary to catalog lore, and almost universal belief, the presence of the grille upon the stamp does not necessarily mean that it was printed in 1870, nor does the absence of the grille prove that it was not printed before 1871. Truth is the stamps were issued in 1870 and in 1871, too, with and without grilles.

Proof of this is found in the case of the 7 cents stamp of this issue, which was not issued until about a year after the others were produced. But, as the grilles stamps are first in catalog number, I will consider them before taking up the so-called 1871 variety.

The shades, according to Mr. Luff, are: pale ultramarine, ultramarine, bright ultramarine, deep ultramarine and dark ultramarine.

The sizes of grilles, so far as known are:

Size.	Points.
10 x 12 1/2	13x16
10 x 12	13x15
9 x 12	12x15
9 x 11	12x14
8 1/2 x 12 1/2	11x16
8 1/2 x 11	11x14
8 1/2 x 10 1/2	11x13
8 1/2 x 9	11x11
8 x 10 1/2	10x13

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

The end-roller grille exists in this denomination, but is scarce. This form of grille shows continuously from top to bottom. It was caused by the sheet feeding crookedly into the grille rollers, thereby causing the outside stamp to run under the continuous grille on the end of the roll, which served as feed. The continuous grille was supposed to show only on the margin, and this was torn off before the stamps were issued to the postmasters. I have never seen an end-roller grille which was perfectly straight upon the stamp.

The stamps were printed in sheets of 200, divided into two panes. No record is known to exist which shows the plate numbers of the grilles stamps. There are true double grilles found, and "split grilles" are not uncommon.

The stamp without grille is most common. Mr. Luff classifies the shades in the stamps as follows: Pale ultramarine ultramarine, dark ultramarine, bright ultramarine, gray blue, dull blue, chalky blue. No variety has been chronicled—which I am inclined to doubt, as I shall try to prove at the close of this series.

The 1870-71-72 varieties were printed from plates 16, 17, 50, 51, 52, 53.

During the time which elapsed between April, 1870 and April, 1873, inclusive, there were issued to the government 138,091,700 stamps.

In the latter part of 1872 the government entered into a new contract for the work of making stamps. The lowest bidders were the Continental Bank Note Co. The transfer became effective May 1, 1873. The Continental Company took over the dies, etc., and probably some of the plates belonging to the predecessors. That the old plates were not generally used by the successful bidders is shown by the fact that Plate Number 16 seems to have been the only one recorded by both concerns as having been employed.

New plates were made from the old dies, and to distinguish the work of the Continental Bank Note Co. from the National Bank Note Co., the former concern added secret marks to the dies before making the plates. The mark, in this denomination, is a dash of color through the first pearl to the left of the figure "1". Leading authorities declare that this was a curved dash, but careful examination will show that it is, usually, straight and thicker at one end than the other.

Mr. Luff classifies the shades printed as: Pale ultramarine, ultramarine, dark ultramarine, pale dull blue, dull blue, chalky blue, pale gray blue, gray blue, sky blue and bright blue.

Thirty plates were used, numbered as follows: 12, 13, 16, 26, 125, 126, 127, 128, 142, 143, 144, 146, 147, 156, 157, 158, 159, 160, 181, 182, 229, 230, 294, 295, 298, 299, 300, 301, 307, 308.

There were issued to the government by the engravers, stamps to the number of 448,290,000 from May 1, 1873 to May 1, 1876. During the fiscal year, ending May 1, 1877 the issue was 141,465,600; for 1878, 166, 734; for 1879, 180,030,400.

The grilled stamps made by the Continental Bank Note Co. were made as evidence in a patent suit, it is said, and not as an experiment, or for postal use. The grille has not the same characteristics of the other grille, being made up of a series of squares, without the cross lines through each square. The grilles measure 8x9 1/2 millimeters, and have 10x12 points.

A patented variety, of which there were 10,000 printed, was the Fletcher Cog Wheel Punch, designed to prevent cleaning. The stamps were printed upon double paper, the face of which was punched with eight "U" shaped cuts, the ends of the "U" facing in toward the center.

The issue was printed on chemical papers, which were supposed to be cancelled by an acid, thus changing the color and preventing the stamps being used a second time. This denomination was also printed upon double paper, and is considered a very desirable stamp.

EXHIBITION NEWS.

The Great Stamp Exhibition will open nine months from now and it is very important that you get your collection in shape to exhibit. Some people have the idea that this is a rich man's show, but a study of the prospectus will reveal that prizes are offered to suit all sorts and conditions of collectors' grand accumulations of rarities, highly specialized countries, stamp studies and general collections. We hope to see plenty of competition in all these classes. The prospectus shows that there will be awarded four (4) gold medals, forty-eight (48) silver medals, forty-eight (48) bronze medals, sixteen (16) silver cups and one very valuable bronze trophy. Heretofore, I have been urging you to become members ($1.00) or to make donations according to your means, for large sums of money must be expended to carry out the plans of the committee in charge, but my present object is to induce you to get your collection in order, so as to be ready to exhibit when the time comes. Accompanying this bulletin will be found a view of the Exhibition building 25-33 West 39th St., New York City, and in a future number will be given a picture of the lower hall and diagrams of the various exhibition rooms. It will be a grand sight, take a look at the building when in New York. Ask your friends what they are doing to help it along, form clubs to attend the show in a body. Every town in the United States should have a club of from three to fifty members. One gentleman is coming ten thousand miles to take in the marvelous show. Every notable in New York will be on hand to greet their fellow collectors from other cities.

The prospectus of the 1913 Exhibition is now ready for distribution. The Secretary, Mr. John A. Klemann, 179 Broadway, New York, will be pleased to send copies to any applicant.

The Philatelic Gazette and the New England Stamp Company have both donated cups to be competed for. The Oestarröichischer Briefmarken Haendler Verein has donated a gold medal and the Ober Elsaessischer Philatelisten Club a silver gilt medal for the same purpose.

On Feb. 4, 1879, a contract was entered into with the American Bank Note Co., of New York. This company had consolidated with the Continental Bank Note Co., using the former name. The old plates, used by the Continental Company were employed at first, and the stamps were printed upon a soft, porous paper.

The shades are given as being: Pale bright blue, bright blue, deep bright blue, sky blue, blue, dark blue, gray blue, dull blue, dark ultramarine. The plate of the Continental Bank Note Co., used by the American Bank Note Co. was number 301. New plates were later made with the following numbers: 319, 320, 327, 328, 336, 337, 344, 353, 354, 355, 356.

The next move on the philatelic checker-board was the issuance of the re-engraved 1 cent stamp, which will not be studied until the close of this issue.

In 1875 a "Special Printing" of this, and the entire series of stamps was ordered by the postoffice authorities. These were placed on sale on May 1, 1875, but, owing to the stamps being current and identical with those then in use there was no demand for them. These "Special Printings" were made by the Continental Bank Note Co. from their own plates, and, of course, contain the secret mark. It is difficult, indeed, to distinguish the "Special Printing" from the regular stamp. The special was printed upon the thin, very white paper. The printing is, perhaps a bit clearer, and probably the stamp was printed from carefully cleaned plates. This stamp very closely resembles a finished proof.

The number of plate from which the special printing was made is not known. The color is designated as bright ultramarine. There were 10,000 copies of the stamp made in 1875, and in 1880 an additional 500 stamps were ordered, from the American Bank Note Company. The purpose of the latter is not known. In all there were 10,500 specially printed stamps made, and on July 16, 1884, the postoffice department reported 10,112 on hand, showing that 388 of these had been sold. This will account for the reason why copies are not usually found in 100 variety packets.

When bids for new contract were advertised for, in 1889, sample stamps were furnished to bidders, to show color requisites. These "samples" were overprinted "Sample" and "Sample A"; the color of the 1 cent was ultramarine blue.

Proofs of the stamp are desirable for the specialist. Those on cardboard are much more common than those on India paper.

Powerful Publicity Proposition.

In addition to our regular subscription list of practically 7,000 subscribers we shall add from two to three thousand more circulation, making a total edition of Over 9000 to be Issued.

How do we get this extra circulation? This is a natural query. We do not get it from any set of cards representing collectors of by-gone days nor do we pick out Tom, Dick or Harry as possible stamp collectors and mail them sample copies. Our method is to purchase stamp orders received in recent months by the big dealers. We have already 1,200 promised by the Hussman Stamp Co., as will be seen by the following:—

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 18, 1913.

DEAR SIR,

We are sending you by express to-day 900 orders received since Sept. 1, and we can promise you about 300 more by Feb. 10, when we will make a second shipment.

Respectfully yours,

C. E. HUSSMAN STAMP CO.

We shall obtain further orders of this kind so that each one of the 9,000 papers will go to a live collector.

Circulation Building.

It is not an easy thing to build a subscription list. If you think so, try it. On second thought, don't try it unless you are prepared to pay for your experience in hard work, knocks and the coin of the realm. The devoted friendship of our mailing list is a splendid asset that we have acquired after years of steady, persistent effort and no philatelic journal in the world can boast a more loyal clientele.

Our Satisfied Patrons.

Here is an extract from a letter from Chas. A. Townsend:—

"That advertisement of mine was quite a disappointment. In it I appealed to boys and it should have been answered by boys, for surely there are plenty of them among your readers. Instead, two-thirds of my sales were to grown-up collectors, with their large collections, or to U. S. specialists. Several wanted from ten to twenty-five sets, while one wanted a price on my whole stock. Direct returns paid me all right, but it overshot the mark. Had the N. E. Stamp Co., Colman, or Eaton used that same advertisement they could easily have disposed of $200 worth of good stuff."

H. Leonard, Jacksonville, Fla., writes us:—"Although you hid my Barbados advertisement away down on the sixth page, I have already received more orders than I can fill. From my St. Lucia advertisement I received twenty-one orders. The WEEKLY looks good."

And we could quote many other statements of a similar character.

Have Copy in Feb. 15.

We would like to know how much space you can use by return mail, and have your copy reach us not later than Feb. 15. Bear in mind that our advertising rates are the cheapest in the world and we will prove our case to any advertiser.

LARGE STAMP COLLECTION WANTED FOR CASH

We desire to purchase for cash a large collection of stamps in fine condition, catalogued at from $10,000 to $20,000. This collection we need for our counter trade during the process of remounting now going on in the office. It is not an auction proposition. Parties having a really fine collection which they wish turned into immediate cash, should advise us promptly and if possible submit the collection right away.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Chas. J. Geyer cites several examples of U. S. stamps used in payment of postage due. These are quite common judging from the experiences of correspondents.

—Herman Boers, C. M. Breder, A. Bergbom, Jr., and others have sent us clippings giving the particulars of a long continued thievery of unused postage stamps in which New York stamp brokers are represented as having figured. We are pleased to note that no regular stamp dealers are implicated in the case. It is claimed that stamps have been purchased from boys at from ten to fifty cents upon the dollar and resold to business houses at prices ranging from ninety to ninety-nine cents.

—C. F. Richards has an article in the Philatelic Gazette relating to the Transvaal "remainders," the gist of which is that these remainders were made for Mirza Hadi of Paris and the distributing dealer is H. O. Marimian of the same city. Mr. Richards feels that the above facts should be made known to collectors generally. It will be remembered that the "remainders" of the Transvaal issues of 1885, 1894-5-6 were privately reprinted, surcharged and obliterated.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from Hugo Kuentler (7), Edgar S. Bissinger, J. H. Massey (2), C. M. Breder, J. E. Husson, H. S. Williams (2), Chas. H. Smith, Robert Bruce (2), Ralph Day, Herman W. Boers (3), Geo. Hoopoe, Jr., F. J. Parater, Jr. (2), Ben Delovage, F. C. Threlfall, Elbert Charman.

—"I am starting a collection of parcel post stamps only, suggested by Bertram Poole's splendid articles upon the same."

—ARTHUR W. LINE.

—We are indebted to Geo. B. Graham, Buffalo, N. Y., for an office calendar of more than ordinary merit.

—W. F. Slusser of Fishers Island, N. Y., has removed to Key West Barracks, Fla., where he may be addressed in the

—"The picture on the 10-cent Parcel Post stamp is taken from the painting of the North German Lloyd Express Steamship Kronprinz Wilhelm entering New York Harbor with H. R. H. Prince Henry on board, Feb. 1902."—CHAS. K. B. NEVIN.

—"How many of your readers have made a careful examination of the new ten cent stamp of the San Francisco Commemorative issue? I have examined several copies with quite a powerful glass and it was extremely difficult even with that aid to read the inscription on the stamp. My eyes are not sharp enough to make anything at all out of the design on the stamp. Like all the stamps of that character, in which the mistake is made of trying to get too much into too small a space, it seems to me that this is about the worst one, for it is merely a jumble of color that is ridiculous. It is to be hoped that the Government will recall this stamp immediately and replace it with something that may be well enough executed to convey something to the mind and the eye."—C. B. BOSTWICK.

—"The 'postage and revenue' controversy has worried collectors in England, and its translation here has not added to the harmony of nations. An unused 'postage and revenue' stamp is exactly as designated,—either a postage stamp or a revenue stamp: use alone places it finally. So say the gods!"—EDWIN B. HILL.

GOODWIN'S HANDBOOKS

We are preparing to issue a series of Handbooks on U. S. Postage Stamps by Mr. Frank E. Goodwin of St. Louis. The books will be similar in size and get-the-Melville books. One book will be devoted to each issue of stamps. All of the new information which has been produced by Mr. Goodwin's current articles in Mekeels Weekly will be included therein. The first book will tell of the making of U. S. Stamps the entire second book will be on the 1847 issue, and so on, thru the series. We want 250 more pledges, $5 MONEY now, to help guarantee expenses. Send yours and get all your friends to do the same. Address the publishers GEORGE W. LINN COMPANY, COLUMBUS, OHIO.

Stamp Co. and Whitfield King & Co. have shown us specimens of these stamps, which show a number of minor varieties, due to imperfect printing, or errors in spelling. The New England Stamp Co. also shows us a new printing of the 10 lepta stamp of 1911, apparently a lithographed copy of the original engraved design. It is printed on a very smooth, possibly a coated paper, the size of the design being slightly larger than the original. This new stamp has received the surcharge noted above, signifying "Grecian Administration." Samos has a set of its own also, locally printed, showing a map of the Island, and inscriptions and values in Greek characters. A permanent set has been ordered from Athens, and will appear shortly.

GRENADA.—We are indebted to William L. Aldrich and Co. for a specimen of the new 3d stamp from this Colony. Unlike the Sierra Leone 3d, recently chronicled the designers of the Grenada stamp before have not departed from the recent size of Colonial issues but in other ways have made a radical departure from the conventional design so long familiar in De La Rue stamps. The portrait used is the later photograph of large size, nearly filling the oval. The crown is placed entirely outside the oval, and is flanked on either side by a large colorless tablet with the value "3d" in colored letters, very large and distinct, yet harmonious with the balance of the design. "Grenada" runs across the bottom of the stamp. At the sides of the portrait are panels, curved to conform to the oval, with pretty foliated ornaments on a colored ground, with "Postage," "Revenue" at the bottom in small letters. The stamp is printed on multiple paper and perforated 14.

GIBRALTAR.—Albert E. Sanford has shown us a cover franked by a 1d King Edward stamp of Great Britain, but postmarked "Gibraltar—21 de 12—Paquebot." Can anyone tell us what use is here signified?

HONG KONG.—Lewis A. McArthur shows us the 4c value of the new King George stamps recently chronicled, and reports having also seen the 2c. Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the 1c value. Mr. McArthur says late mails from the Orient show that the 10c blue has not been changed as yet, the King Edward stamp being still in use.

INDIA.—Gwalior.—W. T. Wilson has shown us five varieties of the King George Indian stamps surcharged "Gwalior" and Hindi characters for use in this convention state. This printing was made from the condemned dies, and therefore was a very small one. The next printing is likely to be from the MAILING OF FOURTH-CLASS MATTER WITHOUT STAMPS AFFIXED.

Office of Third Asst. P. M. Gen. WASHINGTON, Jan. 24, 1913.

The parcel-post law does not affect the privilege of mailing parcels of fourth-class matter in quantities of not less than 2,000 identical pieces without postage stamps affixed under the provisions of Section 483 1/2, Postal Laws and Regulations. Postmasters will, therefore, continue to accept mailings of such matter without stamps affixed under the provisions of the section mentioned, the required postage at the rates set forth in Section 3, Parcel Post Regulations, being prepaid in money.

Postmasters who have not been authorized to accept mailings of third or fourth class matter without stamps affixed, under the provisions of Section 483 1/2, Postal Laws and Regulations, must not be so without first obtaining authority therefor, as required by paragraph 2 of that section.

JAMES J. BRITT,
Third Asst. P. M. Gen.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 331, Altadena, Calif.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

THE BEGINNERS' GUIDE.

Consular Post Offices.—Remark has frequently been made by the uninitiated regarding the seeming absurdity in the postal rates which allows letters addressed to Shanghai to travel at the domestic rate of 2c while those sent to other parts of China are charged at the rate of 5c each. The reason is that a Post-office is maintained at the United States Consular Office at Shanghai and as this is, theoretically at any rate, an American Post-office all mail to and from that office comes under the domestic tariff. All letters, etc., posted from the Shanghai office bear ordinary United States stamps.

France, Great Britain, Russia, Germany and Japan also operate Consular Post-offices at the different China Treaty Ports. In the case of Great Britain these offices are under the jurisdiction of Hong Kong and the postage stamps of that Colony are used. The offices maintained by Germany, Japan and Russia are supplied with the stamps of those countries suitably overprinted to indicate their special use. The French offices are supplied with the issues of Indo-China overprinted with name "Chine" and native characters while each of the offices is also supplied with an individual set.

The same thing will be found in connection with the Levant, most of the European Powers maintaining Consular Post-offices at the more important centres. As a rule specially overprinted stamps are supplied for general use by each of the countries concerned but of late years Italy and Russia have supplied separate series for each of the towns in which they maintain offices.

Postmasters' Stamps.—These are stamps and envelopes prepared for and issued by the Postmasters of various cities in the United States in 1845-46 to facilitate the prepayment of postage previous to the introduction of the general Governmental issues. Outside the United States we find but one solitary representative of this class of special stamps—a 1d label issued by the Postmaster of Hamilton, Bermuda, in 1848.

Carriers' Stamps.—This is another class of special stamps monopolized by the United States. These stamps were used to defray the postage on letters carried from a post-office to an addressee residing in the district served by that particular post-office. They were in use as early as 1842 and as late as 1858—a period when ordinary postage only defrayed the carriage of mail from one post-office to another. Most of these services were of a semi-official nature and the fee charged was rarely higher than 2c.

Local Stamps.—Local stamps are those available for use in a circumscribed area and fall into two main divisions—government and private locals. Government locals are included in most general catalogues, private locals are not, and though some in the latter class are equally as interesting as those in the former their omission from the catalogues militates against their general collection. Among Government locals we find such labels as the 1c and 3c issued by the Spanish government in 1853 for use within the city of Madrid, the Inter-island stamps of Hawaii, and the stamps provisionally used by various departments of Peru during the war with Chili.

Of private locals those of the United States and China are best known for the simple reason that these are listed in Scott's local catalogue. There are many others such as the interesting rural stamps of Russia and the equally uninteresting rubbish issued in Germany and Switzerland solely for the exploitation of stamp collectors.

Department Stamps.—These, also, are stamps of a local nature for they only have franking power within certain territorial limits. The Republic of Colombia furnishes the most obvious example. Here practically every department has a special issue of stamps in addition to the general issue of the republican stamps. These department stamps are not good for international postage though I am not certain that their use is confined strictly within the limits of the department whose name they bear.

Another well-known instance occurs in the issues of Nicaragua where specially overprinted stamps are used in the Bluefields district of the Province of Yelaya. The reason given for this overprinting is that the currency in this district is silver, worth about 50c to the peso, instead of the paper currency used elsewhere in Nicaragua and which is only worth half as much.

War Tax Stamps.—Most collectors are familiar with the Spanish stamps inscribed "Impuesto de Guerra." These are listed in Gibbons under the caption "War tax stamps" and, we read, "These stamps were issued to collect a fee in addition to the ordinary postal rate." It will thus be seen that they are not postage stamps at all inasmuch as they did not pay postage but represented a transitory tax levied on letters and stamped papers and documents. The first of these war tax labels was issued in 1874 to help pay the expenses incurred by the Carlist insurrection while the last was issued in 1898-99 to help pay for the war in Cuba and the Philippine Islands.

Telegraph Stamps.—These are stamps issued solely for the prepayment of charges on telegraphic messages and their inclusion in a postage stamp catalogue is entirely indefensible.

Revenue Stamps.—To these the same remarks apply for, though interesting, their collection and study is a branch quite distinct from the collection of postage stamps.

Stamped Stationery.—Under this heading all envelope, postcard, wrapper, and letter-card stamps may be included. Though these are certainly postage stamps proper their study and collection is generally treated as a branch quite separate from adhesives.

GREAT MYSTERY SOLVED.

(From W. P. S. Reunion Dinner Menu.)

Some months ago a letter arrived at the Washington postoffice addressed to "Mr Hedgcok Wash." The employees at the postoffice, unable to find any such name in the city directory, sent the letter to the Dead Letter Office. After being subjected to the searching scrutiny of several of the office's experts it was, as a last resort, submitted to the famous blind clerk, who at once recognized the peculiar style of writing and spelling, and determined that the letter was intended for the Hon. Frank Hitchcock, Postmaster General.

That our readers may appreciate the puzzles which the Dead Letter Office is sometimes called upon to solve and as some of you may have seen letters, similar to the one in question, we append a copy of it:

Sends Selections of Stamps to all Members of American Philatelic Societies and to all persons giving good references, of any used or unused stamps of Turkey, Foreign Offices in Turkey and the Balkans, in nice and in every respect genuine copies. Owing to the latter quality these stamps are much in demand and he recommends to all philatelists to complete their collections of these countries as soon as possible.

KNICK-KNACKS.

The cold without gives a zest to stamps within.

As the days begin to lengthen, philatelic zeal begins to strengthen.

Everybody likes the parcel post and its stamps except the postman.

Geographers are interested to learn that since the advent of the parcel post, there are eight zones.

An auction catalogue describes under Cape of Good Hope, the shilling emerald as a gem, just as if everybody did not know it.

It pays to discover the Pacific. Balboa is now on the 1c Panama and a 1c, United States. It is the same Balboa on both stamps only on the U. S., his willow plumes excite much feminine interest.

"I owe a debt to philately, one that I long to pay, but how, it puzzles me to say," says one of those pulsating quillmen. If he refers to the five that he borrowed from us two years ago, he knows our address.

No one will say that the compositor who made it "The Moore Essays for United States Postage Stamps" in the American Philatelist is not intelligent; the real title of the pamphlet is "More Essays for United States Postage Stamps."

"Mint Gum" is being heavily advertised and I should not be surprised if this new chewing-gum would have a large sale to philatelists," writes "A Friend." Any man who says such things is no friend to us.

"Did you ever take a trip to the Orient via your stamps? Have you coursed to the Occident and lifted the veil of its splendors? Have you penetrated to the icy fastnesses of the north, where old Boreas' sceptre is an icicle?" asks one of the swan's-down school of writers. He has us going south.

"What becomes of the old printer when he becomes too decrepit to stand at the case? When his poor, tired brain refuses to respond and he cannot set up the simplest line without mistakes? Where does he go?" thunders a platform orator. He goes to one of those countries and gets a job setting up the surcharges.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT TO ALL TWENTIETH CENTURY COLLECTORS

One of the finest collections of the stamps issued between 1901 and 1908 we have ever seen, will be sold by us at Auction here in BOSTON, ON FEBRUARY 21.

The collection is all unused and in just that pink of condition you'd naturally expect it to be. It is about seven-eighths complete. Being weak only in the French Colonies, and a few countries like Persia and Colombia. Catalogues dividing it into 840 lots are now ready to be mailed to any address on receipt of a simple request. YOU cannot afford to miss it, for it's 10 to 1 it contains the very stamp you're looking for. It will be the event of the season in BOSTON, so plan to attend it—if you are near enough.

WATCH Out for Our MARCH Sales—they'll be doubly interesting.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—G. B. Newton Jr. submits a piece of an original cover showing a two-cent parcel post stamp with postmark "Ridley Park, Pa., Jan. 1, 1912," instead of 1913. Mr. Newton adds that all mail sent from the Ridley Park post office on Jan. 1 and 2 was dated 1912.

—The Hussman Stamp Co., St. Louis Mo. would like to know whether any of their dealer friends are able to locate J. A. Muchmore, at one time of Enid, Okla., and possibly residing there yet, so far as their knowledge goes. Write the Company at St. Louis if able to render any assistance.

—The George E. Haynes Stamp Co. wishes us to state that the purchase of the Haynes-Liberia auction business by Mr. Whittaker has no connection with the business conducted by the firm first mentioned.

—W. S. Aldrich reports the 1c parcel post precancelled "Racine, Wis." It was used by a paint manufacturing house. The type is the same as that used on the regular issue, so that two or parts of two cancellations appear on each stamp.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from Russell L. Stultz (4), Geo. H. Scharr, F. C. DePuy (5), A. McKechie, John F. Fortune (2), Hugo Kuenstler (9), Geo. W. Schaefer (6), Edgar S. Bissinger, Leslie Davenport (2), R. E. Jessup, James Lewis Howe.

—The catalog of the Klein sale to be held Feb. 19 lists a very fine specialized collection of Panamas, and collectors interested in this country should not neglect to procure a catalog.

—The Australian Stamp Journal announces that tenders are invited for the remainders of the New Hebrides stamps, the time limit being fixed for March 1, 1913. The stock consists of 140,000 1d and 94,000 2d. These stamps were used for the conveyance of letters on steamers owned by the Australian-New Hebrides Co. throughout the islands from 1897 to 1900, when their use was abandoned. It is reported that they were used in world-wide correspondence. An interesting thing about these two stamps is that they were designed by the well-known philatelists A. F. Bassett-Hull.

—Will Fred R. Crocker, 50 Main St., send his address to this office. With our mailing list divided and subdivided into states, routes, cities and towns it is a difficult task locating anyone. Will persons changing their address also note this fact?

—The Watervliet Stamp Co. adds a novelty to our postage due chronicle. The firm notes the arrival of a letter upon which an ordinary 1c stamp was attached to make up a 4c rate. The stamp was cancelled by a lead pencil marking.

—If you are not filing your issues of THE WEEKLY send your copy of Jan. 18 to this office and receive the thanks of the editor.

—If the whole number on your wrapper is under 1154 it shows that your subscription has expired. Remit 50c and we will add 52 to your whole number. This is a simple form of book-keeping.

—Gordon B. Ross sends us a letter from a correspondent at Shanghai, China, which contains the following information concerning the reception of the two commemorative issues:—"There was such a rush that one could hardly stand on his feet, struggling as one among mad people to buy the stamps. Only a week since the sale commenced and even now none can be purchased, the stamps being taken up like 'hot cakes' as you Americans say."

REMITTANCES IN STAMPS.

Due to the unearthing of the great frauds in N. Y. City in connection with stamp brokerage we find it exceedingly difficult to cash stamps except at a large discount from face value. Subscribers will please govern themselves accordingly and when renewing for a year remit by express or money order or by check. An easy way will be to send a dollar bill for two years.

This word also applies to advertisers who have been remitting in stamps.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

FOUR-CENT PARCEL POST DESIGN.

Two weeks ago we indicated where the design of the 10c parcel post originated, and a clipping from R. E. Jessup gives the particulars in connection with the design of the 4c.

It is claimed that this design is a representation of the horse and mail wagon of W. H. Williams, a rural route carrier of Schuyler, Nebr. Mr. Williams' brother is an employee of the P. O. Department at Washington and it is said that the Department in search of a design for the 4-cent stamp accepted the picture submitted out of some three hundred considered.

PHILADELPHIA STAMP COMPANY,

1904 CHESTNUT STREET, PERCIVAL FARRISH, PRESIDENT PHILADELPHIA, PA.

THE 1913 EXHIBITION AT N. Y. CITY.

RULES AND REGULATIONS.

(1) All exhibits entered for competition must be bona fide the property of the Exhibitor. Joint collections must be shown in joint names, but no combination of collections or parts of collections, the property of two or more owners, made for the purpose of the Exhibition, will be admitted for competition.
Exhibitors in class K must, if called upon to do so, furnish evidence of age which shall be satisfactory to the Executive Committee.

(2) Each exhibit intended for competition must be entered in the class appropriate to it. Exhibits which the owners may desire to enter "not for competition" will be so marked and shown in their proper classes.

(3) All exhibits of stamps, except general collections, must be mounted on loose sheets or cards. No special size is stipulated but the sizes usual in blank albums are recommended. The use of sheets of unusual or irregular sizes which do not fit the cases may subject the exhibitor to an extra charge for wasted space. Exhibitors in these classes will be permitted to display a portion in the cases and the balance may be shown in volumes at a charge of $1.00 per volume, or on loose sheets at a charge of $1.00 for every fifty sheets.

(4) Exhibitors will be charged for space occupied as follows: Loose sheets or cards, per square foot 10c (minimum charge $1.00) Albums shown in classes
H. I. and J., $2.50 per volume. Albums shown in class K, $1.00 per volume.
The charge for space will be payable by the Exhibitor before or at the time of sending in his exhibit.

(5) Exhibits may be insured independently by the Exhibitor, or they may be insured through the Executive Committee, which has arranged insurance at low rates against fire, theft, burglary and the risks of transportation, from the time the property is shipped for exhibit and in transit from any part of the world until returned to the original shipper. Full particulars as to rates, etc., may be had on application to the Secretary. The charge for insurance, if any be desired, will be payable by the Exhibitor at the time of sending in his exhibit.

(6) Exhibits must be forwarded and returned at the expense of the owner, both for transportation and insurance.
Transmission will, in all cases, be at the sole risk of the owner. All exhibits will be returned, as soon after the close of the Exhibition as possible, in the manner directed by their owners.

(7) Notice of the nature and extent of intended exhibits, together with the value for insurance, if any, should be sent, on the accompanying blank, to the Secretary, at the earliest possible date but not later than September 1st, 1913.

(8) Exhibitors are requested to send brief descriptions of the important items in their exhibits for inclusion in the Official Catalogue. Such descriptions may be altered, modified or omitted at the discretion of the Executive Committee. To facilitate the compilation of the Catalogue it is desired that descriptions of exhibits be sent in as early as possible, but not later than September 15th, 1913. Descriptions arriving after that date cannot, in all probability, be entered in the Catalogue.

(9) Exhibits must be delivered between October 11th and 22nd, 1913 to the Association for Stamp Exhibitions, in care of Mr. Thomas L. Wells, Manhattan Storage & Warehouse Co., 42nd Street and Lexington Avenue, New York.

(10) The Executive Committee reserves the right to refuse any exhibit or any part of an exhibit, without assigning any reason for such refusal. In the event of there being insufficient space available for displaying the whole of an exhibit, the Executive Committee reserves the right to show only such part of the exhibit as it may select.

(11) Albums of stamps will be shown open at such pages as seem interesting to the Executive Committee.
These pages will be varied from time to time during the Exhibition. Such albums will be shown in cases and may not be inspected, except by the judges, without the permission of the owner, and then only in the presence of the owner or of a member of the Committee.

(12) Exhibitors who desire to sell their exhibits may have the same entered upon a sale register, to be kept by the Secretary. Such exhibits will be marked with a red seal. No price or other notification of sale may be affixed to any exhibit. Should a sale be made the price will be payable to the Hon.
Treasurer, Mr. J. W. Scott, 36 John St., New York, who will account to the owner for the purchase money, after deducting 2 1/2% to be applied toward the general expenses of the Exhibition.

(13) No exhibit may be removed prior to the close of the Exhibition.

(14) The Judges will be appointed by the Executive Committee and their decision will, in all cases, be final. They shall have power to withhold any award where, in their opinion, there is insufficient competition or other reason which makes it seem desirable to do so; and they may, with the approval of the Executive Committee, increase the number of awards where the competition is heavy. The Judges will be requested to base their awards on a consideration of the following qualifications: Completeness, Rarity, Philatelic Knowledge and Research, Condition, Arrangement and Neatness.

(15) No exhibit by any of the Judges may be entered for competition.

(16) No single exhibit may be entered in more than one class or may receive more than one award. This does not apply to the Grand Prize or the Visitors' Cup which are not to be regarded as awards to be competed for but as honorariums to be presented for supreme merit. There is, however, no limit to the number of exhibits a collector may enter in one or more classes.

(17) All questions that may arise concerning the Exhibition and not provided for by these rules and regulations

DEATH OF I. A. MEKEEL.

A brief telegram just as we go to press brings the sad news that Mr. Mekeel whom we have known for years as an associate in business, has passed away. Until within a few days president of the Mekeel-Severn-Wylie Co., Mr. Mekeel died Monday, Feb. 3, after a brief illness of only a week. A great host of friends and acquaintances will voice with us the grief we feel in the early passing on of one who was recognized as a master mind. None have come in contact with him but have been impressed with his great business capacity and he has left behind him striking examples of his genius. This publication was one of his earlier business ventures and though its management had been given to other hands his interest in it was ever alert. The funeral services took place Wednesday, Feb. 5 from his late residence, Montclair, N. J. The managing editor of THE WEEKLY attended.

EDITORIAL.

Officially Speaking.—Here is the official version in brief of the circumstances attending the preparation of the first type of the two-cent Panama-Pacific stamp as submitted by James J. Britt, third assistant postmaster-general: "The original Panama two-cent stamp contained a defect in that the picture of the 'Pedro Miguel Locks' was labelled

'Gatun Locks,' the error resulting either from the photographing of the wrong model or from a mistake in the engraving from the photograph, the exact nature of which is a subject of dispute between the Director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and the Panama Canal Commission. Upon discovery of the mistake, all that had been printed, of which none had been issued, were destroyed on the order of the Department and a new design made, bearing the picture of 'Pedro Miguel Locks,' with passing ships, and bearing the title 'Panama Canal.' Stamps made from the new design are on sale at the post-offices."

Settled Right.—For many years it has been taken for granted by writers on the subject of the Great Central Fair Postage Stamps of the United States Sanitary Commission, Philadelphia, that they were made by the American Bank Note Company. Recently, C. E. Severn wrote a booklet on the Sanitary Fair stamps and following the lead of predecessors more or less distinguished, he assigned the credit for the manufacture of the three Great Central Fair stamps to the company aforesaid. In the aggregate a large number of the stamps and their proofs had been examined by Mr. Severn but it happened that no imprint had been seen. Now, through the courtesy of Mr. Hiram E. Deats, Flemington, New Jersey, that indefatigable delver into the historical suggestions of United States stamps that are at all removed from the ordinary course of collecting, an error in the philatelic records is corrected. The Great Central Fair stamps were printed by Butler and Carpenter, Philadelphia, in sheets of 126 stamps each, arranged on the plate in nine horizontal rows of fourteen stamps each. Mr. Deats is the possessor of proof sheets of the stamps in question. The firm of Butler and Carpenter had no successors but gradually retired from business. It is a satisfaction to know that there can no longer be any two opinions as to what company engraved the three stamps of the Philadelphia "sanitary fair" of 1864.

No Rest For Them.—What has become of the old-fashioned collector who remitted pieces of fractional currency to dealers for their stamp packets? Is he dallying somewhere with the o. f. c. who placed the cuts of the greatest rarities, scissored from dealers' price-list, in his album, saying that he could not hope to obtain the regular stamps? What has become of the old-fashioned dealer who advertised "a stock of 2,000 varieties constantly on hand?" Is he stranded somewhere with the o. f. d. who promised to send his four-page price-list on receipt of a three-cent stamp and then forwarded it under one-cent postage? Mr. S. M. Reed, Fayetteville, N. C., says: "In hounding down the o. f. c., you have overlooked the one that carefully wrote the name of the country and the value on the back of the stamp."

He Is Tiring.—Sinpod, the stamp sage, says that he has cornered the collector who never found a thin spot under the accumulation of hinges on a stamp that he bought: A secretary of a stamp society who never in his annual report urged each member to secure at least one new member during the coming year: A collector who never made a mistake in deducting the amount of commission on stamps taken from approval sheets and a philatelist who never bid on the wrong lot in an auction sale. Mr. E. B. Anderson, Quinlan, Texas, asks: "Has Sinpod located the collector who received every selection sent him by dealers? Last week, I remitted a dealer three dollars and five cents for a selection I never received. We talk of the risk dealers take in sending out approvals; how about the risk a collector takes in soliciting them?"

* * *

A Problem.—What is the mail-order man to do when he secures a great number of unused stamps of the current issue as remittances? He is apt to discount them at a stamp dealer's. What does the stamp thief do when he makes a haul? He sometimes approaches a dealer with the idea of disposing of his loot at a discount. In consequence, it becomes necessary for the dealer to exercise discrimination of a rarer quality than is usually possessed; and it may not always be easy for the buyer to escape embarrassment. If some plan for the redemption under proper restrictions could be devised by the authorities, then dealers rightfully could be prohibited from trading in these stamps but failing this, the nuisance probably will continue unabated. The perforation of the initials was a preventive measure and the further step should be taken by the government to avoid the unused stamp scandals that arise periodically.

* * *

In Ward Thirteen.—The attendant at the Asylum for the Addled said: "Yes, it is a strange case. He sits by the hour with that look of frozen anxiety on his face but he never complains or even murmurs; I must say that he is our favorite patient. You see, he got that way because he was too considerate to tell his friends who looked at his stamps not to place their moist fingers on the rarities; and in silence he allowed them to paw away to their hearts' content. No wonder the strain became too great, poor fellow."

The Good In Us.—In the issue of December 28th, 1912, we published a letter from and the picture of Earl E. Boyd, Watertown, New York, one of the "shut-ins" who was among the number recommended to the consideration of intending donors of stamps to the afflicted at Christmas time. The appearance of the picture and the letter was attended by developments at once surprising and gratifying; and a wonderful impetus was given to the impulse of generous readers, as the following letter from the beneficiary will attest: "Mr. C. E. Severn—Dear Sir: It has been suggested to me by W. F. Slusser that I write you and ask you to publish in MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS my acknowledgment and thanks for the replies that I received in answer to my letter that was published in the issue of December 28th. He advised me to do this on account of my not being able to write and thank each one personally, which I started to do. You will understand this letter when I say that up to date I have received 177 letters and 21 packages containing stamps besides numerous packages of philatelic papers and reading matter. Now it would be impossible for me to express in words or writing my appreciation of your kind act in putting the letter in the paper and the hearty response it met with. I am having the time of my life in sorting and arranging them and of course have thousands of duplicates which I intend sending to several other shut-ins whose names I have. So, you see, your scheme will turn out better than you thought as I will add several to the list of shut-ins who will receive stamps as a result of your editorial in the WEEKLY. Hoping you will fix up a little card of thanks in my name, I remain, Sincerely yours, Earl E. Boyd, 2 Hall Block, Court Street, Watertown, New York." It is a pretty good old stamp world, after all.

"New Issues at 10% Over Face"

RECENT PURCHASE.

A magnificent collection of stamps of the North American Colonies, formed by a well-known member of the Royal Philatelic Society.

This contains, among many other fine items, the following which are worthy of special notice:—

BRITISH COLUMBIA, Pair of the 2½d imperf. 5c imperf. unused and used. 10c imperf. single and strip of three. Perforated issues, practically complete in unique blocks of four showing control numbers.

CANADA, 12d black on laid paper. Pence issues in mint state. 1c on laid paper unused. A most interesting collection of proofs and essays.

NEW BRUNSWICK, Singles, pairs and strips, used and unused of the pence issues, including superb copies of the 1sh. The 3d, 6d, and 1sh bisected on originals. Two specimens of the Connell stamp and a fine series of proofs and essays of the pence and cent values.

NEWFOUNDLAND, The early issues well represented.

2d, 4d, 6d, 1sh, carmine vermilion, magnificent unused copies in brilliant condition.

Complete uncut sheet of the 8d carmine vermilion probably unique. 4d, 6d, and 1sh orange vermilion unused.

Fine copy of the 1d in the rare red brown colour.

Complete uncut sheets of 4d, 5d brown, 5d red brown, 6d, 6½d, 8d, 1sh.

Many rare varieties of the first issue bisected, used on entire. Bisected 2d, used as 1d.

" 8d, " " 4d.

" 1sh orange vermilion and 1sh carmine vermilion used as 6d.

A fine series of die proofs, plate proofs and colour trials.

The above, or selections therefrom, will be sent on approval.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding pre-cancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDREDGE, Attleboro, Mass. Specimens must accompany chronicle, with self-addressed stamped envelope for return of the same. Please note these rules.

UNITED STATES.—Correspondents in various sections send us specimens of the new 2c Panama Canal stamp, but as MEKEEL'S has already fully described the stamp and explained the reason for the delay we can only acknowledge the courtesies received. By the way, has anyone a sheet of the stamps labeled "Gatun Locks" tucked away as a speculation?

B. Douglas Goode writes as follows: "In looking over some of the current one-cent stamps with numerals in the past few days I have discovered a distinct die variety which I think may be of interest to other collectors. In the normal stamp all of the horizontal shade lines end evenly to the left of the bust at the white frame line. In the variety several of these lines to the left of the bust and about midway between top and bottom of the stamp are more or less uneven, giving the appearance of a series of notches or saw-teeth along the white frame line. I have a sheet of ten of these stamps (used) showing the variety, which would lead me to believe that the variation extends to an entire plate. Out of over four-hundred single copies examined I have found only one of the variety."

We reproduce the following letter from A. G. Johnson, as of interest to students of United States stamps, though without endorsing his conclusions in their entirety: "Some time ago one of the correspondents of MEKEEL'S called attention to the defective printing in the ovals surrounding the figures of value of the 2c stamp of 1890. After having found a number of them it struck me that there was a good deal of uniformity in the appearance of the defects, and of their location. I therefore pursued the search further into the issues of 1894-5, as the 1890 dies were used in that issue, apparently with little change excepting the triangles. The result of a search through about 20,000 stamps of 1895 was two specimens showing similar white marks around the figures of value.

"Now the process of printing from engraved plates is exactly the reverse of that of type printing, the depressed portions of the designs receiving and depositing the ink, and the raised parts producing the white figures. From indications shown by these so-called defects it seems to me that the original design about the '2' was fuller and more complete, but that it was cut down for some purpose—being white it would naturally tend to make the figure more or less obscure, a thing to be avoided when we consider the immense number handled daily by all sorts and conditions of people—probably that the figure of value might be read at a glance. The lily-like design seems to be incomplete as shown at present. It might be possible that the caps on the '2' originally formed a part of the design.

"I am not claiming to have discovered any new die, or anything of that kind; I am merely giving you my opinion as the result of my studies. If the figure was fuller originally, and the change were made in the plates, or if the engraver failed to cut one of them deep enough it would produce the result shown in these defects."

BELGIUM.—Whitfield King & Co. inform us that the 10c of the current set has been issued in the redrawn type, the head of King Albert appearing of the same size as on the 25c stamp. All the values 10c and above will appear in the large head type.

BRAZIL.—A. G. Johnson calls attention to the fact that Scott's catalogue describes very imperfectly the varieties of the 200r dark blue of 1900. Scott gives the type of the 200r as A42a. This is correct for one variety, but a large part of the issue is printed in type A43. This has the word "Correio" in slightly smaller letters, while the colorless inscriptions are all larger. What is called the framed variety, Scott's No. 161a is apparently the original type, as the centre is printed at a separate operation, the inner oval line of the frame encroaching upon the horizontal lines of shading surrounding the Liberty head, in various places, according as the stones were shifted slightly printing. The common variety printed in one operation has the oval outlined by a thin line, which is close to all points of the oval and leaves no white space anywhere. There is a third variety, which has a thin line all around the oval, equally distant from the shading, which gives a double white border around between the oval shading and the main frame.

CANADA.—The 2c card is out with the King George stamp, which is the only new feature.

Post Card.

2c dark blue on pale buff.

GRENADA.—Hermann Focke has shown us the 2½d value of the new set in the same design as the 3d above described.

2½d dark ultramarine.

HONDURAS.—Lowell J. Ragatz reports finding Scott's No. 182, with double surcharge, both normal.

LEEWARD ISLANDS.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the ½d King George stamp, the ¼d, 1d, 2d and 2½d having been previously chronicled.

Adhesive.

½d green.

PERU.—James B. B. Smith has shown us a cover mailed at Lima and received in New York, franked with several of the current 1c and 2c stamps and also two copies of a new provisional not previously chronicled. The 12c stamp of 1905 has been again pressed into service, being surcharged "Union Postal—Sud Americana" in a double transverse oval, with "8 cts" in the centre.

RUSSIA.—The long promised series of postage stamps for the Empire has at last made its appearance, and specimens have been shown us by Robert Bruce, and the Universal Publicity Co.

In these stamps she has departed from her postal traditions to a surprising extent. They were issued to commemorate the 300th anniversary of the accession of the Romanof Dynasty, and were placed on sale Jan. 1, old style. Thus far we have only seen the 3k and 4k values, but we are able to give through translation from Lemaire's Journal the portraits on the other values, as follows: 1k, Peter the Great; 2k, Alexander II; 3k, Alexander III; 4k, Peter the Great; 7k, Nicholas II; 10k, Nicholas II; 14k, Catherine II; 15k, Nicholas I; 20k, Alexander I; 25k, Alexis Michaelovitch; 35k, Paul I; 50k, Elisabeth; 70k, Michael Feodorovitch. Not only do these stamps bear portraits of the Royal Family but they are much larger than have been the previous issues. The designs measure 20x25½ mm. all being upright rectangles. Each value has a design of its own, strikingly simple, with the values very plainly indicated. Curiously enough the Imperial Arms appear only on three of the values noted above, and even then are nearly covered by the portraits and their frames.

DEATH OF THE EARL OF CRAWFORD.

The Earl of Crawford, head of the ancient house of Lindsay, and premier Earl on the roll of Scottish peers, died January 31. Earl Crawford had made a name for himself in science and letters, having served as president of the Royal Astronomical Society. He was particularly well known to philatelists because of his great interest in stamp collecting and his very valuable collection of British and United States stamps. The Earl was 65 years old, having been born at St. Germain, France, July 28, 1847, and was educated at Eaton and Trinity College, Cambridge. He was a member of Parliament from 1874 to 1880. His estate covers 14,500 acres.

It is needless to say that the death of the Earl will be a severe blow to English philately, and particularly to the Royal Philatelic Society of which he was a devoted member and official.

EXHIBITION NEWS.

Practically all the world renowned collectors have signified their intention to show their treasures at the great Stamp Exhibition to be held next October in New York and incidentally to compete for the valuable prizes to be distributed. Certainly the show must depend for its drawing powers on the wonderful treasures that will then be on exhibition, stamps that the ordinary collector can never again expect to see, but to our mind the albums of the rank and file, each showing the care and skill of the amateur in arranging, together with the one or two special gems which can be found in nearly every album, will constitute the most interesting feature of the exhibition. In the course of my fifty years' experience I have rarely seen a collection that did not contain some desirable stamps, it may have been a question of superb condition, a curious postmark, a fine used block, a strange combination of stamps on a cover or some uncatalogued minor variety, but every painstaking collector has something to be proud of, something that cannot be duplicated in the collections of the mighty. I suppose you have noticed in the daily papers that the King of Spain is trying to make arrangements to visit this country. I cannot affirm that the Stamp Exhibition is the object of his visit but if he gets here he will surely take in the great show.

C. K. B. NEVIN, Pres.; FERNALD HUTCHINS, Vice Pres.; C. A. HOWES, Sec., 55 Kilby St., Boston; PHILIP WOLFF, Int. Sec., Box 81, Fenway Station, Boston; J. B. SMITH, Treas., East Weymouth, Mass.; J. H. LYONS, Supt. Auc.; J. B. B. SMITH, Supt. Sales; A. W. DUNNING, Supt. Bourse.

Meetings first (informal) and third (regular) Tuesdays, Room 322, Tremont Bdg., 7.30 P. M.

BOSTON, MASS., Jan. 21, 1913.

The 284th (regular) meeting was held at the Club Room at 8 o'clock this evening. Pres. Nevin occupied the chair and 42 members and friends were present.

This being the Annual meeting, reports were received from the various officers. The resignations of Nos. 27 and 531 were read and accepted. The applications of Messrs. John Kling and Charles B. Moore were posted.

The following officers were elected for 1913:—Pres. C. K. B. Nevin, Vice-Pres. Fernald Hutchins, Sec. C. A. Howes, Int'l Sec. Philip Wolff, Treas. J. B. B. Smith, Supt. Auctions, J. H. Lyons, Supt. of Sales, J. B. B. Smith, Supt. Bourse, A. W. Dunning, Governing Board, Chas. H. Stone, F. W. Stiles, John Ingraham, T. W. Barry, Library Com., C. K. B. Nevin, C. A. Howes, E. M. Carpenter.

The following were admitted to membership:—No. 567, Gideon G. Ryder, No. 568, C. S. Penhallow, Jr., No. 569, Roy S. Haggard.

It was voted that the President appoint a committee of five, including the President and Secretary, to revise the Statutes of the Society and report as soon as possible. Several amendments were offered by Messrs. Dunning and A. P. Brown, which were referred to the committee on the revision of the statutes.

The meeting adjourned at 9 p. m. and was turned over to the Entertainment Com. who had on view two volumes of Mr. C. B. Moore's general collection, including the French and German Colonials, and a volume of Mr. John Stone Allen's collection including a specialized collection of Bavaria and several other countries. Of particular note were a magnificent block of six of Bavaria No. 1 and two fine pairs of the 6kr "broken circle."

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 331, Altadena, Calif.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

THE BEGINNERS' GUIDE.

A GUIDE TO CLASSIFICATION.

When one knows to what country a stamp belongs it is, with the aid of a catalogue, a fairly simple matter to mount it in its correct position in one's album. In the case of many stamps, however, the chief difficulty which confronts the beginner is that of finding from what country they emanate. On some stamps no name appears by means of which the tyro can readily identify it; on others the name is in a form or in characters not understood by the average individual; and in others, again, no name of any sort is shown.

We have, in previous chapters, given hints that should help in the identification of certain varieties, such as postage due stamps, officials, etc., and we now conclude our "guide" by giving an alphabetical list of the chief "clues" by means of which the beginner can identify those hard-to-tell stamps not before mentioned. Where some prominent feature of the design forms the readiest point of identification we have referred to it (see "Lion," "Cross," etc.) and where some peculiarity of inscription or combination of letters form the key they are listed in correct order. In some cases ("Native characters" for instance) the beginner must compare his stamps with the catalogue illustrations of the countries named.

A. & T.—These letters, overprinted on French colonial stamps of the "Commerce" type, show that such stamps were intended for use in the settlements of Annam and Tonquin.

Abbreviations.—Many well-known philatelic terms are more often than not written or printed in an abbreviated form. The ones most usually met with are:—

Imp. or imperf. for Imperforate.
Mm. for Millimetre.
Perf. or Pf. for Perforated.
Roul. for Rouletted.
Wmk. for Watermark.

Acores.—The Portuguese form for "Azores."

Adhesive.—A term applied to ordinary postage stamps which are intended to be stuck on postal packets, in contradistinction to stamps printed upon envelopes, postcards, newspaper wrappers, etc.

Albino.—An entirely colorless impression of a stamp produced by the process of embossing.

Alexandrie (Alexandria).—Shown on stamps for the French Consular Office established at that port.

ANATO IKH POMY IA.—Greek characters for "Eastern Roumelia."

B.—This letter overprinted on various Straits Settlements stamps shows they were intended for use in Bangkok.

Bayern.—The German form for "Bavaria."

B. C. A.—These letters overprinted on certain stamps of the British South Africa Company (Rhodesia) indicate that they were for use in British Central Africa.

B. C. M.—These letters, indicating "British Consular Mail" appear on the large stamps of Madagascar.

Belgique (or Belgie).—The French and Flemish equivalents, respectively, for Belgium.

Bi-Colored.—Stamps printed in two colors.

Bisected stamps.—Stamps cut into halves or smaller pieces and each portion having franking power as a separate stamp.

B. L. C. I.—These letters are shown, one in each corner, on many of the stamps of the Indian Native State of Bhopal.

Bollo (Stamp).—Appears on many of the stamps of Italy and States to the catalogue illustrations of which reference should be made where no other word forms the guide to the country of origin.

Braunschweig.—The German form for "Brunswick."

British Consular Mail (or British Vice-Consulate) Antananarivo.—A hand-stamp on the large stamps of Madagascar.

Bs. As.—A contraction for Buenos Aires shown on the so-called "Gaucho" stamps of 1857 which were prepared for use but never issued.

Cabo Verde.—Cape Verde.

C. CH.—An overprint on certain French Colonial stamps indicating they were for use in Cochinchina.

C. E. F.—An overprint on certain Indian stamps issued for the use of the troops on the "China Expeditionary Force" in 1900 and since used at certain British Post-offices maintained in China.

Chine.—China.

Communicaciones.—The only inscription, in addition to value, appearing on certain stamps of Spain.

Correio.—The only inscription shown on some of the early stamps of Portugal.

Correo Espanol Marruecos.—Spanish Morocco.

Correo Interior, (Inland Postage).—On the two Spanish stamps issued for local use in Madrid.

Correos Centimos.—The only inscription on the 1893 stamps of Venezuela.

Correos.—This word, used in conjunction with "Certificado" or value forms the only inscription on certain stamps of Spain and its colonies. Reference to the illustrations in a catalogue should make identification easy.

Cote d'Ivoire.—Ivory Coast.

Cote Francaise des Somalis.—French Somali Coast.

Cpenja.—Shown on the stamps of Servia.

Crescent (and Star).—A feature of the design of many Turkish stamps.

Cross.—An uncolored cross on a shield forms a distinctive part of the design of many early issues of Switzerland that are otherwise difficult to identify.

179 Broadway, New York City

CONCERNING OLD CATALOGUES.

By EDWIN B. HILL.

My treasure-house has its room of books and periodicals, and amongst them are a few upon matters akin to the bits of paper which give so much pleasure to the stamp lover. I do not know just when or how I conceived the plan of eliminating certain useless papers altogether unworthy of preservation,—nor can I give any reason save sentimental ones for treasuring others (gratefully few!) of no more than passing moment. The collector quite naturally turns first to a catalogue; and so my eyes rest caressingly upon the shelf devoted entirely to that branch of my philatelic library.

The first book to be placed on the shelf wholly devoted to subjects philatelic was quite naturally, the "Standard Postage Stamp Catalogue." This set I have complete in the small format. The later editions came to me from my friendliest dealer, as issued,—and he also enriched my growing set by the gift of an earlier volume or two.

The blank pages of the 1898 catalogue bear signs of careful notes comparative of B. N. A.'s,—notes enriching the volume and enhancing its philatelic value to the student. Of the hand which penciled these facts so carefully,—so studiously accurate in every detail,—I have no knowledge.

Delving amongst the books in a second-hand book-store in Detroit, one wintry day, a few years ago, a 1902 "Standard" with its yellow covers, loomed forth to claim my eye. The sprawling figures "25" on a fly-leaf won from me the not reluctant quarter, and the little volume slipped into my pocket. The covers were somewhat stained, and its leaves now and then dog-eared from usage amidst the section devoted to U. S. A.

I was not a stranger to the city, but it had ceased long since to be home to me, and as my later catalogues were all remote, I took this one with me for companionship. In the solitudes of my room, turning the leaves, I found a beautiful copy of U. S. A. No. 85, well-centered, and bright. I was tempted at once to return the stamp to the book-seller, who it may be as well to describe in passing as a barbarian of barbarians amongst booksellers, without a soul above or beyond the dime he would pay for a book and the dollar he would demand for it. I bethought me the stamp was never his property, but that of the seller of the book. So, when I was in the store again, I mentioned the facts. I have never changed my opinion of one bookseller,—at least, never for the better.

My 1903 "Standard" was the gift of a dealer-friend. It was dug out of his cellar, where the dampness had softened the glue until the covers were loose in the binding, and the volume was what is described in old book catalogues as "shaken." There was a great splotch of ink upon the back, too, and a few pages were hopelessly mangled. Several months after the book came into my possession, a friendly collector sent me a copy of the same issue,—coverless,—the pages cut into ruthlessly,—in fact, so thoroughly Grangerized that I found it valueless for all things but the one I needed most. And so my own copy traded a few leaves, and was rendered perfect of its kind.

Of the older "Scott's Standard Catalogues," I have parts one and two of the fiftieth edition only. The old format was most familiar in my earlier collecting days: now it has been happily eliminated and the paper covers displaced by durable ones of cloth.

No collection would be worthy of chronicling without its E. B. Sterling's: and so I note the third, fifth and sixth editions of his "Catalogue of the Adhesive Postage and Stamped Envelopes of the United States only." Here are also copies of the third, fourth, and fifth editions of "Sterling's Standard Descriptive and Price Catalogue of the Revenue Stamps of the United States." Some of these Sterling catalogues are from the library of E. J. Stebbins, and bear his stamp, "Edw. J. Stebbins, Philatelist, Adrian, Mich."

My single volume of "Mekeel's Complete Standard Catalogue"—1895—bears the name Cornelius Swope on a fly-leaf. Should he be not gone into the Silent Land, may he learn that his once treasured volume (for it shows the caress of loving fingers) is now in appreciative hands.

The fifth edition of the "A B C" catalogue was the first foreign catalogue that came to me. It was formerly the property of a well-known physician-collector in an inland Ohio town, not far from Toledo. When his collection of stamps was sold, this catalogue was "thrown in." The dealer-friend passed it on to me, and from my book-shelves its blue covers speak the welcome within.

Of course, in a collection—a working library—the catalogues, English edition, of Stanley Gibbons are indispensable. They are here on my shelves, used almost solely for reference. I stick to our own "Standard" for all practical purposes. The fourth, fifth, and seventh editions of Gibbons are also on my shelves,—quite useless save for remote reference. They are of the old format, paper bound.

The Whitfield King "Standard," of simplified fame, is also here, complete. I find it useful for reference, and it is at least refreshing to dip into a volume, now and then, which refuses to list perforations and papers to the limit of unreasonable folly—in the eyes of one "general collector."

Another English catalogue, cloth-bound, which was dug out of an English book-seller's list and came to me for three shillings, is "A Catalogue for Collectors," by Captain Edward B. Evans, R. A. London, 1882. Those were the days when the U. S. A. five cents, 1847, sold for eight pence, and the 10 cents for two-and-six, which last-named sum also purchased the 90 cents 1869. Alas! that we older collectors wearied of our treasures and let them pass!

How I love old catalogues.—links with the past, ever growing stronger with the years! The hands that turned the leaves may be resting forever,—who can know? Yet the volumes once loved by them are loved again,—even as mine may be, some day.

PARCEL-POST STAMPS.

ACCOUNTING.

1. Postmasters will record the parcel-post stamps received, on hand, and sold, and the parcel-post due stamps received, on hand, and used, in the official account-and-record book.

2. The Department is preparing a blank, to be inserted in the postmaster's account-and-record book, providing for the record of transactions in parcel-post stamps and parcel-post due stamps required in paragraph 1. One year's supply of these blanks will be issued by the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, Division of Supplies, to all postmasters, without requisition, when received from the printer.

3. Pending receipt of the new blanks referred to in paragraph 2, postmasters will record their parcel-post stamps and parcel-post due stamps in the account-and-record book, in space not used for other entries; the words "Parcel-post stamps" and "Parcel-post due stamps" to be written in with pen.

4. Postmasters will render to the Third Assistant Postmaster General, Division of Stamps, promptly at the close of each quarter, a report on Form 3264 of their transactions in parcel-post stamps and parcel-post due stamps. They will receive a supply of this form from the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General without requisition, and will then render promptly a report for the quarter ended December 31, 1912.

5. The items reported on Form 3264 must also be included in postmasters' quarterly stamp accounts to the Third Assistant Postmaster General, as directed in the December supplement to the 1912 Postal Guide, page 6, paragraph 8.

REQUISITIONS.

6. The regular requisition Form 3201 is to be used for parcel-post stamps and parcel-post due stamps, with the words "Parcel-Post" written in; but ordinary stamps, stamp books, postal cards or stamped envelopes must not be included on the same blank.

7. Because of their size, parcel-post stamps and parcel-post due stamps are issued in sheets of 45, and postmasters will be careful to prepare their requisitions accordingly.

8. Requisitions for more than 900 stamps should be drawn for multiples of the quantities listed in the foregoing table.

9. For larger requisitions parcel-post stamps are put up in banded and sealed packages of 4,500, 22,500 and 90,000.

10. The Department will modify postmasters' requisitions to conform to paragraphs 7, 8, and 9, if necessary.

SALE OF PARCEL-POST STAMPS.

11. The sale of parcel-post stamps should not be limited to those required for affixing to parcels presented at the post office for mailing. The stamps should be sold in any quantities needed by purchasers for affixing to parcels at their places of business or elsewhere, subject to the provisions of Sections 75 and 76, page 43, 1912 Postal Guide.

12. Parcel-post due stamps are not valid for prepayment of postage and must not be sold to the public. (Section 134, P. L. and R.)

MR. MEKEEL'S MANY ACTIVITIES.

Few have been aware of the many activities in which Mr. Mekeel has been engaged. He was a director of many companies and corporations as the following list will show:—President and director of the Atlantic Printing Company, president and director of the Boot and Shoe Recorder Publishing Company, treasurer and director of the Cleveland Trade Bulletin Company, treasurer and director of the Commercial Bulletin Company, director of the David Williams Company, director of the Dixie Realty Syndicate, director of the Dry Goods Reporter Company, treasurer and director of the Economy Real Property Company, director of the Economy Service Company, treasurer and director of the Federal Advertising Company, vice-president and director of the Federal Printing Company, vice-president and director of the McGraw Realty Company, president and director of the Mekeel-Severn-Wylie Company, treasurer and director of the Pacific Coast Publishing Company, treasurer and director of the R. N. A. Syndicate, Incorporated, treasurer and director of the Root Newspaper Association, treasurer and director of the Root Securities Company, vice-president, treasurer, general manager and director of the Textile Publishing Company, director of the Tradesmen's Publishing Company, and treasurer and director of the Tri-State Realty Company.

THE AUSTRALIAN PROVISIONALS.

There is still no word of the South Australian 1d on 2d, so it may be considered that the idea has been abandoned. As to the West Australian 1d on 2d, the fact that none were obtainable after the expiration of three days leads up to the impression that they were withdrawn from sale. Mr. Orchard also informs us that no more Tasmanian 1d on 2d are to be had at the Hobart Post Office.—Australian Stamp Journal.

AN APPRECIATION OF I. A. MEKEEL.

Announcement was made last week of the death of I. A. Mekeel of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS at his home, Montclair, New Jersey, on February third, after a week's illness. The shocking news found us wholly unprepared for its reception as there had been no intimation that Mr. Mekeel was ill and it is impossible to fully express our grief at the harsh visitation that has been suffered and to convey an understanding of the sense of desolation that has stricken us. The sudden removal of one whose brilliant achievements were remarked with admiration by leaders in the business world, at the comparatively early age of forty-two years, is sad in itself but when the one taken away, in addition, is a friend for whom love had developed through years of intimate association, then the occasion becomes unutterably sorrowful.

The impress of I. A. Mekeel on philatelic journalism in America will never be effaced. When he became sole owner of the WEEKLY in 1897, he, with splendid and aggressive enthusiasm, conceived a campaign that had for its object the attainment of a circulation so extensive for his paper that it would become the great commercial power in philately. His careful plans perfected, he entered into the execution of the task and soon the results were a speaking tribute to Mr. Mekeel's genius for management; and in their way, they pointed to more famous triumphs in the larger fields of publishing, in the future. Mr. Mekeel was the first to apply broad and modern methods to the conducting of a stamp paper. With the eye of the pioneer, he saw the possibilities of philatelic advertising and his foresight was based on a firm belief in philately, its substantiality and permanence.

Previously, as a member of a large stamp firm, Mr. Mekeel had entered actively in stamp salesmanship; and it was he who sold for forty-four hundred dollars, a record price for many years, a copy of the ten-cent Baltimore. He scored a veritable triumph when he obtained the pick of the great Louisville find of St. Louis provisionals by coping successfully with a situation that required the utmost business finesse. Before acquiring the full ownership of the WEEKLY, Mr. Mekeel had travelled even to Europe on a trip, on which stamp selling for his firm was done to advantage.

The mile-stones of Mr. Mekeel's philatelic publishing progress are to be seen in his special issues, an innovation that he practically introduced in stamp journalism. Soon after he acquired the WEEKLY in 1897, Mr. Mekeel issued a Boston special number which was succeeded by a New York special in November 1897 that was a revelation in reading and advertising richness. The New York special was a momentous number as it involved a heavy preliminary expenditure and each recipient of the issue received a personal letter in which the good-will of the reader was solicited for the WEEKLY. Enterprise was properly rewarded and the circulation of the paper was firmly entrenched. The following year, when the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences recognized philately as a science at the behest of influential enthusiasts, a special commemorative issue of the WEEKLY was distributed to the number of over one hundred thousand copies, which were mailed at an expense of $152.27 for the 15,227 pounds in weight. The advertising rates for the special number were seven times that of the ordinary copy.

A London special number was projected in January, 1900, and so handsomely was it received that forty pages and special cover were needed for its presentation. Later in the year, Mr. Mekeel brought a wonderful Chinese special number to fruition and this was followed by other celebratory issues which reached their culmination some time after, in a "World Wide" issue that bespoke the universality of philately.

In 1901, Mr. Mekeel made a connection with the Root Newspaper Association of New York City and so, the WEEKLY was transferred from St. Louis to New York; almost immediately his ascent in the publishing world began and in a time so short as almost to seem beyond the realm of reality, he became the managing director and treasurer of this great corporation which owns and operates a chain of the most important trade papers of this country. More recently, Mr. Mekeel was chiefly instrumental in combining the managements of the publishing properties of a most select class under the organization, the United Publishers' Corporation, of which Mr. Mekeel was Vice-President and Treasurer.

The career of Mr. Mekeel led him to the business heights and through ability and force of exceptional kind, he had become a leader in influence in the field of publishing prosperity. Since 1904, Mr. Mekeel could afford to give but little of his time to the WEEKLY in view of the magnitude of his other interests; and only recently, he asked that C. E. Severn succeed him as president of the Mekeel-Severn-Wylie Company, beginning with the year 1913. Mr. Mekeel, however, had a fond regard for the WEEKLY and sentimentally, it was close to him.

I. A. Mekeel was eminently just in his findings and equitable in his exactions. He was endowed with a clearness of vision that stood him in good stead in his estimate of men and measures and while firm in his dealings, he was always fair. He was open to conviction and his mind was frank and free from any unworthy motive. In over fifteen years' time association with Mr. Mekeel, we have never known him to lower his high standard in any way, and peculiarly clean in his habits, Mr. Mekeel's physique was a testimonial to the rewards of right living and right thinking.

Mr. Mekeel was a man of unusual type. Possessing a heritage of health and mental strength from a line of sterling forbears, he was rudimentarily equipped to gain high place in the ranks of the ambitious. His acumen became developed to a wonderful degree and his forceful energy was almost invincible. His compelling enthusiasm was generated by a belief in his work and a knowledge that a proposition that was reputable and reliable would furnish its own inspiration.

One could not become fulsome in a memorial to I. A. Mekeel who typified all that was large and good in active business life. His social nature while not constantly exposed was a warm and human one; and those close to him deemed his friendship a boon and an honor. We who knew I. A. Mekeel best mourn him most. Words cannot express our sympathy for the wife bereft and the three children who survive Mr. Mekeel.

Requiescat in Pace.
ISAAC A. MEKEEL,
Aet. 42.

COLUMBUS COLLECTORS' CLUB.

The 6th annual dinner of this flourishing organization was held Friday evening, Jan. 17, with a goodly attendance of members and friends.

The following officers were elected at the annual meeting held Jan. 7:—Geo. R. Smith Jr., President; W. H. Field, vice-president; Prof. W. S. Elden, second vice-president; Oscar Schenck, treasurer; Geo. W. Linn, secretary. E. S. Jaros and Hartman Sandrock were elected with the above officers to serve as the board of directors. The Club has made arrangements with the local organization of Master Printers, known as the Ben Franklin Club, to take a suite of rooms in the Clinton Building, by this arrangement, we will have a large room with chairs for about 40 people, a wall blackboard and other desirable features, we will also have one entire room for a reading and game room. The Club owns its own billiard table and all members carry keys to the room and can use it at any time. These new rooms which are being newly decorated will make about as nice and cheerful a club room as any stamp club in America. The next meeting will be held in these rooms on Feb. 18.

FUNERAL OF I. A. MEKEEL.

On the afternoon of Feb. 5, a large number gathered in the Montclair, N. J. residence of I. A. Mekeel to pay the last tribute of respect to one who had attained signal honors and at the early age of 42 had been called to the home beyond.

Mr. Mekeel's business associates were present and many heads of departments gathered to do him honor. A profusion of floral emblems was in evidence but the service itself was of the simplest order.

Rev. Mr. Randolph of the Methodist Episcopal Church, where Mr. Mekeel attended, read selections of Scripture and offered prayer, following which the interment took place at Orange, N. J.

The managing editor of the WEEKLY was present at the funeral.

Jan. 2, 1913 the first Commonwealth postage stamp was issued to the public. It is the penny value to which a number of references have been made in the WEEKLY, though the design has been retouched, making it much more presentable. According to the A. S. J. the new stamps are printed on paper previously gummed in England and all the denominations will be printed on similar paper and will be of the same size.

The Journal seems so well pleased over the fact that the country has at last got a Commonwealth stamp that it is willing to put up with the stamp even though it is not as artistic as it might be. The fact that it is a local production will apparently cover a multitude of weaknesses.

WHAT WAS THE WHY AND WHEREFORE?

To the Editor:

I recently came into possession of a cover that to me is a curiosity. It bears two (a pair) of China No. 67, cancelled "Tangku, 13 Sept. 00." and one Japan No. 98, cancelled "Shanghai, 1. J., Sept. 00". That the Japan No. 98 was placed on the cover and cancelled at Shanghai after the two No. 67 had been cancelled at Tangku is very plainly to be seen as the edge of No. 98 covers part of the circle of the Tangku cancellation. The back of the cover shows a Yokohama, Japan, postmark, but no Japanese cancellation appears on the front of cover, or any other Japanese mark.

The cover was given to me by a soldier who served with the Army of Occupation. He had sent the letter from Tangku, China, to his wife in Ann Arbor, Mich., and had purchased the stamps from the Postmaster, an old German, in Tangku. He could not be sure that he had placed the three stamps on the envelope, but said that if he had not done so, he could not imagine who had. From the Shanghai postmark it is evident that the stamp was used in China if not canceled in Tangku. Please give me any information possible through the WEEKLY.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—W. S. Aldrich can procure no satisfaction on an approval selection sent Earl Parker, 5106 Glenwood Av., Pittsburgh, Pa. Mr. Aldrich will be glad to hear from other interested parties.

—Frank E. Goodwin has discontinued The Stamp Collector and sold his subscription list to Everybody's Philatelist. That Mr. Goodwin is a versatile as well as a busy writer is evidenced in his many activities, not only in philatelic journalism but along other journalistic lines. His series of articles on United States stamps published in the WEEKLY has made his work much in demand.

—The Hussman Stamp Co. informs us that Mr. Ottley has satisfied them and complaint is withdrawn. J. A. Muchmore advises us that he has been the victim of circumstances that hindered him from returning an approval selection and that the matter will be attended to at once.

—"I have before me as I write this an envelope that exemplifies the efficiency that the world's postal service has attained. It has traveled, I judge, close to 15,000 miles, has been in at least four foreign countries, and has crossed the Atlantic twice (besides one long coastwise journey)—all for the five cents represented by the little blue United States stamp it bears on its face. The cover bears seven postmarks—two from a small Ohio town, one from the U. S. Dead Letter Office, one from Washington, D. C., one from St. John, Antigua, one from San Marino, and one from Rome. It was mailed from Ohio to Antigua last September, was forwarded from there to San Marino, lay there over two months, was then sent to the Central Post Office at Rome, was returned to the United States to the Dead Letter Office, and has now come back to the sender after four months of wandering."—V. Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding pre-cancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDRIDGE, Attleboro, Mass. Specimens must accompany chronicle, with self-addressed stamped envelope for return of the same. Please note these rules.

UNITED STATES.—H. N. Haas has shown us a used pair of the 1c of 1902, Scott's No. 300, perforated all round but imperforate vertically between.

Donald Chambers reports plate numbers of the 1c Parcel Post stamps as follows: Nos. 6207, 6208, 6209 and 6210. Mr. Eldridge reports the following new precancels:

Cleveland, Ohio.—Two lines (Cleveland—Ohio) horizontal inscription between lines 11 mm. apart, lines ¾ mm. thick. 1c, 1913, Parcel Post. Reported by E. W. Murray and Allen Greeley.

Holyoke, Mass.—Two lines (Holyoke—Mass.) horizontal inscription between lines, two above and below, 15½ mm. apart, lines ½ mm. thick and ¾ mm. apart, Holyoke in large sans-serif capitals and Mass in lower case capitals of the same type. 3c, 1910.

Chicago, Ill.—(No. 1153) 10c, 1913, Parcel Post.

Waterbury, Conn.—Two lines (Waterbury—Conn.) horizontal inscription between lines 9½ mm. apart, and ½ mm. thick. 3c, 1910.

Mansfield, Mass.—Two lines (Mansfield—MASS.) horizontal inscription between two lines, 14 mm. apart, lines about ¾ mm. thick. 1910, 4c, 6c; 1912, 8c.

North Adams, Mass.—Three lines (NORTH—ADAMS—MASS.) horizontal inscription in large capitals, with serifs. 1910, 6c.

Bristol, R. I.—One line (Bristol, R. I.) vertical inscription, between two lines, 5 mm. apart, lines about ½ mm. thick. 1910, 3c, reading up.

New Bedford, Mass.—Two lines (New Bedford—Mass.) horizontal inscription between two lines, about 10 mm. apart, lines about 3 mm. thick, the whole having the appearance of being done with a rubber stamp, all very irregular. 1910, 3c; 1912, 10c.

Mansfield, Mass.—Two lines (MANSFIELD—MASS.) horizontal inscription between two lines, 14 mm. apart, lines about ¾ mm. thick. 1910, 3c.

Foxboro, Mass.—Two lines (FOX-BORO—MASS.) horizontal inscription, large sans-serif capitals. 1910, 3c; 1912, 2c.

Bridgewater, Mass.—Two lines (Bridgewater—Mass.) horizontal inscription two lines above and below, space 13 mm. between lines containing words, lines 2 mm. apart and ¾ mm. thick. 1910, 4c.

The Rev. J. Dreyer sends us a specimen of the 2c Panama-Pacific stamp, and reports that out of five sheets of 70 stamps examined at Manchester, N. H., only 40 stamps were well centered. He also calls attention to the fact that the used Parcel Post stamps are very hard to get in good condition.

Donald Chambers reports having seen the 2c Parcel Post stamp with plate number 6178.

Harry E. Nichols reports having seen the 2c Panama-Pacific stamps, with the following plate numbers: 6310, 6311, 6312, and 6315, none of which were in the Rev. Mr. Dreyer's list printed in No. 1148.

R. H. Hartmann reports having seen the 2c of 1902, precancelled "Elgin, Ill.," and used in the regular mail, with the usual postmark.

AUSTRALIA.—W. R. Harrison is the first to show us one of the new Commonwealth issue, or the "Kangaroo" set, as it is bound to be called. The design is the same as the modified arrangement, already illustrated and described. The outline map of Australia is colorless on a line ground the Kangaroo also being in color. The inscriptions are "Australia—Postage" above "One Penny" below, with "1d" in a small circle just below the map, and a little to one side of the centre line. The stamps are watermarked Crown A and perforated 12.

Adhesive.

1d carmine.

The New England Stamp Co. has also shown us the new 1d Kangaroo stamp for the Commonwealth.

BRITISH COLONIES.—The Colonial Office Journal says: "Owing to the closing down of the mill at which all the watermarked paper has hitherto been made for the Crown Colonies, the necessary paper will, for the present, be supplied by the mill which is manufacturing that for the Indian stamps, and will be of the same character as that in every respect except the watermark, which will remain as hitherto. Copper plate printed stamps will continue to be printed on heavier paper, but no change will be made in the colored papers, of all of which a sufficient supply exists to last for some time to come."

CEYLON.—Grant Squires reports having found on sale Nov. 29 at the General Post Office at Colombo, Ceylon, both King George and King Edward heads. He was informed that it was the intention of the officials to continue the sale of the King Edward stamps as long as the supply lasted. The cent values were nearly exhausted at that time, but there were still several sheets of the 2r and 5r values on hand.

CHINA.—R. H. Hartmann has been informed by a correspondent at Hankow that the postal officials there say that the commemorative sets will be discontinued March 1, and all remainders destroyed.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC.—Champion's Bulletin chronicles the issue of a 1c value in the current official set, type of Scott's 02.

Official Adhesive.

1c dark green and black.

EGYPT.—Supplementing the information contained in No. 1151, Louis Voss sends us the following translation from the Hamburg News of a letter from a correspondent in Cairo, Egypt:—The postage stamps of Egypt are to be replaced by new ones. Entirely new drawings have been made which will be pleasing news to collectors also. The colors, too, will be changed and the size will be larger than heretofore. The inscription will no longer be in French and Arabic, but English ("Egyptian Postage") and Arabic. Each stamp will show a different picture. The one millieme stamp will show a number of barks on the Nile, the 2m the head of the goddess, Hathor, the 5m the image of the Sphinx, the 10m the two pillars of Memnon, the 20m the portico of Karnak, the 50m the picture of the citadel in Kairo and the 200m the Assouan dam.

GIBRALTAR.—The query regarding the "Paquebot" postmark in No. 1153, is thus answered by Grant Squires: "This postmark is placed upon letters by the ship's officer of any English mail steamer touching at Gibraltar, who sends the mail of the ship's company ashore already stamped ready for mailing at the Gibraltar Post office. Under English postal regulations, such letters must be forwarded if the postage has been paid by English postage stamps affixed."

GREAT BRITAIN.—W. H. Peckitt has shown us the new ½d and 4d stamps. The ½d is in the same design as the King George 1½d, while the 4d is similar to the 2d and 3d values though the frame has been reengraved, and the lines thickened on the value tablets so as to appear almost solid color.

Adhesives.

½d yellow green.

4d slate green.

HONG KONG.—Grant Squires writes as follows, regarding the new stamps: "The King George series was placed on sale in Hong Kong at 10 A. M., Saturday, Nov. 9, 1912, the first complete set from the 1c to the $10 values being mailed at that hour by the Postmaster General to King George himself. The writer bought the next set, the postmaster selecting the stamps adjoining those sent to King George."

Of the stamps shown us by Mr. Squires we note that the 6c, 12c and 20c are in the same design as the previous set, the 4c and 8c have the figures in the lower corners in colorless characters, while the 4c and 8c have large colored figures on a white ground. We have not seen the values above the 20c. Some correction must be made in the list as printed in No. 1149, the 8c being gray green and the 12c violet on yellow, in the new color scheme.

M. T. Perkins reports having seen the 10c King George on a letter, confirming Mr. Squires' letter.

INDIA.—Grant Squires reports that the rupee value of the King George stamps was to be placed on sale after Feb. 15. The values above 3r are seldom used, except upon telegrams, all of which must be prepaid by the affixed stamps.

ITALY.—Louise W. Kellogg has shown us the 2c and 5c values of Italy with the 14 different surcharges "Libia" for the newly acquired territory, formerly known as "Tripoli" and the others for the thirteen islands in the Aegean sea, occupied by the Italians during the recent war. The names of these islands as they appear on the stamps are: Calimno, Caso, Cos, Karki, Leros, Lipso, Nisiro, Patmos, Piscopi, Rodi, Scarpanto, Simi and Stampalia. Mrs. Kellogg also shows the current 10c, 15c, 25c, 40c and 50c stamps of Italy, surcharged "Libia" and the 25c and 50c values surcharged "Egeo."

Champion's Bulletin says the 2c, 5c, 10c, 15c, 25c, 40c and 50c values have all received the 14 surcharges above named.

LIBERIA.—Whitfield King & Co., have shown us two new provisionals from this country, or rather varieties of stamps previously issued. Scott's Nos. 112 and 319 have been issued perforated instead of rouletted, thus constituting a distinct variety. No. 319 has the frame in black and the centre in ultramarine.

NETHERLANDS.—George H. Sleeper has shown us a copy of the 1/2c rose of 1876 which has the top perforation across the stamp just above the central circle so that the name of the country is entirely missing.

NEWFOUNDLAND.—Albert H. Gleason calls our attention to the fact that the 3c of 1898-99 is to be found in two distinct types, one being nearly 1 mm. taller than the other. Both have the American Bank Note Co. imprint.

NICARAGUA.—George H. Sleeper shows us several curiosities from this country as follows: a. A copy of Scott's No. 647, used for postage; b. The 2c of 1900, surcharged "Impuesto de Caminos—Vale $10." used for postage and Scott's No. 896, the back being printed like Scott's No. 285 with a broad black bar across the printing.

PORTUGUESE INDIES.—W. H. Peckitt has shown us the Vasco da Gama set with "Republica" surcharge, and also several of the recently issued bisected provisionals.

RUSSIA.—William L. Aldrich & Co. have shown us the complete set from 1k to 70k as noted last week. When seen in their true colors these stamps present a very striking and beautiful appearance. The designs with portrait of the present Czar are especially well designed. We have also been shown a set of these stamps by the New England Stamp Co.

PARCEL POST MAPS AND GUIDES.

The attention of postmasters is directed to the last cover page of the parcel post regulations. The widest publicity should be given to the fact that a parcel post map and accompanying guide may be purchased by remitting 75 cents in postal money order to the Chief Clerk, Post Office Department, Washington, D. C. Stamps, checks, bank money orders, drafts, etc., are not acceptable for this purpose and will be returned to the sender if received.

The price of the parcel post guide is 55 cents and the map 20 cents. However, patrons must be informed that the map is useless without the guide, and that the guide is useless without the map.

Postmasters will furnish to the public upon request information relative to changes in the parcel post guide and regulations.

EXHIBITION NEWS.

The Secretary of the great stamp Exhibition, John A. Klemann will shortly send out notices to all the members of the association requesting them to vote for ten directors, who will be elected on March 10th next. The directors occupy a very important office although their duties will be confined to the week of the exhibition, when they will be expected to receive the foreign notables and prominent officers of the government. Mr. Klemann will send each member a set of the superb commemorative stamp, these are printed in six colors, blue, green, red, orange, olive and lake, they are certainly the finest specimens of stamp engraving ever made and a grand advertisement for their makers the Hamilton Bank Note Co., of New York. Collectors desirous of joining should send in their names together with one dollar immediately which will enable them to vote at the coming election and will also secure them a complete set of the beautiful souvenir stamps.

THE COLUMBUS STAMP EXCHANGE.

We have received from Ernest S. Jaros, advertising manager for A. Lazarus & Co., Columbus, O., additional particulars of the boys' stamp exchange that this firm has established. The meetings of the Exchange are held weekly, the first being Jan. 11 when 109 boys attended. Sixty-three stamp prizes were given to those who either were or desired to become collectors.

On Saturday, Jan. 18, 110 attended, of which number 96 received gifts. On Jan. 25 the attendance was 125 and 111 boys received gifts.

The membership cards were started on Jan. 18 when 96 members were enrolled. The next week 46 more were enrolled, making a total of 142 members.

Most of the boys come at 2 o'clock when the Exchange opens and stay the rest of the afternoon. Two very large tables are reserved for them, one for reading and the other for trading. The boys in pairs and groups make the place look like a young stock exchange.

A dozen collections are usually brought by their owners and a little later a nice prize will be given every boy who can show a neatly mounted collection. Mr. Jaros, who can be addressed in care of the firm, offers any possible help to stores or stamp collectors clubs which would care to take up the Boys' Stamp Exchange in their respective cities.

Besides stamp papers, other boys' magazines are received regularly and placed upon the reading table.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 231, Altadena, Calif.

THE BEGINNERS' GUIDE.

A GUIDE TO CLASSIFICATION—(Continued).

Dansk. Vest Indsk.—Danish West Indies.
Deutsche Reichs Post.—An inscription, meaning "German Imperial Post," shown upon all the stamps of the German Empire issued from 1872 to 1889.
Deutsches Reich.—The Teutonic rendering of "German Empire" as shown upon all the current stamps of Germany.
Deutsch Neu Guinea.—German New Guinea.
Deutsch Ostafrika.—German East Africa.
Deutsch Sudwestafrika.—German South-west Africa.
Diligencia.—The only inscription, apart from the value, shown upon the stamps forming the first issue for Uruguay.
D. J.—These letters overprinted upon the 5c stamps of the 1892 issue for Oboko signify they were intended for use in Djibouti.
Dragons.—These, with a few Oriental characters, form the chief portion of the design of the early stamps of Japan.
Duc. di Parma.—Duchy of Parma.
Eagle.—A double-headed eagle forms the main design of many of the stamps of Austria, Austrian Italy, and Bosnia. In the case of the latter only the numerals of value are given; the stamps for Austria have values in "kreutzer" or "kr"; while those for Austrian Italy have value in "centes" or "soldi." A set for use in the Austrian Post-offices in the Levant can be distinguished by the value which is expressed as "sld" instead of "kr."
Egyptiennes.—Egypt.
Emp. Ottoman.—"Ottoman Empire" or Turkey.
Escuelas.—The only inscription shown on many of the stamps of Venezuela.
Espana.—Spain.
Estero.—This overprint on Italian stamps shows they were for use in the Post-offices maintained in the Turkish Empire.
Estensi.—The inscription identifying the stamps of Modena.
Figures.—None of the stamps of Brazil issued prior to 1866 bear any indication of their origin. The designs consist of large figures only (denoting the facial values) on an engraved background.
Franco.—This word, meaning "free," is the only inscription (other than the value) shown on some of the stamps of Switzerland.
Franco Bollo.—(See "Bollo").
Franco-Scrisorei.—An inscription shown on the early stamps of Roumania.
G.—This letter, overprinted on certain stamps of the Cape of Good Hope signifies they were for use in Griqualand.
G & D.—These letters, overprinted on certain French Colonial postage due stamps, show they were for use in Guadeloupe and Dependencies.
G. F. B.—These letters were overprinted on some of the stamps of Tonga to convert them into Official labels.
G. P. E.—These letters were overprinted on certain French Colonial stamps for use in the colony of Guadeloupe.
Granadina.—This name appears on the 1859-60 stamps of Colombia.
Guyane Francaise.—French Guiana.
Guinée Francaise.—French Guinea.
Guy. Franc.—An overprint applied to certain French Colonial stamps intended for use in French Guiana.
Helvetia.—Switzerland.
H. H. Nawab Shah Jahan Begam.—The only English inscription on many of the stamps of Bhopal.
H. I. & U. S.—Hawaiian Islands and United States. This inscription appears on one of the rare 13c Missionary stamps of Hawaii.

H R Z G L.—Shown on the 1864 stamps for Holstein.
Imper. Reg. Posta Austr.—Austrian Levant.

Instruccion.—The only inscription on some of the stamps of Venezuela.
IONIKON.—Ionian Islands.
Island.—Iceland.
Jeend.—Jhind.
K G L Post Frm.—On the early stamps of Denmark (value in skillings) or Danish West Indies (value in cents).
Kamerun.—Cameroons.
Karolinen.—Caroline Islands.
Kais. Konigl. Oesterr. Post.—On many of the stamps of Austria.
K. K. Post-stempel.—On the early stamps of Austria (values in "kr") and Austrian Italy (values in "centes").
Korea.—Corea.
KPTH.—Crete.
Kr. (or "Kreutzer").—Shown on many of the stamps of Austria.
Land-Post.—On some of the local stamps of Baden.
Lion.—The most prominent feature in the design of the early Persian stamps.
Magyar kir. Posta.—Hungary.
Marianen.—Marianne Islands.
Maroc.—Morocco (French offices).
Marruecos.—Morocco (Spanish offices).
Marschell-Inseln.—Marshall Islands.
Mejico.—Mexico.
Mocambique.—Mozambique.
Modonesi.—Modena.
M. Q. E.—These letters overprinted on certain French Colonial stamps signify they were intended for use in Martinique.

OUR BOOK REVIEW.

Year Book of the U. S. R. S.—We have received from W. W. Norton, the secretary of the U. S. R. S. a copy of the Year Book for 1912. It is the sixth annual publication of the Society and will prove of permanent value by reason of the inclusion of the 1912 prize essay "Metallic Tax Stamps for Cotton" by Chas. A. Nast. The article is fully illustrated and will prove of permanent value. The Year Book contains the customary minutes and list of members.

GRIEST MOVES FOR SPECIAL STAMP.

The issuance of a special postage stamp in commemoration of the one hundredth anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Ghent is proposed in a bill introduced Feb. 7 in the House of Representatives by Congressman W. W. Griest, of Pennsylvania. In 1914 the century of peace between the English-speaking nations will be celebrated, and the specially designed stamp suggested will be somewhat similar to the stamps issued for the Hudson-Fulton celebration, the Lincoln centenary and the Buffalo exposition.

KNICK-KNACKS.

"My dime sets are the best ever offered at ten cents," advertises a dealer. Evidently, he offers them at a tenth of a dollar.

Third Assistant General Britt says that bank notes and coin are parcel post mail; and in consequence, we await the kind attention of friends.

A newspaper has it: "The revolutionists in looting the town spared the printing offices, strangely enough." They had the surcharges in mind.

The Honorable Mr. Stamper of Virginia has been advanced as a cabinet possibility for Postmaster General to lure philatelic support away from Parnassus Penflip.

"I got my start as a collector in looking over the album of a neighbor," confesses a writer. It is something to admit it, anyway, old Moonrise.

"My stamps laugh with me when I am glad and sigh with me when I am sad," gurgles one of the ecstatic school of philatelic writers. They must be of the 90% off class.

When Mr. Wolsieffer's clerk asked for fifty each of the five and ten cent Pacific-Panama stamps at the Chicago office, the postal chap said that no such quantity could be sold to one person as these stamps were issued for stamp collectors. Anyway, Mr. W. is a stamp dealer.

"A merry quip of mine has gained a wide currency and lest you receive it in garbled form, I shall send you the authorized version," writes one of them. "I haven't the twenty-cent parcel post, the one with the aeroplane," casually remarked one of a group of philatelists, and quick as a flash, I volleyed, "Get it at once; it is bound to rise." Do you pay for items of this kind? No, we charge to print them.

DO NOT REMIT IN STAMPS.

The expense and trouble attached to the cashing of stamps is so great that remittances in the future must be made by express, or money order or by check. Better still, enclose a dollar bill and renew for two years.
 This notice applies to advertisers as well, unless 10% is allowed for discounting.

New member, No. 220, J. A. Nosworthy, Maxwell Road, Blenheim, New Zealand.

Application to be re-instated, Edw. W. Heusinger, San Antonio, Texas. Mr. Heusinger was a charter member, being No. 9, resigned June, 1899; became a member again, then resigned again Sept., 1904. Proposed by S. M. Edwards.

Resigned, Henry Ades Fowler.

Dues received since last report from 137, 217 and applicant, total $1.50.

In my report for December the total receipts was printed $3.00; the secretary reported $5.00.

Members sending in the names of foreign applicants should charge 60 cents instead of 50c, as the postage on correspondence by the secretary is more than on internal correspondence.

It is advisable that we do not give away our list of members to non-members. Let the one wanting our list become a member. The secretary is in possession of information that a non-member has been sending to members an account of a great find of postals and offering to members. Many members have a great many duplicates that they wish to dispose of at very reasonable prices. Patronize these first.

The story of this portrait, the best known likeness of the "Father of His Country," should be familiar to all. The artist was Gilbert Charles Stuart, an American painter, who was in England until after the Revolution. He then became desirous of painting his most illustrious countryman, and returned for the express purpose. While Congress was in session at Philadelphia in 1794, Stuart went thither with letters of introduction to Washington from John Jay. He first met his famous subject on a reception evening, and was greeted by him with dignified cordiality. Familiar as was the artist with eminent men, he afterwards declared that no human being ever awakened in him the sentiment of reverence to such a degree. For a moment he lost his self-possession—with him an experience quite unprecedented—and it was not until several interviews that he felt himself enough at home with his sitter to give the requisite concentration of mind to his work.

The portrait itself was finished in due course, but the background was never filled in, and in that condition it still remains. At the same time he also painted a portrait of Martha Washington, which remains in like condition. Concerning these portraits Miss Stuart says: "When General and Mrs. Washington took their last sittings, my father told Washington it would be of great importance to him to retain the originals, to which Washington replied: 'Certainly, Mr. Stuart, if they are of any consequence to you; I shall be perfectly satisfied with copies from your hand, as it will be impossible for me to sit again at present.' The copies made from the originals were for Mount Vernon. A short time after these last pictures were finished, the President called on my father to express the perfect satisfaction of Mrs. Washington and himself at his success."

The above extract apparently refutes the common story to the effect that Stuart's first trial did not suit him and was erased; that the next attempt was the one under discussion, which was so successful that the artist did not want to part with it, keeping it "unfinished" as an excuse, while he made copies of it.

After the death of Stuart these two portraits were offered by his widow to the State of Massachusetts (the artist's home was in Boston) for the sum of one thousand dollars, which offer was declined. Subsequently an English gentleman offered ten thousand dollars for the pair; but while Mrs. Stuart was hesitating, thinking they ought to remain in America, he became impatient and departed. Some time after that, an offer of fifteen hundred dollars was accepted from the Washington Association and other gentlemen who, in 1831, presented them to the Boston Athenaeum, whence the name usually applied to them. Here they remained for fifty years, when they were transferred to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, where they now are.

We give a cut of the Milbury stamp to show how much it does not look like Washington, although supposed to have been copied from the New York stamp. We also include a cut of one of the New York Carriers' stamps, for practically the same reason. The latter belonged first to a private delivery company, which so cut into the Post Office business that the Government practically bought them out by employing them, adding the name "United States" to the former title of "City Despatch Post." These were really the first stamps in this country and the first following the example of Great Britain. The Confederate States likewise chose to represent Washington on one of their issues, as will be seen by the 20c green of the 1863 issue (Scott's A9), and adopted the Athenaeum portrait which was very well reproduced. It might be added, in passing, that the head of Martha Washington on the current 8 cent stamp is from the companion portrait of the Athenaeum Washington, which was spoken of above.

But one other portrait of Washington has been employed upon the United States stamps. The ninety cent values of both the 1857 and 1861-8 issues present features of quite a different aspect from the venerable face of Stuart's. The original was a full length figure of Washington painted by John Trumbull, another American artist. He knew the General at the outbreak of the Revolution, when he was about forty-five and in the prime of life, and was with him again toward the close of the war in 1782-3. No other artist saw more of Washington under circumstances so favorable to a study of his person and character, and none was honored by him with more sittings.

Trumbull, in his autobiography, says: "In 1792 I was again in Philadelphia, and there painted the portrait of General Washington which is now placed in the gallery at New Haven, the best, in my estimation, which exists, in his heroic military character. The city of Charleston, South Carolina, intrusted William R. Smith, one of the Representatives of South Carolina, to employ me to paint for them a portrait of the great man, and I undertook it con amore, (as the commission was unlimited,) meaning to give him military character, in the most sublime moment of its exertion—the evening previous to the battle of Princeton; when viewing the vast superiority of his approaching enemy, and the impossibility of again crossing the Delaware, or retreating down the river, he conceives the plan of returning by a night march into the country from which he had just been driven, thus cutting off the enemy's communications, and destroying his depot of stores and provisions at Brunswick. I told the President my object; he entered into it warmly, and as the work advanced, we talked of the scene, its dangers, its almost desperation. He looked the scene again, and I happily transferred to the canvas the lofty expression of his animated countenance, the high resolve to conquer or to perish. The result was, in my opinion, eminently successful, and the General was satisfied. But it did not meet the views of Mr. Smith. He admired, he was personally pleased, but he thought the city would be better satisfied with a more matter-of-fact likeness, such as they had recently seen him—calm, tranquil, peaceful. . . . Another was painted for Charleston, agreeable to their taste—a view of the city in the background, a house with scenery, and plants of the climate; and when the State Society of the Cincinnati of Connecticut dissolved themselves, the first picture, at the expense of some of the members, was presented to Yale College."

Trumbull claimed that his portrait represented Washington as he knew him, and as he was known to his associates, the members of his military

MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS
BOSTON, MASS.

A GREAT COLLECTION

AT AUCTION IN MAY, 1913

We take pleasure in announcing that we have recently secured for auction the superb collection of Mr. Henry Chapman, of Philadelphia. Mr. Chapman has been an ardent collector for over forty years and has bought heavily in this country and Europe, having accumulated a wonderful lot of stamps both new and used. We are preparing an important section of the collection for auction and expect to have the large illustrated catalogue ready for mailing in April. The U. S. postage stamps are about complete, both new and used and in magnificent condition with numerous splendid shades. The Departments are complete and immaculate, and the foreign stamps will be a revelation.

Intending exhibitors at the International Exhibition to be held in New York next October will find this a golden opportunity to complete their collections and to improve stamps in faulty condition. Write to-day to have your name put on our mailing list. Our March Stamp Drummer will contain more detailed information. [48]

PHILADELPHIA STAMP COMPANY,

PERCIVAL PARRISH, PRESIDENT

1204 CHESTNUT STREET

family. He said his aim was "to preserve the military character of the great original," and that "in the countenance of the hero the likeness, the mere map of his face, was not all that was attempted." It is a good portrait, and many artists affirm that, from internal evidence, it is doubtless the truest likeness of the man.

We now come to the third representation of Washington, the profile bust. The Act of Congress approved March 3, 1851, reduced the single rate for letters to three cents, and the new issue required in consequence shows the features of the first President in this form upon the stamp for ordinary correspondence. A list of the stamps bearing this profile bust is as follows:

Issue of 1851-7, 3 cents.
" 1861-8, 3 cents.
" 1870, 3 cents.
Departments, 1873, 3 cents.
Issue of 1883-8, 2 cents.
" 1890-4, 2 cents.
" 1908-9, 2c, 3c, 4c, 5c, 6c, 8c, 10c, 13c, 15c, 50c, $1.00.
" 1910, 2c, 3c, 4c, 5c, 6c, 8c, 10c, and 15c.
" 1912, 1, 2 cents.

Newspaper, 1865, 5 cents.

This likeness is taken from the marble statue of Washington in the State Capitol at Richmond, Virginia. The story of the statue is as follows: The General Assembly of Virginia, soon after the declaration of peace that closed the Revolution, decreed a statue to General Washington, to be placed in the Capitol in Richmond, and "to be the finest marble and best workmanship." Jefferson and Franklin, being then in Paris, were authorized to select the artist, and they chose Jean Antoine Houdon. Concerning him Jefferson wrote: "He is the finest statuary of his age," and again: "He is without rivalship in it, being employed in all parts of Europe in whatever is capital."

It was necessary for Houdon to see Washington to take his figure, and the latter wrote him: "It will give me pleasure, Sir, to welcome you to this seat of my retirement, and whatever I have or can procure that is necessary to your purposes or convenient or agreeable to your wishes, you must freely command, as inclination to oblige you will be among the last things in which I shall be found deficient."

Houdon reached Mount Vernon on October 3, 1785, and remained a fortnight, during which time he took a cast of the face, head and upper part of the body, and minute measurements of his person, and studies of the costume of the period which Washington daily wore.

The artist was to receive as compensation for the statue and pedestal, 25,000 livres or $5,000, and his expenses for the trip to Virginia reimbursed to him. In addition, his life was to be insured during the time of his absence from France. The contract allowed him three years for the completion of the statue, and it was done within the time.

The State Capitol, however, was not finished, so that the statue was not shipped until its site was ready for it. It was finally erected in the quadrangle of the Capitol on May 14, 1796.

The statue is a remarkably fine piece of chiseling, the treatment of the face being so delicate that it needs but the flush of natural color to make it absolutely lifelike. It presents the figure erect, the head uncovered, the sword on the left, the cane in the right hand, and the fasces and plough at his side. It is exact life size—six feet two inches in height. Those acquainted with Washington have pronounced this statue the best representation of his person which exists. Lafayette, on his visit to America in later years, pronounced it a "facsimile of Washington's person." It therefore well deserves the place which has been given it upon the stamps of our country.

Beside the adhesive stamps, the Houdon bust has been placed upon all the envelope stamps bearing Washington's head. All the Civil War revenues, also, had Stuart's portrait as an invariable center piece down to 1875. On the proprietary issues from 1875 to 1881, however, Houdon's profile bust appears. The Stuart portrait will likewise be found upon a beer stamp of 1878, a tobacco stamp of 1868, a snuff stamp of 1872, and a few stamps for imported cigars.

SINN FEIN STAMPS TABOOED.

Herbert Samuel, the Postmaster General, who has been steadily cultivating popularity in Ireland, has suddenly come into conflict with the "Sinn Fein" element by curtailing their sources of revenue.

For some years the Sinn Feiners have used an adhesive stamp supposed to be emblematic of their protestations against English domination in Ireland. This stamp, which corresponded in size with the ordinary official one, every good Sinn Feiner was expected to use in connection with his correspondence. Some of the more militant actually appropriated the customary position on the front and relegated the official mail stamp to the back of the envelope.

The Postmaster General has now declared that he will be responsible no longer for the delivery of any mail packet or letter bearing a Sinn Fein stamp. This decision must seriously affect the revenue account of the Sinn Fein movement.

THE DALAI LAMA'S NEW STAMP.

Tibet is shortly to be provided with a distinctive postage stamp issue in place of the overprinted Chinese stamps recently withdrawn from sale. The necessary dies, etc., are said to have been manufactured in India, and the stamps will be brought into use on the return of the Dalai Lama to Lhasa.

One Cent Each.

The young collector is sure to add quite a nice lot to his album, as will the collector of mature years.

Since these "Yellow Fellows" have been made up at least 650 collectors have sent for them and more than 16,500 stamps have been sold from them.

Why not send for one? The requirements are simple enough.

They will be sent to General Collectors with 3000 or less varieties who will guarantee to return the book in five days or less.

I have 40 copies made up.
Send for one today and remember to say:—"I will return the book within 5 days or less."

A GREAT OPPORTUNITY.

The way our $1.00 SPECIALS have "caught on" has stimulated us to greater efforts, and here comes the very best one yet. We've bought several collections of UNITED STATES this week, which with their duplicates amount to about $1000 Catalogue value. Every series from 1851 to date are well represented, the various grilles, the 1869 series, as high as the 24c, the high value Expositions, the various $1.00 values, Stamps that will catalogue as high as $4.50 each.
The entire lot have been made into 200 packets. We guarantee that each will catalogue at least $4.00, and many will run as high as $6.00 or $7.00 each. Each contains from 25 to 40 stamps. All Unused. No Cut Squares. No Revenues. $1.02 the Packet in New York Funds

NOTES—MAINLY PALCEL POST.

By WM. E. MARSH.

Where is the three center? In this postoffice, Oklahoma City, none have been on sale and the deputy postmaster informs me that none have passed through the mail here. I have handled several hundred incoming parcels so far and have seen none.

Perfect specimens are not very numerous relatively. The postage series are cut into panes of one hundred, which gives 19 stamps to the pane with one or more straight edges. The parcels post series are forty-five to the pane, which gives 14 with straight edges. This is 31 per cent. against 19 per cent. in the postage series.

The perforations so far are poor. With larger stamps and fewer to the sheet, theoretically the stamps should average up with much better centers than in the postage series, but such is not the case.

There is plenty of variety for the cancellation cranks. So far the writer has seen the regular circles, smudges, rubber stamp, pen and a beautiful precancel from Cleveland, Ohio. Most of the cancelling is light enough to leave the specimens in fairly good shape.

It is going to be much easier to get a full collection of all the values than it has ever been with a postage series. Firms who find use for the system discovered the first week that it would be advantageous to keep all values on hand and stocked up accordingly. So we do not get many pairs of a smaller value, instead of one of a larger, as was customary on the old postal classification.

By the way, we all call it "parcels post" but the stamps are officially designated by the P. O. Department as "parcel post."

The chap who discovered the colorless dots on the due series and reported same to the WEEKLY, ought to have a gold medal and the minor variety extremists will howl with delight.

It is reported from Lincoln, Neb., that wholesalers and others who had on hand large stocks of high values of the postage series are kicking because they cannot be exchanged for the P. P. stamps. Little justice in this kick as they had six months to unload.

Another ruling last week by the department threw a large part of the old third class mail into the new class. Some rather remarkable hairsplitting develops as usual. The writer submitted a large printed catalogue to the local P. O. for a ruling. It was ruled that it was printed matter but if a couple of order blanks were pasted in it, it would be parcels post, or the same result would be accomplished by attaching a small sample of the goods offered for sale.

The writer is here alone, more lonely than a genuine original on the Heligoland page. He lived in Minneapolis four years without ever discovering that "McCann can" then moved to Columbus Ohio and had a royal good time with the Columbus Stamp Collectors Club. But out here so far he has not struck the bunch if there is any bunch. So if this falls before the eye of any Oklahoma City collector, just look me up at the Western Newspaper Union.

COMMUNICATIONS.

(We do not hold ourselves responsible for the views expressed by our readers. Our columns are always open for communications of general interest.—Ed.)

MORGANTOWN, N. C., Jan. 19, 1913.

TO THE EDITOR:—

In re "We Should Wonder," Mr. Richard's statement is not wholly clear. I suppose he meant that this specialist collector bought at auction for his collection a stamp which on examination proved to his satisfaction a counterfeit. His duty then was to have notified the auctioneer that the stamp was in his opinion a counterfeit and that he held it subject to the auctioneer's orders. The specialist had no property in the stamp and no right to mark it in any way and he was entirely outside of his rights when he marked the stamp. No man can legally act as judge, jury and executioner in a case where he is personally interested. If he wants to sit in judgment and pronounce a stamp counterfeit, which has not been submitted to him for expert examination, and then pay only the counterfeit price, when there is no fixed or catalog price for counterfeits he ought to be made to pay the full bid price.

Yours fraternally,

J. ARTHUR WAINWRIGHT,
Morgantown, N. C.

TO THE EDITOR:—

For a number of years I have enjoyed the WEEKLY, but for a time I suffered a philatelic hiatus due to stress of business. I have never seen anything published about the Merchants' Union Express Company Newspaper stamps. I have a set of five of these stamps on parts of the original covers: A 5, 25 and 50 on one strip of cover and a 10 on a separate piece. The stamps are 3 1/2 x 1 1/2 inches, imperforate, black on yellow wove paper. The ornamental border in the upper corners suggests the ornamentations in the corners of the 1c and 3c stamps of the 1861-67 postage issue. In the lower left hand corner is an express team, a steamboat dock and a mail train, the locomotive recalling our old friend of the 3c stamp of '69. In the center is a larger numeral underlying the printed directions in delicate cross-line lithograph. These artistic labels, or stamps, are surcharged in red by the New York agent's name. "The charges on this package are prepaid over the Railroad & Steamboat lines occupied by this Company subject to the following conditions," says the superscription.

In view of the adoption Jan. 1st, this year, of the Parcels Post, the circular letter of instructions issued by the Merchants' Union Express Company, which fell into my hands with the stamps, is interesting. It reads: "The New York News Co., No. 8 Spruce St., Opposite Tribune Building, New York, June 15th, 1867.

"Dear Sir:—On and after date the Merchants' Union Express Company will carry newspapers and magazines to all points in the United States, where they have agencies, at mail rates; and books and other mailable matter at the uniform rate of 8 cents per pound, which is considerable less than mail rate.

"Your interest will be promoted by having your goods sent by the Merchants' Union Express Company. By so doing you will save time and money."

Pre-paid rates:

OUR ENGLISH PATRONS.

The Ginn & Co. advertisement is rather unique in that a superb lot of King Edward colonials is offered, all with margins showing control numbers etc. The firm has reserved for its American clients a sufficient supply to meet the demands made upon them.

Harmer, Rooke & Co. appeals to our readers with the London auction market as their theme. Those interested in auction sales will do well to look up this firm.

The Peckitt advertisement of new issues shows how versatile this firm is in catering to the wishes of new issue collectors. This firm leads the world in this line of goods, and no collector of newly issued stamps can afford to omit looking up the firm's offerings.

Mr. Giwelb's modest advertisement is hardly in keeping with the splendid stock of stamps that he is able to supply.

It is with great satisfaction that "Colonials" is again added to our list of advertisers. Mail matter will be addressed in care of the Morse Agency, N. Y. City and careful attention will be paid all orders. Up to two years ago the advertisements of "Colonials" appeared regularly in the WEEKLY and we welcome the return to our columns. Our subscribers need have no hesitancy in doing business with this firm through the Morse Agency.

ANENT C. F. RICHARDS' "PROBLEM."

By E. B. HILL.

The "certain specialist" who purchased a stamp at auction, and upon investigation found it to be a counterfeit, should have returned it in the condition in which it was sent to him. He had absolutely no right to mark it in any way, until the stamp became his property by purchase. It was merest presumption to accuse the owner or the agent of any intent to defraud. As a question of ethics, I think it apparent the "specialist" was the self-acknowledged perpetrator of the greatest discourtesy, if indeed his act were not held altogether a dishonest one. Both agent and owner might be held justified in declaring the stamp returned, not the stamp which was sent. Its condition would be proof.

CASH IN YOUR DUPLICATES.

If you, Mr. Collector, have duplicates which you want to turn into money, or if you have become tired of collecting and want to dispose of your collection for cash, to the best advantage, I offer my services as a Middle-Man—if I was inclined to put on airs I would call myself a stamp broker in this regard.

I have a very select clientele who want to buy United States Stamps at fair prices. The stamps must be clean, well centered, and undamaged. Such stamps are not to be had at wholesale, and when buying collections one must figure on a large percent of the cheap stamps as practically unsaleable. I figure, and have proven it is true, that the most satisfactory way for all concerned is to take the stamps the collector has to dispose of, and offer them to my customers who want them.

For such service I charge a small commission to cover advertising, clerical work, insurance and a little profit.

I solicit consignments of United States adhesives, departments, envelopes and revenues, in fine condition only, to be sold on a brokerage (commission) basis. There is a big demand at this time for blocks and strips with plate numbers. I also solicit want lists from responsible collectors who appreciate personal efforts to please them.

In consigning stamps please remember that the lower the net price named the quicker will be the cash returns. An itemized bill must accompany all consignments, which must be registered to insure safety.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Herman W. Boers says he has tried fifteen dealers to obtain the stamps he advertises for in the Small Ads. Column. Possibly you can accommodate Mr. Boers.

—"Your paper is the best stamp paper, published and I subscribe to ten. The other nine can't hold a candle to yours."

—ALLAN L. TOMES.

—W. E. Beam, Bedford, Pa., calls our attention to the reports concerning the 1c parcel post stamps used as regular postage. Mr. Beam believes from an examination of a number of covers bearing these stamps that instead of being mailed as first class the envelopes contained matter properly belonging to the parcel post service.

—In the quarter page advertisement of the Ararat Stamp Co. were one or two mistakes that the firm does not charge upon the printer, and which we are glad to correct. A set of Austria Levant 1908 had the 1pia advertised at 5c when the 2pia should have been advertised. Under New South Wales the 2sh 6p advertised at 15c should have been dated 1905 instead of 1902.

—Frank C. Davis submits two covers showing Italian military franks, stamped in blue and purple ink respectively. Two large circles surround the Italian coat of arms, the space between the circles being occupied with a description designating the regiment or division. The postmarks on the two envelopes are Tripolitania and Bangasi.

—We are indebted to W. O. Thiede, Appleton, Wis., for a specimen of the 1c parcel post precanceled "St. Louis, Missouri" in two lines in sans serif caps with rules above and below.

—The H. S. Powell Stamp Co., Storm Lake, Ia., is sending out their new price list in a 1907 No. 13 1c white open end stamped envelope. The firm will be very willing to send a copy of the list to anyone who has not received the same.

—The manager of the Robt. Millard Co., Detroit, Mich., writes, "This is our fourth year of advertising with you and no one has ever complained of the quality of our stamps."

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from P. S. Hedrick (8), Hugo Kuenstler (9), F. W. Lynes (10), Geo. W. Schaefer (3), Edw. Luedke, Herman W. Boers.

—A. B. Frawley announces this week that his business will in the future be conducted under the name of the Washington Stamp Co. The Company will make a specialty of wholesale lots and particularly Cuban.

—The annual banquet of the Chicago Philatelic Society will be held Thursday evening, Feb. 27, at the Palmer House. Tickets are $1.50 and the same can be obtained from P. M. Wolsieffer, chairman of the banquet committee.

—We have received the prospectus of the International Philatelic Exhibition to be held at New York in October. A copy can be obtained from John A. Klemann, 179 Broadway, N. Y. City.

—We are indebted to M. Swenson, Gabriel Cannon, Edwin J. Abbott, T. C. Whallon, H. V. Blackburn, Henry Jonas, S. M. Wallin, F. W. Palmer, John U. Hoffman, Harry Gordon and others who have not sent their names for copies of the Jan. 18 issue of the WEEKLY that were desired for the completion of our office files. Other copies received will be acknowledged next week.

—"I have been a subscriber to the WEEKLY from Vol. I, and have been reading and enjoying the paper for 27 years and hope to continue for a good many more."—HENRY JONAS.

CHAMPION'S WHOLESALE LIST.

We have received many letters this season asking for addresses of wholesale stamp dealers. The number of American wholesalers that we were able to supply has been limited but a price list just at hand from Theodore Champion prices stamps by the 10, 50, 100 and even 10,000 pieces, covering a wide range of countries. In addition to single stamps there is a good line of sets and what are termed "special offerings." The book runs to more than a hundred pages, is issued each month, and will be sent postfree to any dealer requesting it. This notice is designed to aid the many dealers who have written us for information about wholesale offerings.

EXHIBITION NEWS.

By EUGENE KLEIN, Chmn. Publicity Com.

The following names have been added to the Committee of Honor:—The Philatelic Society of New Zealand; Sydney Philatelic Club; Mr. C. F. Williams, Sydney, N. S. W.; Sr. Jorge E. Rodriguez, Buenos Aires, Argentine; Rittmeister W. von Polansky, Warsaw, Russia.

A letter was received from C. F. Williams, President of the Sydney Philatelic Club, expressing cordial feelings and wishing much success to the coming Exhibition. A donation was also enclosed.

The silver award cups which were presented by the Scott Stamp & Coin Company and the New England Stamp Company are being exhibited in the show window of the former firm at 127 Madison Ave.

The beautifully engraved Exhibition Stamps presented by the Hamilton Bank Note Company have been printed in five colors. They are the finest labels ever gotten out to advertise a stamp exhibition. A complete set of five will be given to each member of the Association for Stamp Exhibitions. Membership fee is $1.

EDITORIAL

A Word of Welcome—Two thousand or so persons who manifest varying degrees of interest in stamp collecting will see a copy of our paper for the first time, in all probability. To them we extend the hand of philatelic fellowship and we cordially invite them to ally themselves with progressive philately. This paper designs itself to be the mentor of the average collector. While by no means ignoring the advanced or serious side of philately, yet it is to the collector of the masses that the most direct and general appeal is made by the WEEKLY. We thoroughly understand the aspirations of these collectors and we can have no loftier ambitions than to conduct them into the pleasanter fields of philately with the wish to unfold the underlying attractions of our pursuit.

A Block of Grills—A block of eleven unused three-cent 1867, grided, has been acquired from the lower right hand corner of the pane of one hundred stamps, —there are three rows of three stamps each and adjoining the top row of three stamps is a pair, all flanked by the marginal strips at the right side and bottom. The gridding of United States stamps is being made the subject of study by specialists and this block is a helpful example, so to say, of the application of the grill. The peculiarity of the block under notice is that two stamps of the eleven are grided abnormally, while the others are grided the regulation 11 by 13. The two stamps are grided 11 by 15; on one of them the two extra rows of points giving the 15 instead of 13 dimension are plainer than on the brother stamp on which the extra rows are only faintly punctured. The third stamp in the row next to the two large grill specimens is the normal 11 by 13. As has been said by writers on the subject, the varieties of grill were caused primarily by the wear of the "embosser" which caused the operator to remove one or more rows at the edges of the "embosser," horizontally or vertically or both. It is known that this planing off of the outer rows of embossing points was done with uniformity on all the "boss" bases; and the variations described are exceptional on the same sheet. In explanation of the two 11 by 15 grill, Mr. F. G. Cornwall, president of the American Philatelic Society advances the theory that it was the intention to plane off the "bosses" but through some inadvertence it was not done, although the appearance of the grill on the second stamp shows that the two rows of nodules at the top had been slightly smoothed off.

No Stopping Him—What has become of the old-fashioned collector who spilled tobacco from his pipe as he looked over the pages of his album? Is he playing Authors somewhere with the o. f. c. who never bothered to remove any paper that happened to be on the backs of used specimens before placing them in his stamp book? What has become of the old-fashioned dealer who says that you should have seen the stamp stall that he had at the Centennial at Philadelphia in 1876? Is he hibernating somewhere with the o. f. d. who for the last thirty-eight years has been threatening to quit the stamp business because collectors no longer are the buyers they were once?

* * *

In Ward Thirteen—Said the attendant at the Asylum for the Addled: "Yes, I have got to feel like a brother towards him even though his case is a puzzling one. He calls himself August but that is not his real name. You see, it was this way; he bought the three-cent 1861 issue by the thousands until he had a million of them, I guess and then he started in to search for the August variety. When he got to the 739,624th stamp or so without discovering one, his mind collapsed. Now he thinks that each one of the stamps is the August variety and he spends all his time figuring up how much he could sell them for; that is why he looks so happy."

Two On One—A most interesting item is before us and we believe that a description of it will warm the cockles of the heart of the cover collector who seems to be more aggressively to the fore at present than at any time in the past, although it must be admitted that the cover enthusiast is a recent product. The cover under notice is one on which the one real yellow, Mexico, 1856, is used in conjunction with the ten-cent 1851. The Mexican stamp is obliterated Parral in blue oblong frame extending lengthwise across the stamp and overlapping the stamp both at top and bottom; and the United States ten-cent, 1851, is postmarked, Steamship, so as to include the two stamps and the cover in the range of its impression. Above the stamps is the postmark, New Orleans, Dec. 13, La. At the top of the letter-sheet the sender inscribed the instructions: "Via Vera Cruz y N. O., E. U." The cover was addressed to a point in Pennsylvania, and a notation on it, presumably by the recipient, is "1857." It may be added that the district name on the one real stamp, Mexico, 1856, is Chihuahua, the state in which Parral is situated. We have seen many combinations of Hawaiian and United States stamps on the same envelopes and also of British Columbia and U. S. stamps; and have heard of Cape of Good Hope and United States stamps used side by side on the single cover but until informed to the contrary, the cover that has been described is advanced as being unique.

Sinpod's Search—Sinpod the stamp sage says that he has tabbed a collector who asked for his money back when the stamp that he bought jumped instead of declined in catalogue price: A collector who never yet made the discovery that a nice specimen he had just bought was neatly repaired: A society member who always paid his yearly dues in his organization in advance and (according to a ribald reader) a subscriber who once saw something akin to a joke in the WEEKLY.

* * *

Still Faithful—Dr. E. W. Hodsdon has found the old-fashioned Postmaster who is true to the memories of the past; and he submits documentary proof, we may say, in confirmation of his discovery. A Postmaster of a little New Hampshire town still uses an old "Paid" handstamp although he employs it to stamp money order bills that have been paid. Dr. Hodsdon remarks: "The Postmaster who held the office from 1865 to 1873 used the same stamp. I write this as there are probably few of these old stamps in existence." A sheet of paper bearing of the paid imprints is enclosed in the letter and the familiar "Paid" seems strangely out of place when not seen on the envelope or on its stamp. It may not be known generally that some lovers of United States stamps make a sort of side specialty of U. S. stamps with Paid cancellation, which is met with oftenest, in the 1861 issue, we should say.

* * *

Our Loss—Expressions of sympathy have been received particularly from the older readers and advertisers of the WEEKLY, on the death of I. A. Mekeel, not a few of whom enjoyed the personal acquaintance of Mr. Mekeel. Appreciative biographical notices have appeared in different of the leading class publications; and in the Philatelic Journal of America for February, there is an authoritative and illuminating sketch of his life and business career from the pen of I. A. Mekeel's eldest brother, C. H. Mekeel of St. Louis.

NEW WATERMARK FOR BR. COLONIALS.

It is announced in the Daily Express that permission has been obtained by the Colonial Authorities from the Postmaster General to adopt the royal cipher watermark, recently employed for the stamps of Great Britain, for future issues of British Colonial stamps. Should this change be made it will in all probability be gradual, the new paper being used only as stocks of the old become exhausted. There are not likely to be any wholesale withdrawals such as are now taking place with the King Edward stamps.—Whitfield King's List.

CHAPTER XXIX.

2 Cents Issue of 1870-1879.

One of the most difficult stamps to accurately classify in its different printings and shades is the 2 cents, issue of 1870 to 1879, inclusive. It is rather a handsome stamp to look upon, shades beautifully, and a fairly complete collection makes up a few pages of which any collector might be truly proud.

The stamps were issued almost concurrently with the three cents of the same printing—probably about the middle of April, 1870. But contrary to the general understanding of collectors and students, the first stamps were not grided. This furnishes good grounds for me, personally, not to divorce the printings and classify the grided as issue of 1870 and the stamps without grille as issue of 1871—upward. If proof is needed that stamps without grille appeared before the grided variety, he can turn to the record of plates used. The earliest plate numbers of the stamps without grille are 12, 13, 14, and 15. The grided stamps were printed from plates numbered 36 and 45.

But, as the catalogs, check lists, etc., treat the stamps with grille first, I will, at least, accommodate my chapters to the same form. Mr. Tiffany, in his excellent book on the stamps of the United States, mentioned only a few sizes of the embossing. Mr. Luff, in his later magnificent work, mentions three sizes. There are three additional sizes to be added, with probably more to be discovered as the study of the stamps progresses. The sizes identified to date, so far as I am able to learn, are:

Size.	Points.
8 x 9	10x11
8 x 10	10x12
8 x 10 1/2	10x13
8 1/2 x 10 1/2	11x13
9 x 11	12x14
10 x 12	13x15

An interesting and very scarce variety is the "end roller grille" in which the grille extends from top to bottom of stamp. The grided stamps are found in the following shades—red brown, pale red brown, and orange red.

The stamps without grille differ in no respect from those with the embossing, except that there is a larger range of shades. Mr. Luff classifies the shades as: pale red brown, red brown, deep red brown, orange brown, brown and dark brown. To this list I have nothing to add. The stamps were printed from the following plates: Nos. 12, 13, 14, 15, 28, 30, 31, 35, 45, 46, 47.

The number of stamps issued from April, 1870, to April, 1873 was 240,735,900.

The only interesting variety in the un-grided stamps, is chronicled by Mr. Luff as a 2 cent stamp, and half of another, postmarked from Hardy, Ala.,

April 2, 1872. I do not, however, assert that this is the only variety existing, because many heretofore undiscovered, or rather unchronicled, things are coming out.

When the Continental Bank Note Company took over the contract to make the stamps it created an opening for deep study, some worry, and much doubt and confusion on the part of thousands of stamp collectors. The company engraved a secret mark into the design in such a manner that it often becomes a deeply guarded secret, which is revealed to no one. The catalogs and handbooks describe this secret mark so completely that I do not need to discuss it, except to say that a strong magnifying glass, and an overwhelming power of oratory are often necessary to convince one as to whether the stamp is National or Continental print.

The stamps provided by the Continental Bank Note Company were printed from the following plates: Nos. 2, 3, 4, 6, 161, 162, 163, 164, 165, 167, 168, 169, 234, 241, 242. There were issued from April, 1873 to April, 1876, 253,097,050 stamps.

Mr. Luff gives the following shades: red brown, deep red brown, orange brown, dark brown, black brown, gray brown, bistre brown, brown. This list appears to be very complete.

The chronicled varieties are: Double paper, vertical ribbed paper, horizontal ribbed paper, grided.

Of the varieties I have little to say about the double paper. It is a scarcer stamp than the catalog value indicates. Notwithstanding the omission from the catalog in recent years of the ribbed paper varieties, they do exist and are not scarce. The ribbed effect was caused by passing the paper between rolls of which the faces were slightly fluted. The grided stamps were not intended for postal use, but for legal purposes.

In June, 1875, the color of the 2 cents stamp was changed from brown and its shades to vermilion. and many of the old plates were used for printing. Some new plates were made for later printings. Following is a list of plate numbers used: 161, 162, 163, 164, 165, 166, 167, 168, 169, 234, 241, 242, 245, 246, 296, 297.

Later the stamp, in vermilion and shades, was printed upon a soft, porous paper. The catalogs and text books attribute the printing of the stamps on this paper to the American Bank Note Company, successors to the Continental Bank Note Company. But authentic copies of the stamp on soft paper printed prior to 1879, by the Continental Bank Note Company exist, as is proven by year dated post marks.

If I may be allowed to digress from the topic for a moment, here is a valid reason for the collecting of year dated cancellations. I have been criticised for advocating or advising the collecting of year date cancellations. If it were not for the collection of these such facts as I have stated herewith, and in other cases before (with more evidence to come) would never be proved.

The great degree of success that marked our first STAMP AUCTION makes us determined to equal in our future sales the record that has been established. To that end, we solicit the offer of really good lots and collections for disposal at early auction sales.

The shades given to this stamp are: vermilion, scarlet vermilion, orange vermilion and orange. Please mark that last shade—orange. It is a rare stamp and possessed by but few collectors.

Plates number 296 and 297, made by the Continental Bank Note Company were used by the American Bank Note Company. In addition the following plates were made by the last named concern: 338, 339, 392, 393, 394, 412, 413.

Both the 2 cents brown and 2 cents vermilion figure in the Special Printings of which less than 400 copies of each were sold to the public. The remainder were turned back to the postoffice department and destroyed.

The 2 cents vermilion printed upon the double paper, is a rare stamp and few collections possess the true one. Soft papers have been split by "jokers."

Proofs should, by all means, be collected both on cardboard and India paper.

I'M A COLLECTOR,

Not a dealer. During the past 15 years I have accumulated, by exchange, purchase and at auction, a large number of duplicates. I need the money now and am offering them at prices less than can be procured from any dealer who must replenish his stock. The following represents but a small part of what I wish to sell.

UNITED STATES.—Hermann Focke writes as follows in re the Parcel Post stamps: For some time past I had intended to call the attention of the interested parties,—in this case the kickers—to an absurdity, or may be a little joke on the 10c value of this much abused, all-pink-set of Uncle Sam's philatelic creations, regarding which stamp the WEEKLY states on page 39 that "the picture is taken from a painting of the North German Lloyd Express S. S. 'Kronprinz Wilhelm' entering New York Harbour," etc.

Anybody knowing New York must notice that the steamer which is actually in motion, is not entering, but leaving the harbour, as in a far distance behind the boat are visible New York's skyscrapers, (at least that is what I make out of the background), so that evidently the picture was taken from a place near or on Staten Island, with the boat heading for the Narrows and Lower Bay.

Now, then, this being the case, it will be surprising to see the mail tender at the steamer's side, a thing that never happens with an outgoing mail steamer,—the last mail being received on the dock up to ten minutes before sailing time—the mail boat only going out to meet the incoming steamers, to take off the mails while the latter are delayed at the Quarantine Station.

In other words: we have here an incoming Ocean Steamer (never mind its foreign nationality) which is actually outgoing, or an outgoing steamer with the mail tender at her side, a thing that never happens. I venture to say that there ought to be more people to discover this mistake than those that could have seen the "Gatun Locks" blunder on the 2 cents Panama-Pacific Exposition stamp, of which, it is said, vast quantities had to be destroyed when ready for delivery, because a wise one discovered that the picture actually represented the Pedro Miguel Lock. The picture on this latter stamp is too small and too little known to attract the attention of a dozen people all over the United States. To correct the mistake on the 10c Parcel Post stamp, it would be necessary to re-engrave the background by substituting lower Manhattan by the "mountains" of Staten Island, which would, no doubt, please the many ardent collectors on the Island.

R. W. Boisselier shows us the 1c Panama-Pacific stamp with inverted watermark from plate No. 6127. It is to be supposed that all these stamps like the regular postage stamps are to be found with both normal and inverted watermarks, as the printers are reported to make no distinction in placing the paper on the press.

We are indebted to John Fischer, S. E. Young, M. D., and others for specimens of and information regarding the 2c Panama-Pacific stamp.

Frank Kocher shows us a 2c envelope which has a 5c parcel post stamp affixed both cancelled. This was used to carry laundry slips, which should have been rated as third-class matter.

S. E. Young, M. D., writes as follows: "I have the 1 cent Panama-Pacific stamp plate No. 6132, with inverted watermark. Also 2 cent parcel post due, plate No. 6243, and 10 cent parcel post due, plate 6250, watermark inverted. I received a letter from Washington, D. C., dated January 31, which states that the 3c parcel post stamp had not been issued at that date, but gave no reason for the delay. So far I have seen the following parcel post precancels: Cleveland, O., 1 cent. St. Louis, Mo., 1 cent, Chicago, Ill. 1, 15, 20 cent.

"The envelopes referred to by W. J. Prinzing and E. M. Deterly, in your notes of Feb. 1, simply contained samples of goods manufactured by the firms sending them out, which samples are available at parcel post rate, together with printed matter descriptive of such samples. Of course such packages must be open, else first class rates apply.

"The Third Assistant Postmaster General states in a letter dated Feb. 3rd that 'No steps have been taken to issue the Panama-Pacific or the parcel-post stamps unperforate'."

Overseer of Our Packet Assembling

IT'S MEANT FOR YOU!

My packet assembling department is so perfect—so far advanced over all others—that nothing would please me more than to conduct you personally through our working rooms.

Perhaps you have "been up against it" on the packet proposition. You have bought variety packets and have been "stung" or you have felt that if you bought packets from dealers and were displeased with them that you would be just that much out.

Now, I offer you real packet satisfaction. I contend that nowhere else can you secure as perfect and as high grade with as much value for the exceedingly low prices as our firm quotes. I am an expert packet maker. I, myself, have examined and overseen the making of all FIRST QUALITY VARIETY PACKETS, and know that they are right.

H. S. POWELL STAMP CO. are convinced of my ability to give you satisfaction and they guarantee that if I do not please you perfectly they will refund your money without question or without using all the words in the dictionary trying to make you believe that you need the packet. The firm would like to sell you more than one packet, so it demands that I give you the very best variety packet that can be made. So many collectors are convinced that my packets are the best that right now I am making THREE variety packets where I made only one in 1912. I am going to do my level best to make that packet the most satisfactory one that you have ever had.

Most sincerely yours,
REV. R. STOLLENWERK.

All packets assembled by us are now sold direct to collectors at prices that dealers have to pay for similar quality and value. Buy direct—get more value and save money!

500 ALL DIFFERENT 20th CENTURY POSTAGE STAMPS. 1901 to date only. Many new issues. It's not only the cheapest, but by far the best. Consists of QUALITY, VALUE and DESIRABILITY. You have been thinking of buying a 20th century packet and now is your chance to get one that cannot be equaled by any dealer for less than DOUBLE OUR PRICE. (You will remember that we were the ones to lower the price from $10.00 to $2.98 last spring. Then we sold the exclusive right to a N. Y. City dealer, but now we sell all of our packets direct to collectors, hence, that dealer will look elsewhere for something "just as good" and make some sales to the unsuspecting.) Your order will be filled the day of receipt. Order today at $1.69 only.

H. S. POWELL STAMP CO.,
Box 885, Storm Lake, Iowa, U. S. A.

The mere fact that nearly every packet that we have advertised has a half-dozen imitators is the best evidence of the quality of the real packet.

Whitfield King & Co. are informed that the black surcharges are considered unsatisfactory, and are to be replaced by a new printing of all values with red surcharges.

HONG KONG.—T. Hurd Kooker also takes exception to Mr. McArthur's statement regarding the new 10c stamp, as he has one postmarked "Nov. 16, 1912."

INDIA.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the 4a stamp of the King George series, which presents a very fine appearance both in color and design. The portrait is framed in a large oval with rosettes in the corners and the value "4As" in tablets at the sides.

4a olive.

JAPAN.—On account of the accession of the new Mikado, a new series of stamps is in preparation and will be ready in June next.

NORTHERN NIGERIA.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us two more values in the King George set.

Adhesive.
5d lilac and pale olive.
9d lilac and carmine.

RUSSIA.—Maury's Collectionneur illustrates and describes further values of the new pictorial set, which number 17 in all. The rouble values are slightly larger than the kopec values, and with the exception of the 5r are oblong rectangles. The 1r shows a view of the Kremlin at Moscow, the 2r the Winter Palace at St. Petersburg and the 3r the ancient Palace of the Romanoffs. The 5r has a portrait of the present Czar. Like the kopec values the higher denominations present a very fine appearance, being moreover in striking contrast with all previous issues. The kopec values are typographed, while the rouble values are printed in taille-douce. The colors described in No. 1154 were taken from a French contemporary and we find that the 10k is in bright ultramarine, the 7k in dark brown and the 15k in red brown.

Adhesives.

1r yellow green.
2r brown red.
3r dark violet.
5k black brown.

Offices in the Levant.—Whitfield King & Co. inform us that the new series of Russian stamps has also been issued with new values surcharged in Turkish money. The values are 5, 10, 15 and 20 paras, and 1, 1½, 2, 2½, 3½, 5, 10, 20, 30 and 50 piastres.

SEYCHELLES.—The 3c value in the King George set has been shown us by Whitfield King & Co.

Adhesive.
3c green.

SOMALILAND PROTECTORATE.—Whitfield King & Co. show us the 4a value of the new series.

Adhesive.
4a black and green.

SOUTHERN NIGERIA.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the 4d value in the new King George set.

Adhesive.
4d carmine and black on yellow.

TRINIDAD AND TOBAGO.—Hermann Focke shows us the first of the new issue for these two islands. Tobago has been using the stamps of Trinidad since 1899, without any distinction. Ewen's Weekly says that six values, ½d, 1d, 2½d, 4d, 6d and 1sh, have been printed with the dual designation. The design is the same as Scott's A11, except that the figures of value have been removed from the upper corners to give place to "Tobago," and the word "Penny" is color on a colorless tablet at the bottom. All values are to have Arabic figures, to comply with the rules of the Postal Union.

Adhesive.
1d carmine.

URUGUAY.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the 4c Artigas stamp in the new lithographed issue.

Adhesive.
4c orange.

AND WILL BE A

POWERFUL PHILATELIC
PROPOSITION

☛ In addition to our regular mailing list of 7000 paid up subscribers we shall send out several thousand extra circulation based on orders secured from well known dealers. You cannot afford to miss this opportunity of reaching every buying collector in the U. S.

☛ Our contract rates are the lowest, (circulation considered) of any stamp paper in the world, and that our advertisers are satisfied is evidenced by their long continued patronage of our paper. For space to be used any time during a given year send for rate card.

☛ Users of large space in a single issue are accorded special terms. This concession is made to allow opportunity for displayed advertisements, auction sales, etc. Note the special rates quoted:

½ page (288 lines) only 30.00
¼ page (144 lines) only 15.00

☛ Even the small advertiser has his page where two or three lines can be used for offers to buy, sell or exchange. We have averaged over two columns all winter and our patrons express great satisfaction. Here are our terms for "small ads":

Rate per line only 20c
50 lines to use at will $7.50

Have Copy in March 22

☛ We would like to know how much space you can use by return mail. Have your copy reach us not later than March 22. Bear in mind that our advertising rates are the cheapest in the world and we will prove our case to any advertiser.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 231, Altadena, Calif.

THE BEGINNERS' GUIDE.

Multiple Watermark.—A multiple watermark is a repetition of the same design so arranged that several portions of the design show on a stamp in place of one complete design (single watermark).

Napoletana.—Naples. (See under "Two Sicilies" in Scott's catalogue.)

N. C. E.—These letters overprinted on French Colonial stamps indicate they were intended for use in New Caledonia.

Nederland.—Netherlands (Holland).

Ned. Indie (or Nederlandsch-Indie).—Dutch Indies.

Nieuwe Republiek, Zuid-Afrika.—New Republic, South Africa.

Nlle. Caledonie.—New Caledonia.

Norddeutscher Postbezirk.—North German Postal District. These stamps were used just prior to those for the German Empire.

Norge.—Norway.

Nouvelle Caledonie.—New Caledonia.

N. S. B.—These letters overprinted on various French Colonial stamps indicate that they were intended for use in Nossi-Be.

N. S. W.—These letters are the only indication of the country of origin shown on the Postage Due stamps of New South Wales.

Nueva Granada.—New Granada. The name appearing on the 1861 stamps of the Republic of Colombia.

N. Z.—The first postage due stamps for New Zealand bore these letters in place of the full name of the Colony.

Oesterreichische Post.—Austrian Post. On most of the issues which appeared prior to 1908 the name is abbreviated to "Oesterr."

Oranje Vrij Staat.—The Dutch form for "Orange Free State" as shown upon the earlier stamps of the country now known as the Orange River Colony.

Oriental Inscriptions.—Many stamps bear no inscriptions in Roman characters but are lettered in Arabic or other Oriental devices. Under this heading we find such stamps as Afghanistan, many of the Native States of India, Abyssinia, and Turkey. Those of Afghanistan are usually circular in shape and the center is filled with a tiger's head or a further inscription in native characters; those of Abyssinia show a portrait or a lion with a flag; those of Turkey show a star and crescent; while those of the Indian States can only be identified by reference to the illustrations in a catalogue.

Orts Post.—The only inscription on one of the stamps of Switzerland issued in 1850.

SHORT REPLIES.

W. W. (Philadelphia).—The paper used by the National and Continental Bank Note Companies was similar and for all practical purposes the differences, if any, could be told only by an expert. The 1c to 15c values printed by the Continental Co. can be distinguished by the so-called secret marks. In the case of the other values the colors are the only reliable test and it is not possible to describe these lucidly in print. The paper used by the American Bank Note Co. was quite different. It is softer to the feel, slightly thicker, and is more coarsely "woven" so that it appears to be watermarked with innumerable minute dots. (2) There is no difference between the 3c, 4c, 5c, and 6c stamps of the 1910 issue and those now in use. These are the only values of the series which underwent no change. They differ from the issue of 1908 in being watermarked with single-line instead of double-line letters. (3) The differences between dies I and II of the 1/2d and 1d King George stamps of Great Britain are as follows:—In die II of the 1/2d the portrait has been redrawn the features being much more distinct; in die II of the 1d the portrait has also been redrawn but the best test lies in the lion at base which is now shaded all over.

J. T. P. (New York).—The variety of the Cuban overprint you have with the "O" of "PESO" broken so that the letter looks like a "C" is certainly a collectible variety.

C. H. (Cleveland, O.).—One of the stamps you describe is evidently a German telegraph stamp while the other is a German local.

H. B. (Cedar Rapids, Iowa).—The Wurttemberg stamp of which you send a drawing and which you cannot find in the catalogue is an envelope stamp.

E. L. K. (Chicago).—The Russian letter you found watermarked in your Russian stamp is part of an inscription appearing in the sheet. (2) I do not know what the word stamped on the back of your Argentine stamp means unless it was placed there before use by the firm or individual using it. (3) The stamps in the booklets are in pages or blocks of six (three rows of two each). A sheet of waxed paper is inserted under the gummed side of each page to prevent the stamps sticking together.

F. D. (Fall River, Mass.).—Yes, if the paper of your Honduras stamp is distinctly thicker than that of the other values of the series it should be classed as a variety.

AUSTRALIAN NOTES.

By YARROO.

According to the budget speech of the Prime Minister and Treasurer, the Hon. Mr. A. Fisher, the postal revenue of the Commonwealth has not decreased this year, although the rates were reduced to a universal rate of 1d per 1/2 oz. throughout the Commonwealth and Papua.

The old rates varied in each state but was 2d per 1/2 oz. between any two states and in some the minimum was 2d for a 1/2 oz. letter. The 1d stamps being used only for invoices and printed matter. This result indicates that the postal business must be booming.

The 2d Victoria surcharged 1d have come and gone; there are several reasons given for their use and the generally accepted one is that a shortage of paper occurred, owing to some shipment going astray. Evidently considerable speculation took place and the stamp is hardly likely to ever become of much value.

Although supposed to be on the eve of the issue of our first Commonwealth issues, varieties still continue to appear. Queensland is reported with the 2d blue. Crown over A paper perforated 13x11.

The writer has seen the Tasmania 1 1/2 penny surcharged on 5d with the surcharge inverted. It was evidently a most peculiar accident; these stamps were in a block of 24 stamps of four rows of six stamps. Taken from the centre of a sheet to which a block of four stamps had become attached inverted. The result was that the block of four stamps got the surcharge inverted and the original sheet had four stamps without the surcharge. This must have been a great find for some fortunate purchaser.

Gilbert and Ellice Islands with a white population of something under 200 people, are now out with their King George V issues. What proportion is their postal, to their total revenue likely to be? These issues undoubtedly suit Philatelic dealers both amateur and professional, but surely it is time the matter was brought under the notice of the Universal Postal authorities.

But for parcels postage, high values would be almost out of use in these days when 1/2 oz. costs 1d and commercial papers go at reduced rates. If a distinctive postmark could be universally used, high values would jump in price for postally used copies, and here we have another matter worthy of consideration at Berne.

Small Ads Page.

This column is for the use of our patrons who desire only a few lines of space. If you want to buy, sell or exchange, it is without doubt the best advertising medium in the world.

RATE.—20c per line, cash in advance. No display allowed. Six words to the line, including address. We offer 50 lines for $7.50, where cash is paid in advance. This space can be used at such times and in such quantities as may be desired.

We shall use every possible endeavor to protect our subscribers, but we cannot undertake to be responsible for unsatisfactory trade relations. Advertisers against whom complaints are proven will be debared the further use of these columns.

Advertisers sending out approval selections must take precautions to secure satisfactory references. We cannot undertake to settle all the petty disputes arising from the wide-spread scattering of approval selections.

EXHIBITION NEWS.

It is now thirty-four weeks to the opening of the Great International Stamp Exhibition when the elite of the world's stamp collectors will be gathered in the lecture room of the Engineers Society building to hear the address of the President. It will conclude with the announcement of the opening of the show and the marvelous collections of the postage stamps of the world can be inspected by the assembled members and invited guests. Some first class musical talent will be engaged to entertain the assembly while awaiting the formal opening. Everything is moving along in a most satisfactory manner. New members are joining every day and there is a general brushing up of collections in preparation for being entered for exhibition. A general meeting of all the members has been called for March 10th to elect ten new directors to take the place of an equal number retiring after their year of service. The meeting will be held in the rooms of the Collectors Club, 14 Park Place, New York. Notices will be sent to all members by the secretary who will also send a complete set of the Exhibition stamps. Collectors desiring to join should immediately send their dollar to the treasurer, J. W. Scott, 36 John St., New York.

KNICK-KNACKS.

Appropriately enough, many of the recent Central American issues are yellow.

Some of those scarce shades bring high prices for stamps that are off color.

No wonder the post-office clerk "sees red" at night after handling the parcel post stamps all day.

W. H. McDonald, Chicago, the demon collector of Nics, has returned from Nicaragua and other Central American points.

Gratulations, without the con, on the Philatelic Gazette's absorption of those two dandy de luxe editors, Messrs. Howes and Quackenbush.

We shall have to put Sinpod the stamp sage on the trail of the three-cent Parcel Post. Some of the postal clerks tell us that the stamp has cracked its plate.

It is hoped that there will be no tampering with the Gatun Locks stamps and that if they are consigned to the furnace, none will be "saved from the flames."

In a stamp society report: "Mr. Blank presented each member with a newly issued stamp. At the annual election, Mr. Blank was unanimously elected president amid enthusiasm." Nice work.

Borus Blurb, our home-grown poet, threatens us as follows: Short as is the month of February, I wist. It is long on joy for the true philatelist.

"Alas, all the stamps on the page of my friend's old collection were glued to the page; and all unblinded the tear welled to my eye," wails one of the philatelic sob artists. It really is hard to lift them, under these circumstances.

"I dreamed I found a block of eight ninety-cent, 1869, in immaculate condition at a little out-of-the-way post-office. Why, O. why, did I awake?" asks Throberino, that moving writer. He probably wanted to dream that he found a sheet of fifteen-cent of the same issue, inverted, as well.

MEXICO CITY NOTES.

By AZTEC.

The lack of interest in Mexican stamps which has been prevalent amongst American and European collectors for a number of years, does not appear reflected in any tendency to unload their holdings, as our local philatelists who are all keenly on the lookout for "good things," even if duplicates, are ready at all times to snap up stamps, especially if offered at bargain prices.

The local market has, for a long time past, been almost cleaned out and is kept so, to such an extent that our important collectors are constantly receiving rarities and novelties of Mexico from Paris and London. This necessity of re-importing our own stamps is caused to a great extent by wholesale lots and rare stamps being sent abroad, as the resultant price in Mexican money is generally better if the stamps are sold in the "States" or Europe, than if disposed of here, a fact brought about by the difference in value of our money, the U. S. dollar being worth two Mexican pesos. Notwithstanding this, we occasionally pick up a "find." One of our local advanced specialists, who collects everything in Mexican postage and revenue, including district surcharges, shades and papers, quite recently purchased a file from which he has secured over $1,200.00 catalog value of the high value of old issues on original covers, of course. He is the kind, however, that absorbs everything and turns nothing loose, which in a case like this, causes "Wailing and gnashing of teeth."

Apropos of finds, Mexico is a magnificent field for such, as although traveling salesman from the principal countries. (many of whom are charged to look out for old stamps), cover the country fairly well, the proof that rich material is still available is found in the fact that there are frequent "finds" that are not "exported" but are secured by Philatelists residing in the Republic.

We have a small but enthusiastic local society or club, which meets every Friday evening in a room generously ceded for its exclusive use by Senor Balme. The meetings are generally devoted to discussing stamp "politics," (ordinary "politics" not allowed here these days) exchanging and selling. The average attendance is about a baker's dozen, quite low when it is considered that there are known to be several hundred collectors in the City. However, the even and magnificent climate which we enjoy in Mexico City all the year, attracts people out of doors after working hours and therefore stamps are only followed up enthusiastically by a very few who have the hobby deeply rooted in their hearts.

The cause for the exaggerated advances in price of the majority of old Mexican stamps, which took place in the 1912 Scott catalog, is not understood here. Some advance was and has been for several years, justified, but a jump of from one hundred to three hundred or more per cent., without warning; almost took our breath. However, we are trying to accustom ourselves to our increased riches without loss of modesty, but believe that too much preference was given by the cataloguers to the early issues.

THE MATTER OF CHEAP ADVERTISING.

When rates are compared it is always advisable to consider the question of service. Chas. A. Townsend, sending us an advertisement for the current number of the WEEKLY, writes "I am not attracted very much by special rates. I prefer to pay a price which I feel sure is paid by others."

There is a good deal of wisdom in Mr. Townsend's word of comment, based on the offer of an entire page of space at $5 in one of our contemporaries. It was supposed to be a "bargain offer," but circulation counts.

THE WORLD'S PREMIER STAMP PAPER.

SEVEN THOUSAND PAID SUBSCRIPTIONS AN ACTUAL ACCOMPLISHMENT.

A Review by the Managing Editor.

A goal for which we have striven for months has finally been reached and today the WEEKLY has upon its mailing list 7,000 paid subscribers. It surpasses all previous subscription marks ever attained by a stamp journal and clinches our hold upon the title "the World's Premier Stamp Paper." There is no philatelic publication in the whole world that can approach the WEEKLY in influence and advertising strength.

For some time we have made the 7,000 goal our objective point but our endeavor to more than live up to the post office regulations has delayed the attainment of our ambition. The post office department gives weekly papers one year in which to discontinue subscriptions but we have never availed ourselves of this privilege and today there are no arrearages greater than five to six months. During the next month we shall reduce the time to three months which should be an amply sufficient time in which to allow a subscriber to renew.

Three weeks ago we stated editorially that we had a celebration in mind, but we little realized then that our joy was to be dulled by the removal from our staff of Mr. Isaac A. Mekeel, whose death occurred Feb. 3 as previously announced in our columns. It had been one of the ambitions of the managing editor to despatch a letter to New York containing the news as given above for Mr. Mekeel was ever appreciative of good work upon the part of those associated with him.

The writer became acquainted with Mr. Mekeel late in the '90's when he became Boston correspondent of the WEEKLY (then published in St. Louis) as well as a frequent contributor under the caption "As In a Looking Glass." Upon the removal of the paper to New York, Mr. Mekeel seemed to feel that we were specially fitted for philatelic newspaper work and invoked our aid in the preparation of those special numbers that made the WEEKLY famous. Our first effort the Chinese special presented an array of literary matter of the highest order and this was followed by other special numbers including an Hawaiian special that was a masterpiece.

About this time Mr. Mekeel became so engrossed in business enterprises that his work on the WEEKLY was much interfered with. Mr. Severn was urged to come to New York but circumstances were such that he could not leave Chicago. Both looked around for a helper but they could not find just the one needed. A man who could edit a newspaper, know something about stamps, and do business enough to declare a dividend, was wanted. For two years Mr. Mekeel labored with us to get us over to New York, but Boston seemed good enough especially as our stamp business was in a thriving condition.

At this time The Philatelic Era, published at Portland, Me., by W. W. Jewett was the only rival of the WEEKLY and Mr. Mekeel decided to purchase that paper and move its publication office to Boston. This was done and the editorial and business management of the Era was placed in the hands of the present managing editor of the WEEKLY. The subscription price of the WEEKLY was raised to $1.00 and that of the Era remained at 50c. We took hold of the new work with a great deal of vigor. Our former work on the Boston Stamp Book stood us in good stead and as newspaper work is to us our atmosphere the Era commenced to grow by leaps and bounds. No doubt the WEEKLY suffered from the rivalry of the Era but as the coffers of the one was the treasury of the other the Mekeel-Redfield-Severn Co. awaited the course of events.

In February, 1904, Mr. Mekeel came over to Boston and when he returned to New York he had purchased our stamps, merged the two papers, engaged our services as managing editor, sold us a block of stock and agreed to move the publication office of the WEEKLY from New York to Boston. Few only can appreciate the boldness of Mr. Mekeel's decision. The WEEKLY was suffering for attention and our conduct of the Era had satisfied Mr. Mekeel that the paper would be carefully handled in Boston.

In March, 1904, the two papers were amalgamated, Mr. Jewett continuing to print the WEEKLY on a five years' contract, which was subsequently renewed. We do not need to state the number of subscribers on our list in March, 1904, but we do affirm that the 15c per line flat rate of today is a more profitable proposition than the 10c per line rate that then prevailed.

During these years the WEEKLY has been a philatelic newspaper. It has been sharply criticized in certain quarters for the lack of literary features, but follow us for a year and many articles of merit will be found in our columns. We have invoked the aid of Messrs. Severn, Howes, Kjellstedt, Poole, Goodwin, Barrett and others, with striking results.

Mr. Poole's work on "Cook Ids." appeared in our columns last year and we shall soon reprint "Hints for Beginners" and commence a series of "Stamp Studies," by the same author. Mr. Goodwin is now running an excellent study of "Specialized United States" and we have an illustrated article on U. S. envelopes by L. G. Barrett that will run through a dozen numbers of the WEEKLY. Shorter articles by Messrs. Hill, Kjellstedt and others are awaiting attention, but news matter must have the right of way.

Our advertising pages speak for themselves. The dealer who wishes to reach the buying collector must needs patronize our columns. Other papers copy our methods and we rejoice in their appreciation of our ideas. The interest in stamp collecting is strong enough to support a number of good stamp papers and there is no reason why the next decade should not see the greatest interest in stamp collecting the country has ever known.

We are not satisfied with our present achievement. We shall go after the 8000 mark with all the vigor and resourcefulness at our command, and our many "booster" friends will aid us in our endeavor.

To Mr. Chas. E. Severn, the scholarly editor of the WEEKLY, we make a profound obeisance in acknowledgment of his splendid literary and philatelic attainments, and the great work he has done in various departments of service. He stands without a peer in the whole realm of philatelic letters, and his name will loom large on the pages of philatelic history. May Parnassus Penflip and Sinopod the Sage live long and prosper!

EXHIBITION NEWS.

A hint to the wise is sufficient. The government objects to the beautiful Exhibition label and no more can be put on letters so hang on to any envelope you have showing a copy. Every dollar member gets a set. Percy McGraw Mann says: "It is the most beautiful label of its kind that has ever been produced. We know whereof we speak, because the editor has collected these things for some years and he is willing to stake all to back his assertion that he hasn't a single label in his collection of 20,000 which can compare with this one." The set of stamps will make a beautiful frontispiece to any album, commemorating as it will the great Stamp Exhibition and giving the best portrait of the "father of his country" that has ever been engraved. It is now only thirty-three weeks to the opening of the great show when the stamps of the entire world can be seen, including the crude pioneer stamps of remote colonies. There also will be seen the leading stamp collectors of the entire world. New friendships will be formed and old acquaintances renewed. Mr. Klemann informs us that applications for stamps are pouring in and the Treasurer reports many new members sending in their dollar in every mail.

The following Societies have signified their acceptance on the Committee of Honor:—The Royal Philatelic Society, London; Kristiania Philatelist Klub, Christiania; and Swedish Philatelic Society, Stockholm.

The following collectors' names have also been added to the Honor Committee:—Arthur T. Bates, Wellington, N. Z.; Henry Clotz, New York; C. A. Nast, Denver; C. K. B. Nevin, Boston; Julian Park, Buffalo; C. F. Rothfuchs, Los Angeles; and J. F. Rust, Cleveland.

Mr. Luff reports the first edition of the Exhibition Prospectus ready and distributed and the Executive Committee is now preparing the second edition.

The engraved Exhibition labels presented by the Hamilton Bank Note Company are exceedingly popular and should not last long at the rate at which they are distributed. A complete set of six different colors will be given free to each member of the Association. Membership fee is $1.00, which may be sent to any member of the Committee.

JOIN THE BOOSTER CLUB.

Of late we have been compelled to give the Booster Club a rest, due to the fact that we have been so busy and space has been at a premium. Our mail last Monday morning just compelled attention. We received no less than fourteen new six months' subscriptions and twelve new trial subscriptions, while the yearly and two year renewals were plentiful enough to make glad the heart of the managing editor.

E. J. Gifford, St. Paul, Minn., renewed his own subscription for a year and sent in a new one, H. M. Norton of the same city. D. M. Ward, Gary, Ind., sent in a new yearly subscription for the Gary Public Library. Charles Osman, Oil City, Pa., renewed for a year and sent in a new yearly from the same city. Dr. Chas. R. Chasmar, Norwalk, Ct., renewed for a year and sent in a new yearly. G. H. Coleman, Cleveland, O., sent in a new six months' subscription for a friend.

What a fine lot of boosting for a single mail. All that is needed is to show the WEEKLY to a friend.

PHILADELPHIA STAMP COMPANY,

PERCIVAL PARRISH, PRESIDENT

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

SPECIALIZED UNITED STATES.

By FRANK E. GOODWIN.

CHAPTER XXX.

3 Cents, Issue of 1870-79.

The value of specializing is nowhere more forcibly shown than in the case of the 3 cent stamps, printed between the years 1870 and 1879, inclusive. If a collector could (and the task is by no means impossible) gather a copy of every known variety, shade and paper, he would possess a collection of no mean size, and one which would be worth a good many dollars. I have not the figures by me, but probably several hundred stamps would not more than cover the size of this little collection. As a good many of the varieties, shades and papers can be had by hunting through the cheap stamps the entire list would not cost even a small fortune, and the greatest expense would be in time and labor.

The 3 cent stamps, of this issue, were put upon the market early in April, 1870, probably the 15th. Contrary to almost universal belief the first stamps issued were not grilled; the embossed stamps appeared later. This is fairly well proven by the fact that the first stamps were printed from plates No. 1 to No. 11, while the grilled stamps bear the plate number 11, showing that ten plates of ungrilled stamps preceded the others. I will treat of the ones with grille first, however, as according to catalogs and custom they come first.

Stamps bearing the grille device were not so prolific in shades as some of the other issues and varieties. Mr. Luff classifies the shades as: pale green, green, pale yellow green, yellow green and deep green.

Ten sizes of grilles are known, as follows:

Size.	Points.
11x12 1/2	14x16
10x12 1/2	13x16
10x12	13x15
8 1/2 x 12 1/2	11x16
8 1/2 x 11 1/2	11x14
8 1/2 x 10 1/2	11x13
8 1/2 x 9 1/2	11x12
8 1/2 x 9	11x11
8x10 1/2	10x13
8x10	10x12

Four varieties are chronicled: end roller grille, imperforate vertically, imperforate horizontally, and imperforate all around. The last stamp was printed from Plate 11.

It is a hard stamp to study for grille measurements, owing to the indistinctness of the grille points.

The normal, or ungrilled, stamps are even less prolific in shades than the other, showing in gray green, pale green, green, and yellow green. The plates were numbered 1 to 11 inclusive, 25, 29, 31, 32, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 54, 55. There were issued, from April, 1870, to April 1873, the total of 1,204,959,650 stamps.

When the Continental Bank Note Company took over the contract, and began issuing stamps in 1873, the concern certainly mixed things up for the specialist. Besides adding the "secret mark" by shading the fork of the left ribbon under the shield, the company made shades galore, used plates by the hundreds, and a considerable number of legitimate collectible varieties. Mr. Luff classifies the shades as: bright yellow green, pale yellow green, yellow green, deep yellow green, green, dark green, blue green, dark blue green, olive green, pale dull green, dull green, dark dull green and gray green.

Plate numbers were: 1, 5, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 14, 15, 17, 19, 20, 129, 130, 131, 132, 133, 135, 136, 138, 139, 148, 149, 150, 151, 152, 153, 154, 155, 170, 171, 172, 173, 174, 175, 176, 177, 178, 179, 180, 183, 184, 185, 186, 187, 188, 189, 190, 191, 192, 193, 219, 220, 221, 222, 223, 224, 225, 226, 227, 228, 231, 232, 235, 236, 237, 238, 239, 240, 250, 251, 252, 253, 254, 255, 256, 258, 259, 260, 261, 262, 263, 264, 265, 266, 267, 268, 269, 270, 271, 272, 273, 274, 275, 276, 277, 278, 279, 280, 281, 282, 283, 286, 287, 288, 289, 290, 291, 292, 293, 309, 310.

Stamps issued from April, 1873, to June 30, 1879, numbered 3,094,609,900.

The following varieties are chronicled: Double paper, ribbed paper, Fletcher cog wheel cuts, surface weakened by short horizontal cuts, grilled, imperforate all around, imperforate vertically, double transfer, on chemical paper, soft paper printed by Continental Bank Note Co., laid paper, watermarked with stitch, design missing below ribbons.

Then there is the special printing, of which less than 400 were sold to the public which is printed upon hard, white paper, in blue green shade.

The American Bank Note Co., successors to the Continental Bank Note Company, began enlarging the field for the students of philately by further adding to the shades, varieties and plate numbers. This concern uses only the soft, porous paper, in various thicknesses and textures, and created a beautiful array of shades, which, however, is not so large as those turned out by their predecessors, probably for the reason that they did not have long in which to do their worst.

EDITORIAL.

Postal Relic—In our columns at times, attention is called to different old documents that come under our readers' or our own notice that are more or less intimately associated with philately; and we have found that there is a growing division of collectors who give close heed to the historical asides of stamps. Dr. E. W. Hodsdon has sent for inspection a rather remarkable leaflet on the subject, "Improved Post Office Stamps," that was issued about 1850, judging from the evidence of the letter-press. The "Post Office" stamps referred to are not the adhesive stamps of our affections but postmark and cancellation forms, which were offered for sale to postmasters by an enterprising citizen, Charles M. Willard of Ludlow, Hampden County, Massachusetts, at the bargain price of one dollar. The familiar "5" and "V" and "X" impressions in circle; "Paid;" "Free;" postmark with interchangeable month names and days and several fancy "Paid 3" types are illustrated, each in red, black or blue. A printed postmark of Ludlow, with "paid" underneath and "Paid 3" at lower left-hand corner are on the face of the sheet, which, when folded, was sent to the postmasters throughout the country. We quote from the circular: "In the year 1847 Hon. Selah R. Hobbie, (the 1st Ass't P. M. Gen.) visited Europe on business of the Post Office Department, and on his return, in his report to Congress, he made the following statement: 'I found when in England in 1847 that the stamps in use in the English post-offices were universally made on wood, and was informed that they had superseded the metallic stamps entirely. They were preferred, not alone on account of their cheapness, but because they were more tenacious of the ink, in consequence of which, time is saved in the process of stamping, but by being obliged so frequently to ink the stamp.—Besides, the impression, I am told, was not so liable to blur. (Signed) S. R. Hobbie.' Now comes the argument: "These stamps of box wood, as represented above, are in every way superior to metal ones in beauty of impression, when properly engraved; besides a set of metal stamps furnished by the Department, costs more than ten times the price of a complete set on wood. The sample impressions below, show distinctly what constitutes a complete set of box wood." Next week, we shall clear up several obscurities through the information furnished by this illustrated circular.

* * *

On the Job—Sinpod, the stamp sage, says that he has found a collector who had no trouble in buying the Parcel Post stamps well centered at his post-office: A philatelist who never called attention to a slight defect in a friend's pet stamp: A reader who in subscribing to a new stamp paper did not take occasion to wish it a long life and a specialist who never found the slightest variation in millimeter scales.

* * *

Here They Are—What has become of the old-fashioned collector who called the color of the Agriculture Department stamps "straw?" Is he plodding along somewhere with the o. f. c. whose good mother sewed a cloth covering on his stamp album to prevent the soiling of the binding? What has become of the old-fashioned dealer who had a cheerful grate fire burning in his office on chilly afternoons? Is he talking, in some nook, about New York Ledger days with the o. f. d. whose business card announced: No business transacted by mail?

In Ward Thirteen—Said the attendant at the Asylum for the Addled: "Yes, he is our latest arrival but he has been quiet enough to-day and I would not say that his case is very alarming. They just brought him here from the post-office. What is wrong with him? Why, he just stands at the window with the look of a fish in his eyes and says over and over again, just like a phonograph: 'We haven't got the three and the fifty yet,—they haven't been issued.' You see some of those terrible stamp papers said that all the Parcel Post stamps had been issued and were on sale; and so all the collectors roared at the clerk and said that he was an ignorant fellow when he told them that these two stamps were not in stock. Poor fellow, no wonder his mind slipped a cog."

Cotton Marks—We wish to express here a word of commendation for Charles A. Nast's History of the U. S. Metallic Tax Stamps for Cotton, which is incorporated in the Year Book of the United States Revenue Society, recently issued. In his study of these stamps, Mr. Nast has presented thirteen different types of these interesting evidences of the payment of the tax on cotton, 1862-1868. In 1888, Mr. E. B. Sterling in his revenue stamp catalogue and Mr. Chas. E. Hutchinson in his articles on the revenue issues of the civil war period in the old American Philatelist awakened some inquiry regarding these historical stamp kindred; and now, for the first time, a complete catalogue and history of the cotton tax stamps are compiled. While Mr. Nast has had the assistance of the information of early articles on the stamps and the co-operation of collectors who placed their material at the disposal of Mr. Nast, yet the work is based on the individual researches of the author. The official description of the use of the cotton marks is an authoritative explanation of the service performed by the stamps which showed that the necessary tax had been paid on the cotton, thereby lifting the embargo against its removal from the place of production; the shipper paid the tax. If our recollection is not faulty, the type on parchment was reported by us first in the WEEKLY about twenty years ago; and at the time, Mr. H. E. Deats who has the best collection of cotton marks was interested in our description. The cut of the circular in the frontispiece of Mr. Nast's production was made from the original hand-bill in our possession. The Year Book of the United States Revenue Society has developed into a publication very much worth while.

The Earl of Crawford, K. T.—The death of Lord Crawford which was announced in our issue of February 8th, has profoundly moved philatelic England as may have been expected, although it was known that the Earl's ill-health had interfered latterly with his application to philately. In the January number of the London Philatelist, Mr. E. D. Bacon has the first instalment of "The Earl of Crawford's Collection of the 1895 Plate Impressions of United States Stamps on Cardboard" which is replete with important and instructive information on the plate arrangement of early U. S. issues. Here, specialists in United States issues have wondered how Lord Crawford was able to accumulate some of the striking items in his proof collection but they were not insensible to the compliment paid to United States stamps by him in selecting them as favorites. It is scarcely necessary to repeat that the loss of the Earl of Crawford, the founder of the school of "historical" philately is a deprivation that philately suffers with genuine sorrow. His stimulating contributions to the fund of philatelic knowledge have enriched our pursuit perceptibly and the influence of his example in so proudly pledging his allegiance to philately, if we may so term it, has done much to loan dignity to it in the estimation of the unphilatelic public. It becomes an announcement of regretful significance now to say that the Earl of Crawford was the choice as President of the Fifth Philatelic Congress of Great Britain, to be held in Edinburgh on the 23rd-25th of April, 1913, under the auspices of the prominent Scottish societies.

B. L. VOORHEES AGAIN WITH US.

B. L. Voorhees of Chicago, an old-time patron of the WEEKLY, resumes his advertising in this issue. Glad as we are to have new friends, we always rejoice in the return of former advertisers. NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Harry F. Kohl advises us that Kansas City will without doubt shortly have precancelled parcel post stamps. He sends us some items concerning Kansas City precancels that we have submitted to the new issues department to pass upon.

—Alvah G. Clark suggests that our Chronicle of precancelled stamps would be greatly improved if the names of firms using the new varieties listed were to be published. We have passed the suggestion on to the editor of this department.

—A. H. Kirkpatrick reports unsatisfactory dealings with Loren Sturdevant, Imperial Hotel, Indianapolis, Ind. He pays no attention to requests for the return of an approval selection.

—We have not been privileged to record the entrance of many of the fair sex into the ranks of the dealers, but our readers cannot fail to have noticed the displayed advertising of Mrs. L. W. Kellogg of Hartford, Conn., who will use an inch every other week in the future. J. A. Galbraith of N. Y. City resumes his advertising this week.

—The advertisement of Chas. A. Townsend in our issue of Feb. 15 contained an error. The New York Custom House offer "20c to 32" should have been "60c catalogued $2." Mr. Townsend, whose address is Akron, Ohio, advertises this stamp at 10c.

—We are indebted to H. F. Butler, Herbert S. Johnson, M. D., and E. M. White for copies of our Jan. 18 issue. We find ourselves running very close on our issue of Jan. 1 and shall be very grateful to any of our subscribers who will send us copies of the same.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from F. E. Greene (9), Frank Prescott, Frank Maier, Jr., M. S. Karlitsky, F. J. Parater, Jr. (11), Edgar S. Bissinger.

—E. C. Krohne calls our attention to an auction catalog issued by the Western Stamp Co. in which the catalog prices of the 1903 Persia are quoted at misleading figures. As Mr. Krohne writes:—"On September 15th the Scott prices reduced the catalogue price on these stamps to 60c each, and Senf, 1913, quotes these stamps at 50c each. Is it fair to price stamps this way? It is rather misleading and the one who buys the stamp and perhaps bids half catalogue certainly gets stung. Certainly a stamp dealer should know of the changes that are made by Scott, since they publish them in their monthly circulars."

—Fred Goshert sends us the following interesting item:—"Some years ago I started two letters in opposite directions in a race around the world. They were addressed to a correspondent at Bangkok, Siam, who immediately upon their receipt re-addressed them to me. One of the letters got back in 60 days and the other in 67 days. A few days later I received word from my Bangkok friend that he had been absent from home for several days."

THREE BOOKS YOU NEED.

Poole's book on "Cook Ids." It is a masterpiece—the only book on the stamps of these islands. Fully illustrated and of permanent value. Price 25c, this office.

Unless you have Scott's Standard Catalogue you can't collect stamps intelligently. It is the Standard and the price is 75c postpaid. It gives you all the information needed in a compact form. For sale at this office.

There is one book on the stamps of the U. S. that you should have. It is written by Power, E. B. Power of Stanley Gibbons. The book sells ordinarily for 75c, but out of the largeness of our heart we offer it for 50c, and will refund the price if you do not get your money's worth. It is the book on U. S. you need. For sale at this office.

WOULDN'T STAMP THE CZARS FACE.

The following is a cable despatch to the New York Times. We do not know how much credence is to be given the tale, but publish it for what it is worth:

"ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 21.—The new stamp, issued in commemoration of the tercentenary of the Romanoff dynasty, which bears the portraits of the present Czar and several other Czars, will be withdrawn in deference to the susceptibilities of some minor Post Office officials who refused to impress the obliterating stamp on these portraits. These loyal scruples are typical of the masses of the Russian people."

KNICK-KNACKS.

"I saw Ionian Islands set up as Onion Islands in a two by four, honest I did,—hence these tears," writes Embossed Emil. Verily, what's in a name?

John Post, who became the father of a fine boy Monday night, has decided to name him Parcel, if Mrs. Post will consent.—Shelburne (Pa.) Times. The old man thinks that he runs the Post department, evidently.

Our Great Lilliputian Contest. Entered by an auctioneer: "The smallest collector I have met is one who bid on over two hundred lots in an auction sale and secured one cheap lot, which he returned on the plea that he had changed his mind about wanting it."

Does the name of Parnassus Penflip lead all the rest of those of illustrious personages chosen by President Wilson for cabinet positions? We cannot break the news to him that he has not been made Postmaster-General. Will some kind reader do so as it is enough for us to tell him that not a single entry has been received in the prize contest that he sponsored,—the winner to award Penflip the prize.

W. B. reports the existence of the o. f. c. who made hinges from a porous plaster. He should have applied the porous plaster to his own back and not that of the stamps.

"Miss Land—Miss Stella Land lives down the street and she is just the right stamp for a philatelist; and I am a philatelist!" writes somebody just as if it was anything to us.

A young publisher writes to ask if we will furnish him the names of "about a thousand" of our readers; he wants to send them sample copies of his first number. If, as has been said, it takes nerve to publish a stamp paper, our young friend is labeled success.

The New York Exhibition labels are superb and sightly specimens and so ample are their proportions that it will not be necessary for the managers of the Exhibition to advertise with posters.

"I have a little son five years old who is a stamp collector," avers a proud papa. We should like to hear the youngster say, Djibouti.

Our March Special

DATE OF ISSUE

Our next special number will be issued on Saturday, March 29. There is ample time for you to decide what you will do and how you will do it. By all means take goodly space.

HOW MANY COPIES

Just as many as we can circulate to advantage. We shall follow our regular policy as in the past and several thousand extra copies will be sent out.

OUR ADV'G RATES

Our flat rate of 15c per line is the [cheapest stamp advertising in the world. Results count. A three months advertising campaign in the WEEKLY will convince you.

OUR QUARTER PAGES

We offer a quarter page in the WEEKLY for $15.00 and these quarter pages are very popular. It gives you 144 lines for the price named and is a genuine bargain.

WHAT DO YOU SAY?

We shall be making up our dummy in a few days. What do you say? How much space can you use and where do you want it? Copy must be in by March 22.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding precancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDRIDGE, Attleboro, Mass. Specimens must accompany chronicle, with self-addressed stamped envelope for return of the same. Please note these rules.

UNITED STATES.—Frank B. Eldredge reports the following new precancels:

Chicago, Ill.—Two lines (CHICAGO—ILLINOIS) horizontal inscription in sans-serif capitals between two lines, 14 3/4 mm. apart, lines 3/4 mm. wide. 1c, 1912. Imperf. Reported by Kendall P. Smith.

Milford, Mass.—Two lines (MILFORD—MASS.) two lines above and below horizontal inscription. Space containing inscription, 10 mm. wide, 1 3/4 mm. between lines, lines 1/2 mm. thick. 4c, 1910; 10c, 1912.

Manchester, N. H.—Two lines (Manchester—N. H.) horizontal inscription between lines 11 mm. apart, lines 1/2 mm. thick. 1 and 2c, 1910; 10c inverted, 1910.

Racine, Wis.—(No. 1153) 1c, 1913, Parcel Post, inverted; 2c, 1913, Parcel Post, inverted. Reported by W. R. Harrison and Charles K. B. Nevin.

Chicago, Ill.—(No. 1153) 1c, 1913, Parcel Post.

Mansfield, Mass.—(No. 1155) 2c, 1912; (No. 1155) 5c, 1910; (No. 1155) 6c, 1910.

Marlboro, Mass.—Two lines (Marlboro—Mass) evidently hand stamped, as they are precancelled in most any way, possibly done with a rubber stamp and post office ink. 5c, 1910, reading up.

Brockton, Mass. Campello Station.—Four lines (BROCKTON—MASS—CAMPELLO—STATION.) horizontal inscription in small sans-serif capitals, 1 3/4 mm. high, between two lines, 12 mm. apart, lines 1 3/4 mm. thick. 3c, 1910.

CEYLON.—John P. Cooper writes us at length regarding the word "Cave" found on some of the used stamps of Ceylon. Perhaps we cannot do better than to reproduce a part of his letter:

"Some years ago I saw it stated that 'Cave' meant 'Revenue' in the native language. Recently, I received a large consignment of Ceylon stamps from my correspondent and among them was a number with the 'Cave' overprint. These stamps so surcharged were postmarked and bore every indication of having done postal duty, so I wrote my friend to know if these stamps were regularly used for postage as I had always considered them revenue stamps. In reply he inclosed samples on pieces of covers and writes as follows:

"I am inclosing samples of stamps with the names of firms stamped on them to show you that they do postal duty as you thought the 'Cave' stamps were revenue stamps only. Most firms in Ceylon stamp their name over the stamps as the native peons, when taking the letters to the post, are inclined to take the stamps off and destroy the letters."

"I am inclosing 3 samples of overprinting; 2 are rubber stamped in violet, but the 'Cave' is in black and looks like a typeset surcharge. My purpose in writing all this is to bring out to those who understand why this word 'Cave' is used and what it means in this connection."

CHILE.—W. H. Peckitt has shown us another value in the new series, a value not previously seen in the issues of this country. The portrait on this new 14c stamp is F. A. Pinto, which appeared on the 12c of the last series.

Adhesive.

GIBRALTER.—Morocco Agencies.—W. H. Peckitt has shown us the King Edward 2 1/2d stamp surcharged "Morocco—Agencies" in two lines at the top and "25 Centimos" at the bottom, perforated 15x14.

GREAT BRITAIN.—Offices in the Levant.—W. H. Peckitt has shown us the 10d King Edward stamp, surcharged "4 Piastres" in the new type.

HONG KONG.—I. W. Risdon has shown us a cover from Hong Kong with the new 10c King George stamp thereon. Incidentally, this calls attention to an error in No. 1155. The low values with colorless figures on colored ground are the 1c, 2c, 5c and 10c. The 4c and 8c have colored figures on colorless ground, while the 6c, 12c and 20c have the Swastika in the lower corners like the previous issue.

HONDURAS.—John P. Cooper reports having seen the 2c official stamp of 1911, with the surcharge reading "CFICIAL."

LIBERIA.—Referring to the two provisionals chronicled in No. 1155, we are now enabled to complete the chronicle, through the courtesy of W. H. Peckitt, who has shown us the four stamps. As there stated Scott's Nos. 112 and 319, triangular stamps have been issued perforated both with and without the surcharge "3 Cents Inland Postage." The regular postage stamps are only changed from the previous issue by the perforations, but the official stamps have both colors changed and perforations added. The official stamps, both with and without the "3 cent Inland Postage" have the usual "OS" surcharge.

MEXICO.—L. L. Albright & Co. call attention to distinct shades of the current 1c stamp, portrait of Josepha Ortiz. The first, which may be called the normal shade is a lilac, Scott calling it dull violet. The other shade is almost a mauve, the difference being especially noticeable in the background of the portrait.

NORTHERN NIGERIA.—W. H. Peckitt has shown us two new values of the King George type.

Adhesives.

5sh green and carmine on yellow.

RUSSIA.—Offices in the Levant.—W. H. Peckitt has shown us the new issue of Russia surcharged for use in the Russian Offices in Turkey. The surcharges are all in black. The surcharge varies widely. The 5pa, 15pa and 20pa have the figure of value in the centre and "Para" on each side, the surcharges in all cases being at the bottom of the stamp. The 10pa has "Para" in the centre, with figures of value before and after. The 1pi and 5pi have the word "Piastre" spelled out in full with figures of value a little above, similar to the current stamps of German Levant. The other piastre values have the figure of value in the centre with the word "Pias—tres" divided, the figures of value dividing the word. Singularly enough, the 1 1/2pi has the word spelled "Pias—tre."

Adhesives.

3 1/2pi on 35k slate and dark green.

5pi on 50k violet and slate.

ST. VINCENT.—The new series for this Colony has appeared, the values below having been shown us by W. H. Peckitt. The design is a new one and rather pretty. The oval containing the King's Head is placed low, with "St. Vincent" in a short tablet above, the crown encroaching upon the lower part of the tablet. "Postage" and "Revenue" are placed at either side of the oval, which is framed by long sprays of bay and oak leaves, joined at the bottom. The figures of value appear thus, "1/2d" in small ovals in the lower corners. The effect is good though rather crowded.

Meetings first (informal) and third (regular) Tuesdays, Room 322, Tremont Bldg., 7.30 P. M.

BOSTON, MASS., Feb. 18, 1913.

The 286th (regular) meeting and Annual Jollification was held at the Club Room this evening with 48 members and friends present. In the absence of both President and Vice President, Mr. L. L. Green was chosen Chairman.

Three applications were received, Messrs. Fredk. S. Cook, proposed by A. W. Dunning, Jesse T. Lillibridge, proposed by W. L. Aldrich, and Marcus White, proposed by Chas. H. Stone. The resignation of No. 451 was accepted.

Two new members were admitted, No. 570, John Kling, and No. 571, Charles B. Moore.

Some discussion was held upon the subject of the Stamp Bourse, and the whole matter was finally referred to the Governing Board.

Attention was called to the Circuit books held by the Sales Supt., which were ready for all members who desired to be placed on circuit.

Gifts were announced of a large collection of counterfeits from Mr. E. S. Mason, and of collections of stamp papers from Messrs. E. F. Sawyer and Gabriel Cannon. Votes of thanks were passed to the respective donors.

The entertainment consisted of a talk on China, illustrated with a specialized collection, by Mr. C. A. Howes, and a portion of the collection of Mr. A. W. Dunning.

The meeting adjourned at 9.40 p. m., but lasted informally to a late hour.

Previous to the meeting an informal dinner was held at the City Club at which 36 sat down and enjoyed an excellent menu.

C. A. HOWES, Sec.

Fellow Members of the Boston Philatelic Society:—

Another year in the history of our Society has drawn to a close and it becomes my duty to review with you the events which have transpired since you did me the honor to elect me your President, and it is only when we stop and pause a moment and ask ourselves, has it all been worth while, that we are apt to see the results of our efforts, rather than the efforts themselves. But its greatest value is in the lessons it teaches us for our future guidance.

I shall not attempt to review the doings of the stamp world as has often been so excellently done by our former Presidents; since probably all of you know more about the philatelic changes of the year than I do. Our own country has not been backward in such matters as is evidenced by the new 1912 set of seven values, with its numerous official and unofficial varieties; and, with the opening of the year 1913, the seventeen Parcel Post stamps and the four commemoratives.

This is the cheapest stamp advertising in the world, 20c per line. Try it.

Turning, however, to the affairs of the Society there are several matters I wish to bring to your attention, some of which in my opinion deserve your serious consideration.

Secretary.—The duties of the Secretary have been more arduous during the past year than usual and I know you will agree with me that this office has been filled in a most efficient manner.

Treasurer.—With regard to the funds of the Society and the condition of the Treasury, I cannot do better than to repeat the suggestion made by our last President, that "We should take care in the matter of appropriations and refuse to allow sentiment to rule where hard common sense is needed." I believe the past year has shown that this sound advice has been followed.

Governing Board.—I desire at this time to express my appreciation for the support which has been accorded me by the Governing Board. Thirteen meetings have been held during the year with a high average of attendance and all matters brought to its attention have been considered without fear or favor but always with the best interests of the Society in mind. I think I may say that the work done by all the Committees during the year has shown a most encouraging interest in the affairs of the Society.

Statutes.—This evening you will hear several new Statutes proposed, and a number of others have been called to the attention of the Governing Board. The past year has afforded an excellent opportunity to test the practical workings of the Statutes and many of the members feel that the time has come when a general revision is not only desirable but practically a necessity. Therefore any suggestion looking toward the appointment of a Committee to bring before you such a revised draft has my heartiest approval.

Entertainment Committee.—A year ago it was voted to have a new Entertainment Committee each month. While this has meant a great deal more work for your President, as ten committees had to be filled instead of one, on the whole I think it has proved fairly successful and is worth continuing for another year anyway. The only recommendation I have to make is that part of every program shall consist of an exhibition of stamps, competitive or otherwise, and that they shall be shown before the meeting, from, say, six-thirty o'clock until the meeting opens as well as at the close of the business of the evening.

Room Committee.—The Room Committee will tell you of the generous gifts of pictures from Messrs. Stone and Dunning, now hanging on the Club Room walls. The members of the Committee have spent quite a little time during the past year in rearranging the frames and putting the room in order, with very satisfactory results. They are now planning further changes all of which will tend to make our quarters still more comfortable. The members seem to be using the Club Room much more than formerly.

Library Committee.—The Library Committee has found enough work to do to require their giving several hours each week to it. The cataloging, re-arranging, etc., made necessary by the Seybold bequest and several large gifts of magazines is progressing rapidly, after which the Committee's work will undoubtedly be very much lightened.

Committee on Exhibition, 1913.—During the year a Committee was appointed by the Chair to look after our interests in connection with the exhibition to be held at New York during October, 1913. I believe that this Committee should be continued in office thru next October, and, in addition to seeing that we are well represented financially should do what they can to persuade members to enter their collections for exhibition.

Recruiting Committee.—The Recruiting Committee appointed in the early part of the year has held a number of meetings and arranged a program which should bring many new members into the Society. They have been delayed

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 331, Altadena, Calif.

THE BEGINNERS' GUIDE.

P.—This letter, overprinted on various stamps of the Straits Settlements, denotes they were intended for use in the native state of Perak.

Para and Piaster.—These words, denoting the values, are the only inscription shown in English characters on some of the issues of Turkey and Egypt. In conjunction with the Star and Crescent design the words show the labels are Turkish while if the design depicts the Sphinx and Pyramid then the stamps are Egyptian. These same words overprinted on British, German, French, etc., stamps, distinguish the special issues for the foreign post-offices established in the Levant.

Pen.—Stamps with the value denoted by this word—an abbreviation for "Penni"—belong to Finland.

Peoymnhe.—This word, in Greek characters, distinguishes the issue of Russian stamps for the Rethymo district of Crete.

Persane.—Persia.

P. G. S.—An overprint on certain Straits Settlements stamps used as official stamps in Perak. The letters stand for "Perak Government Service."

Porto Gazetes.—The only inscription on some of the early stamps of Roumania.

Postes.—The only inscription, other than that relating to the value, shown on some of the early stamps of Belgium and on the issue for Alsace and Lorraine. The latter have large numerals as the main part of the design while the Belgian labels show a portrait or coat-of-arms.

Posthorn.—A posthorn, surmounted by a crown, forms the design for the early newspaper stamps of Austria.

Postzegel.—On the 1852-64 stamps of the Netherlands.

Preussen.—Prussia.

P. S. N. C.—These letters appear in the corners of the first stamps used in Peru. The stamps were originally issued by the Pacific Steam Navigation Co.

R.—This letter, with new value, was overprinted on some of the French colonial stamps intended for use in Reunion. (2) A letter "R" forms the only "inscription" in English on the locally produced labels for the Indian native state of Jhind.

Rayon.—The only inscription shown on some of the early stamps of Switzerland.

Reichspost. Shown on the 1889-1900 stamps of Germany.

Republique Francaise (or Repub. France).—France.

R. O.—These letters were overprinted on a few Turkish stamps used in Eastern Roumelia, which later became a part of Bulgaria.

Romana (or Romania).—Roumania.

Roumelie Oriental.—Eastern Roumelia.

Sachsen.—Saxony.

Salonique (or Salonicco).—Salonica.

Sicilia.—Sicily.

Sld.—On stamps of the Austrian Levant.

Smirne (or Smyrne).—Smyrna.

Soldi.—On stamps of Austrian Italy.

Somalia Italiana.—Italian Somaliland.

Soudan Francais.—French Soudan.

S. P. M.—These letters were overprinted on certain French Colonial stamps intended for use in St. Pierre and Miquelon.

Stati Parm (or Parmensi).—Parma.

S. Thome e Principe.—St. Thomas and Prince Islands.

S. U.—These letters were overprinted on a few Straits Settlements stamps intended for use in the native state of Sungei Ujong.

Sultanat d'Anjouan.—Anjouan.

Sverige.—Sweden.

T.—A large "T" overprinted on the stamps of such countries as Abyssinia, and Bulgaria generally indicates that they were used as postage due labels.

Taksa.—This word appears upon most of the Bulgarian postage due stamps.

Tassa Gazzette.—On the newspaper stamp of Modena.

Telegrafos.—Telegraphs.

Tjeneste.—On the official stamps of Denmark.

Toga.—Tonga.

Toscana.—Tuscany.

U. G.—These letters, with numerals to denote the value, form the "design" of the first typewritten stamps of Uganda.

Ultramar.—The only inscription on many of the Spanish issues of Cuba.

Van Diemens Land.—Tasmania.

Z. Afr. Republiek.—South African Republic (Now known as the Transvaal).

THE END.

SHORT REPLIES.

S. W. (Fort McKarelt).—The United States stamp you describe is evidently a Mailometer perf.

S. D. P. (White Plains).—I presume the higher values would be used principally by Banks and large mercantile concerns especially on bulky letters sent abroad.

G. R. F. (Chicago).—The words "Escuela de Medicina" on the 20c Peru stamp of 1907 are Spanish for "School of Medicine." The building depicted is the Medical School of Lima.

B. M. (Oakland).—I regret I cannot identify the stamp from your description but it is probably a local of some sort.

BOSTON PHILATELIC SOCIETY.

by causes over which they have no control but have already gotten out a new Recruiting folder and application blank and have conducted one of the most successful meetings the Society has ever held. They have a number of other plans under consideration. They secured a lot of information at the Recruiting meeting which they are prepared to follow up. I recommend that this committee be continued.

London Exhibition.—Our members were well represented at the recent London Exhibition and their success may be judged by the following list of medals received. Mr. Howes, bronze medal; Mr. Howes, author, and the New England Stamp Co., publishers, silver medal; Mr. Charles Lathrop, Pack, two gold medals and one silver gilt; Mr. Luff, one gold medal; Mr. Klein, one bronze medal; Mr. H. J. Crocker, one gold medal; Mr. F. J. Melville, one silver gilt medal; Mr. Hugo Griebert, one silver gilt medal; and Mr. Griebert, author, and Hugo Griebert & Co., publishers, one bronze medal.

Publications.—I believe that mention should be made at this time of the very creditable literary showing our members have made during the past year as authors of books or of leading articles in the philatelic magazines. Without any attempt at completeness I may mention Mr. Mason's three handbooks: Essays for stamps; Essays for envelopes; Proofs of U. S. Stamps; Maj. Palmer's Philippines; Julian Park's Philatelic Rambles; C. E. Severn's Sanitary Fairs, etc.; F. J. Melville's Chats on Postage Stamps and several handbooks; L. G. Barrett's Envelope Dies of 1903; Mr. Pack's Brazil Heads; A. T. Browne's Aeroplane Cancellations; Mr. Lyons' Commemorative Stamps, etc., etc.

I thank you for your attention.

Respectfully submitted,

CHARLES K. B. NEVIN, Pres.

2 Important Auctions!!
March 22nd
April 5th

On March 22nd and April 5th we shall sell at Public Auction the magnificent Collection of Mr. J. E. Rodenhaver of Spokane, Wash. This Collection of very nearly 20,000 varieties is remarkable for the unusually fine condition of the stamps, even to the commonest varieties. There are not over 10 stamps in this large Collection which could not be called good or fine, which is most remarkable in a collection of this size.

While the collection is a general one, it is highly specialized in certain countries like Abyssinia, Salvador, Ohio, Luxemburg, Hayti, many Br. Colonies, and other popular countries. Abyssinia is highly specialized and practically complete, including all the rarest varieties, oddities, errors, etc., and quite a number of unlisted rarities.

Salvador is likewise represented by a magnificent lot of unpriced rarities and in fact the Collection is strong in unusual stamps of the "Hard to Get" class which the specialist as a rule will find it impossible to obtain. There are, of course, many single rare stamps catal. $5.00 up to $75.00 each!

We shall sell the single rarities in our First Sale, combination lots by countries and groups in our S. cond. Sale. We recommend to all collectors who do not receive our Auction Catalogs, to write for it, especially those collectors who are particular as to condition, because particular attention has been paid to select perfect copies, well centered, lightly cancelled, even down to the cheapest varieties.

Be sure and drop us a postal card for the Catalogs covering these two Sales.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding pre-cancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDRIDGE, Attleboro, Mass. Specimens must accompany chronicle, with self-addressed stamped envelope for return of the same. Please note these rules.

UNITED STATES.—The Rev. J. Dreyer reports having received two perfectly centered $1 parcel post stamps from the New York postoffice.

Mr. Dreyer also writes as follows, regarding the issue of envelopes with the old knife:

"On page 68, col. 3 re U. S. Envelopes the statement is made 'that the old knife is coming into use again.' Not so, for sizes 3 and 8 have been issued with the short lower flap. I have in my possession a used copy, envelope 2c size 5, watermarked 'U S P O D 1907'—knife 87. It would be hard to find special request envel. 2c sizes 5 or 13 of the old style at present."

Frank B. Eldredge lists new pre-cancels as follows:

Saginaw, Mich.—Two lines (SAGINAW—MICH.) horizontal inscription between two lines 14 mm. apart, lines 3/4 mm. thick, letters about 4 mm. high. 3c, 13c, 15c, 1908-09. 4c, 4c inverted, 5c, 6c, 8c, 10c, 1910. 1c, 2c, 8c, 10c, 15c, 1912. 10c registry, 1911.

Fort Wayne, Ind.—Two lines (FORT WAYNE—IND.) horizontal inscription in capitals with serifs, between two lines 12 mm. apart, lines 1 mm. thick. 1c 1912, inverted, Schermack No. 3.

St. Louis, Mo.—Two lines (ST. LOUIS—MISSOURI.) horizontal inscription in small sans serif capitals, between two lines, 14 1/2 mm. apart, lines 1/2 mm. thick. 4c 1913, Parcel Post. Reported by Fred Fuessel.

Cleveland, Ohio.—(No. 1155) 1c 1913, Parcel Post, double.

South Weymouth, Mass.—(No. 1145) 1c 1910, inverted.

Lynn, Mass.—Two lines (LYNN—MASS.) vertical inscription in square frame 15 mm. high x 12 mm. wide, lines composing frame about 3/4 mm. thick. 3c 1910, reading up.

Battle Creek, Mich.—(BATTLE—CREEK—MICH.) three lines, horizontal inscription, in capitals with serifs, two lines above and below, inscription space 13 mm. wide, top and bottom lines 3/4 mm. wide, other lines 1/4 mm. wide. 5c 1910.

Chicago, Ill.—Two lines (CHICAGO—ILLINOIS) horizontal inscription in sans-serif capitals between two lines 14 1/2 mm. apart, liners 1 mm. thick. 1c 1912, inverted, double.

Henry E. Holley reports having found the die variety reported by B. Douglas Goode in No. 1154, and submits specimens in proof of his statement. Mr. Holley also reports finding other defects in the 1c stamp, due to imperfect inking. Mr. Holley has found panes of 6 and 14 stamps with the variety discovered by Mr. Goode, and it is fair to presume, that the variety occurs in all the stamps of a full sheet.

Frank B. Eldredge sends us a number of curious postmarks from postoffices in the United States and Canada, similar to that used to advertise the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco. These are "Perry's Victory Centennial Put-in-Bay, Ohio, 1913," "Hamilton Centennial Industrial Exposition, Hamilton, Ont.," "Dominion Fair, Brandon, Man.," and "Ottawa Horse Show," Ottawa, Ont.

A. G. Johnson shows us specimens of the 2c of 1887, on manila paper, with a strongly-marked colorless line extending downward from the centre point of the shield through the numeral of value. Mr. Johnson reports having found 25 of these in lot of 105 envelopes, always on manila or manila paper. Regarding the 2c envelope of 1887 on amber paper, Mr. Johnson writes:

"There are probably no United States stamps which present so many different varieties of color and paper as these, and the specialist may at very small expense fill several pages of his album with them. The colors range from light yellow and light blue green to dark yellow and dark blue green. In addition to these there is a very dark—almost black—green. There are two varieties of Die B which may be easily distinguished.

No. 1—The lines are much thinner; some of the letters are thin, others

QUALITY

Quality is the determining factor in the value of packets. While a packet of 1000 varieties can be obtained at all sorts of prices the packet giving the best value for the money is naturally the best bargain.

Quality is the outstanding feature of the packets I am now offering and the quality is so high that every packet is sold with the guarantee of money back if not satisfied.

Write for particulars. It costs but a post-card and is well worth looking into.

60% to 80% Discount ON

United States Stamps

In order to dispose of an accumulation of copies that are not just perfect, I have made up a line of approval sheets, the net prices on which will range between the above discounts. The stamps catalogue from 10 cents to $5.00 each and most of them are fine appearing, a slight tear or a straight edge being the defect.

Stamps under 10 cents each are put in packets at 1-10th of catalogue. Remit any amount, plus postage, and receive ten times that amount in catalogue value. No one cent stamps included.

Reference is required from new approval applicants. Send the names of two stamp dealers from whom you recently have had stamps on approval.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT!

TWENTIETH CENTURY Collectors—all, as well as those who were disappointed in our last sale, will find nearly as complete a line of BRITISH COLONY 20th in our 254th sale, which is set for MARCH 12-13 here in BOSTON.

This contains also nearly all of the late King Edwards, which are so desirable; all in "mint superb" condition. Also a splendid line of MAFEKING, many fine errors, late 19th Century, etc. Also a good U. S. property and combination lots for local bidders. Don't skip this. If you haven't a catalog we'll supply it for the asking if you'll get busy. Arrange to come to this sale yourself. It's much better than to pay your dealer an advanced price the next day—i. e. better for you.

MARCH 31 comes our 255th. This is a general sale including all consignments received during the last four months. First come the PORTUGUESE COLONIES omitted from our TWENTIETH CENTURY sale. Absolutely complete from 1901-8 and "mint" perfection. Five collections as a whole. Fine U. S. on Covers, Departments, and superb Revenues. Selected foreign with an early Liberia cover. Something for everybody, no matter what their attitude.

quite heavy; many of the notches of the serrated inner oval are rounded at the bottom, and the teeth of the outer serrated oval do not touch the line except at one or two points.

No. 2—The lines and letters are very heavy and of uniform strength, the notches of the serrated inner oval come to a point at the bottom, forming sharp saw teeth; the teeth of the outer serrated oval are very close to the line, touching it in a great many places.

AUSTRALIA.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the 1/2d of the new Commonwealth series, the design being the same as the 1d previously chronicled.

Adhesive.

1/2d yellow green.

CUBA.—A. G. Johnson calls our attention to the fact that specimens of the 25c of 1878 are to be found without the period between "Cuba" and "1878". This occurs on both the dark green and yellow green stamps.

CAYMAN ISLANDS.—Harry E. Huber reports the 1/4d value in the King George series. The value appears in color on a plain background, the same as the 2d, 2sh and 3sh values issued last spring. This new value was printed from the King George "Postage and Revenue" keyplate, and was placed on sale at George Town, Feb. 10, 1913.

Adhesive.

1/4d brown.

DENMARK.—A. G. Johnson shows us a copy of the 4 ore stamp of 1874-79, No. 26, which has oblong quadrille lines in the back, which do not yield to thorough soaking.

EGYPT.—Sudan.—Lemaire's Journal notes that the first value of a new series for the Sudan has already appeared. The design is similar to the current issue, but smaller. This change is due to the complaints of business houses regarding the awkwardness of the old stamps. Other values are to follow shortly.

Adhesive.

2m green.

GIBRALTAR.—John Fischer has shown us specimens of the 1/2d, 1d, 2d, 2 1/2d and 6d King George stamps, chronicled in No. 1130.

GILBERT & ELLICE ISLANDS.—The 1d red King George stamp was put on sale on Ocean Island towards the end of last year, according to a circular letter of the Postmaster sent to Hermann Focke, under date of Dec. 12, 1912.

The 2d and 2 1/2d Pandanus tree were still in circulation on that day. Through the courtesy of Mr. Focke we are able to reproduce the most interesting portions of this letter as follows:

The only remittances which can be accepted are British postal orders, which should be left blank, Sydney money orders, Bank of England notes, or coin of Great Britain.

The cancellation of stamps, save on bona fide communications, is strictly forbidden.

Requests for the cancellation of stamps on envelopes, which are not posted in the ordinary way but are sent under cover to the Agent or Postmaster, will not be complied with. Such envelopes will be returned under cover to the sender, the return postage being deducted from the remittance, where possible, otherwise the letter will be posted unpaid and marked with a "T" stamp.

At the date of the issue of the letter, all the issue of stamps surcharged on Fiji Islands stamps were exhausted, and also all of the Pandanus type, except the 2d and 2 1/2d, which were still on sale. There were also on sale the following values of the King George series: 1/2d, 1d, 4d, 5d, 6d, 1sh, 2sh, 2sh 6d and 5sh.

Philatelists are requested to state in their requisitions what they require in case the Postmaster cannot fill their orders exactly. All communications regarding stamps should be addressed to the "Chief Postmaster, Ocean Island," and not to individual officers, who may be on leave or transferred from the Island.

A GREAT OPPORTUNITY.

The way our $1.00 SPECIALS have "caught on" has stimulated us to greater efforts, and here comes the very best one yet. We've bought several collections of UNITED STATES this week, which with their duplicates amount to about $1000 Catalogue value. Every series from 1851 to date are well represented, the various grilles, the 1869 series, as high as the 24c, the high value Expositions, the various $1.00 values, Stamps that will catalogue as high as $4.50 each.

The entire lot have been made into 200 packets. We guarantee that each will catalogue at least $4.00, and many will run as high as $6.00 or $7.00 each. Each contains from 25 to 40 stamps.

All Used. No Cut Squares. No Revenues. $1.02 the Packet in New York Funds also the current Greek stamps overprinted for use in Turkey, postmarked Salonica and Chios. This last surcharge was described in Nos. 1151 and 1153.

Whitfield King & Co. have shown us a specimen of the current Greek stamps surcharged "Lemnos" in Greek characters. There are 16 values, all of the 1911 issue, except the 20l, which is of the 1901 issue. The overprint on the 5l is in red, all other values being surcharged in black.

GRANADA.—Hermann Focke sends us the 1sh value of the new King George series, in the design previously described. The entire set is now on sale in the Colony, as given below. It is noted that the 2d value is in orange and not gray. Does this mean an early change to conform to the color scheme?

GUATEMALA.—A. W. Dunning has shown us Scott's No. 124, 25c on 1c dark green, with the surcharge vertical instead of horizontal; also Scott's No. 77c with surcharge inverted.

HONDURAS.—Dr. Roy F. DeSart reports having received two covers from Honduras bearing two 6c stamps and a diagonal half of another 6c used as a 3c.

INDIA.—W. T. Wilson has shown us the new 4a stamp surcharged "Service," and also the 2a 6p in the redrawn type. The oval is larger than in the 4a stamp the value in figures appearing in a tablet at the bottom.

Adhesive.

2a 6p dark ultramarine.
Official Adhesive.
 4a olive green; black surcharge.

Chamba.—The following Georgian stamps of India have been surcharged for use in Chamba and have been shown us by W. T. Wilson. The regular postage stamps have the surcharge in two lines near the bottom of the stamp, thus "Chamba—State." In the officials the name of the state appears at the top, "Service" being at the bottom as in the regular India stamps. The list is as follows: Postage—½a, ½a, 1a, 2a, 3a, 4a, 6a, 8a, 12a; Service—½a, ½a, 1a, 2a.

PERCIVAL FARRISH, PRESIDENT

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Jhind.—W. T. Wilson shows us several values of the King George Indian stamps surcharged "Jhind—State," in two lines, as follows: ¼a, ½a, 1a, 2a, 3a, 6a.

JAMAICA.—Hermann Focke shows us the 2½d King George. This was reported some time ago as having been seen with "Specimen" surcharge, but has just been issued in the Island. The set now includes the 1d, 2d, 2½d, 3d, 6d and 1sh values. The design is Scott's A17.

Adhesive.

2½d ultramarine.

LEEWARD ISLANDS.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the 3d in the King George series. The ¼d, ½d, 1d, 2d and 2½d values having been previously chronicled.

Adhesive.

3d violet on yellow.

PAPUA.—Whitfield King & Co. send us the 1sh lemon yellow, perforated 12½, and report that the 6d and 1sh with this perforation have been perforated "O S" for official use.

RUSSIA.—Offices in the Levant.—We are indebted to the Rev. J. Dreyer and Mrs. Louise W. Kellogg for specimens of and information regarding the new issue for the Russian Offices in the Levant.

SIAM.—Our French contemporaries, Lemaire's Journal, and Maury's Collectionneur chronicle further baht values in the new set.

Adhesives.

2b carmine and brown.
 3b green and slate.
 5b violet and black.
 10b olive and brown violet.
 20b dark blue and brown red.

TIBET.—W. T. Wilson sends us the new issue, which has already been illustrated. The stamps are poorly printed, the ink being smudged and the engraving crude to a degree. Mr. Wilson says: "The traugha is the unit of Tibetan coinage. At present it is worth about 4d, but formerly 5½d, i.e., ½ of the Indian rupee. I understand the above stamps have been put in use in Tibet by the Dalai Lama and that they are only likely to be a very temporary issue."

Adhesives.

1 kang (1a) green.
 1 kanga (2a) blue.
 1 chegye (3a) mauve.
 1 sho (4a) deep red.
 1 tram (6a) vermilion.

TRINIDAD AND TOBAGO.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the 2½d in the new series, the ½d and 1d having been previously chronicled.

TURKS AND CAICOS ISLANDS.—Ewen's Weekly has been officially informed that after the 31st of March, 1913, such quantities of the following denominations of postage stamps of the King Edward issue, namely, ½d, 1d, 3d, 1sh, 2sh, 3sh, as remain on hand will be withdrawn, and the King George issue will then be sold concurrently with the ship issue, until the latter is exhausted. The following denominations of the ship issue, of which the plates have been destroyed are exhausted, namely, 3d, 2sh and 3sh.

EXHIBITION NEWS.

The association has nearly five hundred members, but no one knows how many desire to compete for the various prizes. If half the members desire to exhibit their collections there will not be room enough. An ordinary collection spread out will cover five hundred square feet, and some intending exhibitors are wanting five thousand. Anyhow the early applicants stand the best show and the eleventh hour people will only have themselves to blame if they find they are crowded out.

It is not too early to arrange about the trip to New York. You expect to take your vacation and certainly there is no better way of enjoying yourself than by visiting the great show. If your wife is not as much interested in stamps as you are, there are the big stores, the theatres and thousand other attractions of the metropolis of the western world. It is about time that you notify the treasurer if you intend to visit N. Y. so that lists may be published and the entertainment committee look after your wants and do all they can to make your stay in New York the last week in October a joyous one and never to be forgotten.

COMMUNICATION.

(We do not hold ourselves responsible for the views expressed by our readers. Our columns are always open for communications of general interest.—Ed.)

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 25, 1913.

Editor MEKEEL'S WEEKLY:

I send herewith my solution of your contest in THE WEEKLY of February eighth. I am sorry that it is incomplete, but I have tried my best, not so much for the prize as that I hated to acknowledge defeat. It is no easy task to examine carefully 896 pages of fine print. During the hunt I came across some curious things that might prove interesting to your readers.

On page 76, note after No. 286, Scott informs us that "No Official stamps are no longer in use," while on page 308 the 1908 issue is described as being "similar to the issue of 19003," which is very remarkable foresight. According to some visionaries by that time we will be communicating with each other by means of thought waves; hence, philatelists will have to be satisfied with obsolete issues, unless reprints, counterfeits, re-issues, special printings, etc., which never grow less should still be in vogue.

The India stamp, A23, page 405, has the English sentence completely reversed, and on A24 on the same page the English sentence is inverted, while the native characters and the corner letters are in their proper positions.

EDITORIAL.

Now we Know—Last week we told of the discovery of an old circular printed in the late '40's offering sets of postmarking and post-rating stamps to postmasters and promised to show how its information would decide definitely certain points that heretofore could not be dismissed absolutely as having been fully met. In fact, some speculation that has been indulged in to account for certain unusual markings may now be forgotten in the light of the new testimony. A "Paid 3" in circle or a fancy "3" on which Paid was outlined in white letters impressed on different denominations of the 1851 issue, for instance, has been known to excite fond imaginings of provisional tinge. A "V" or "X" in a circle on a corner of an envelope plainly postmarked in addition has lead loyal owners to exult in the thought that they had an unknown provisional. We find all these types of impression illustrated in the circular; and as all these "Improved Post Office Stamps, engraved on box wood," were advertised to give the plainest impression, markings from them had an unusually clean appearance. It is needless to say that these post office "stamps" which were advertised as superior to the metal stamps furnished by the department saw many years of service here and there in offices, as stamp obliterators.

Pioneer Precancellation—The first precanceled "stamp" we are now prepared to prove was that of Ludlow, Mass., in the time of the circular that has been mentioned. On the face of the cover, in addition to the die-printed postmark, which is dated Jun. 1, without the year, of course, is the printed word, Paid, and also, for good measure, an additional Paid 3, the circular rate at the time, the late forties, also printed. All the foregoing printings were upon the face of the circular which was addressed to postmasters in different states, "Postmaster," and the name of the state having been printed.

A GOOD THING

We have secured the greater part of a sheet of the 1909 issue $1 stamps in as pale a shade as the current Franklin $1. The regular common color of this stamp is a dark purp brown, approaching black. The stamps of which we speak are much lighter in color and seem to have some red mixed in the printing ink. We will sell a few of these at $2.00 a stamp and blocks of four at the same rate. There is one block of four with plate number at top which costs $10.00.

Ferris' Auction Review, the most useful book of the year, $1.10 postfree.

EUGENE KLEIN, Inc., Empire Bldg., 13th & Walnut Sts., Philadelphia, Pa.

Parcel Post Special Delivery—The parcel post regulations have been amended by the addition of the following as Section 65: "A mailable parcel will be accorded the usual special delivery service when a special delivery stamp or ten cents in ordinary stamps are affixed thereto in addition to the parcel post postage. When ordinary stamps are used the words 'Special Delivery' must be placed on the wrapper. Frank H. Hitchcock, Postmaster General."

His Hallucination—Said the attendant at the Asylum for the Addled: "Yes, he is getting to be more cheerful and I must say that he is a thorough gent even if he is peculiar in the head. No wonder, though, his wits have become scrambled. You see, he had a terrible shock and that is why he acts so scared like. He had a small collection of duplicate stamps that he took to a dealer, expecting to receive a dollar or two but the dealer of his own accord said cheerily that the stamps were worth five dollars to him and that he was pleased to get them for that. The poor fellow dashed with a yell for the street but a policeman caught him and they soon brought him here. Now, he thinks that stamp dealers are nature's noblemen and that they are cruelly imposed upon by the wicked stamp collectors. He will soon get over it, I am sure."

To Resume—What has become of the old-fashioned collector who kept his stamp album on the parlor center-table along with the autograph and photograph albums? Is he pitching horseshoes somewhere with the o. f. c. who would not accept new issues as a gift because there were no places for them in the stamp album? What has become of the old-fashioned dealer who closed his shop at 4.30 every afternoon, whether there were customers present at the time or not? Is he talking over Greeley's campaign with the o. f. d. who used to handle decalcomania pictures as a side line to the stamps?

That Chinese Puzzle—Mr. L. C. Ernst comes to the rescue and submits the following solution of the mysterious conditions reported by Captain Clyde B. Parker, U. S. A.: "Answering Capt. Parker's query in No. 1155, page 57, I beg to say that the cancellation probably is a defective impression of the Imperial Japanese P-post O-office at Shanghai, which canceled the stamp after it had been affixed by the postmaster at Tangku to cover the foreign in addition to the inland (prepaid by the Chinese stamps) charges. The writer must have paid although he may not remember having done so, now. At that time—1900—the foreign mail (that is, matter directed to places outside of China) had to be franked with Chinese stamps sufficient to cover the amount of the foreign offices' charges, as the letters were handed to the offices for transmission, in addition to the inland or Chinese postal charges; China had no regular outside service. (See article in A. J. of P.—August 31, 1894, page 386, et seq., by W. C. Eaton, Com., U. S. N.) These foreign offices on receiving the mail attached their own stamps which were accepted by the Universal Postal Union. If the P. M. at Tangku had Japanese stamps, they would do away with the necessity of attaching the excess Chinese stamps. Then, the Chinese post-office would cancel only its own stamps, leaving the other to be obliterated by the Japanese postoffice at Shanghai when the letter arrived there. This also accounts for the Japanese stamp overlapping the Tangku cancellation. I have the same postmark on a pair of Japanese 10 sen brown, used on a letter with Chinese stamps; and also, on a 10 sen Japanese Offices in China. My two covers have: eight Chinese 2c and one Chinese 10c, making 26c; deducting the 2 Japanese, or 20s, the excess is 6c and the second cover has 2 Chinese 1c; one Chinese 2c and one Chinese 10c, making 14c in all; the excess is 4c, after the Japanese 10s is deducted. There being no excess postage in Captain Parker's letter is the reason that I think that the P. M. at Tangku must have affixed the Japanese stamp, 10c, for foreign postage, the two Chinese 5c, rating the inland charges only."

Weekly Report—Sinpod, the stamp sage, says that he has found a buyer who never was disappointed in the condition of the stamps advertised as a great bargain: An auctioneer who never said during the course of the sale that he was giving the stamps away, almost: A reader of the philatelic papers who never had a word of adverse criticism for them and a stamp dealer who was never caught out of stock of an advertised stamp.

Nobody Knows—The following inquiry came from Grant Kinner of Cuba, New York: "Would you be kind enough to tell me through your columns who the first stamp collector was?" The question was referred at once to Sinpod who said: A philatelic historian records 1854 as the earliest date of a stamp collection; and he said that it was in that year that he saw stamps arranged on a chart, which, due license given, could be stretched into a stamp collection. Soon after adhesive stamps were issued in 1840, there were persons in Great Britain who "just accumulated them in duplicate."

Meetings first (informal) and third (regular) Tuesdays, Room 322, Tremont Bldg., 7.30 P. M.

BOSTON, MASS., Jan. 21, 1913.
Mr. President and Gentlemen:

The year just passed has in some ways been an eventful one for the Society. One half of the officers were newly elected a year ago, and all have worked together to put activity into the various departments in their charge. Their own reports will tell you the details. It is the Secretary's regretful duty, however, to note in passing that the efforts of at least two known members were directed from early in the year toward the caricature and ridicule of almost everything connected with the conduct of the Society. It may have been started in jest, but soon degenerated to conduct unbecoming any member and distasteful to the majority. Vitriolic attacks upon some of the officers finally resulted in the expulsion of one member as entirely undesirable.

Complaint of malfeasance in office was presented by a former member of the Society against a former office holder, which charges were proved and resulted in the expulsion of another member. Both cases were appealed, but the action of the Governing Board, in whose hands such matters are placed by the Statutes, was decisively upheld by vote of the Society.

It is but natural that such occurrences should interfere with harmony and progress, and a Recruiting Committee which had been appointed early in the year was forced to suspend its endeavors until matters were finally settled. But in spite of this interruption, which it is hoped will not soon recur, there have been admitted 14 new members during the year. Unfortunately there have been 12 resignations, 7 dropped for non-payment of dues, and 1 death besides the 2 expulsions, so that the loss offsets our gain by reducing the total membership to 8 below last year's figures.

The membership is composed as follows:—Honorary 5, Non-resident 60, and Resident 110, a total of 175.

There have been held the usual ten regular or formal meetings during the year, and the usual twelve informal meetings. The attendance at the regular meetings has averaged 46.5, a gain of 13 over last year, which speaks well for the interest in the doings of the Society. No record of the attendance at the informal meetings has been kept, but it is estimated by constant attendants at these meetings that there may have been an average of perhaps 15 or more as a usual thing.

The Governing Board has held 13 meetings, an unusual record, but part of them were due to the extra work necessitated by the occurrences already noted at the beginning of this report. The members have labored diligently and conscientiously with the matters brought before them, with the welfare of the Society as the only object in their decisions.

It was deemed necessary to change the lock to the Club Room door, both as a precautionary measure and to get track of missing keys that had been given out without any record having been kept.

The Society was placed upon the Honorary List of Patrons for the International Exhibition held by the Junior Philatelic Society of London the past year, and also for those to be held in New York and in Paris during the present year.

A new membership list was issued during the year as the last edition had been exhausted.

The Society has lost a friend and well-wisher in the person of Mr. Henry J. Crocker of San Francisco, who had been a member since 1901. He died rather suddenly on Oct. 11, 1912. He was prominent in the stamp world, well known for his fine collections and especially for his magnificent specialized Hawaiians, was the author of a monograph on Hawaii, and was President of the Pacific Philatelic Society. He was greatly interested in the proposed stamp exhibition at San Francisco in 1915, for which he was laying great plans. His death came just before the announcement of his success as a medal winner at the International Exhibition in London in October. His loss to Philately has been keenly felt.

With regard to the Secretary's personal work during the year, it may be stated that 1240 notices of meetings have been sent out, 251 letters written, 10 packages mailed, besides 17 copies of the Statutes and 167 copies of the new membership lists, a total of 1685 pieces of mail matter.

Respectfully submitted,
C. A. HOWES, Sec.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Dr. C. F. Roh submits two covers bearing the postmark of Beirut, Syria. On the one the 20pf Germany with the 1 piastre surcharge is used, but on the other envelope the stamp is minus the surcharge. Such varieties are interesting and are quite common here in the U. S. as well as abroad.

—The Kenwood Stamp Exchange of Chicago, Ill., has purchased the Smith Exchange of the same city.

—J. A. Wilkowski sends us a clipping from Popular Mechanics which pictures a new postage stamp vending machine which has been adopted by the government. This machine will be placed in the larger post offices of the country and will also be found in sub stations and possibly the big department stores. There are no levers or knobs to be worked.

—Our thanks are extended to P. M. Wolsieffer for a menu of the annual banquet of the C. P. S. held at the Palmer House, Feb. 27. It is a dainty affair and the dates Feb. 12 and Feb. 22 are made the more significant by the presence of two U. S. stamps, the 6c pink Lincoln and the 2c Internal Revenue Washington. Mr. Severn will no doubt report the banquet for the WEEKLY.

—Edward Michael has become the sole proprietor of the business formerly conducted under the firm name of Fred Michael & Brother and consequently, the sign above the door at the popular shop at 138 North Dearborn Street, Chicago, now reads: Edward Michael. He is to be congratulated upon having acquired his present prominence in commercial philately within a comparatively few years; and we hope that Mr. Michael's philatelic and numismatic prosperity will long continue.

—The Mack Stamp Co., Detroit, Mich., after using our trade column for a number of weeks has contracted for displayed space and their announcements will be a regular feature of our advertising columns.

—"While the first two advertisements brought in but few orders, I must tell you that the last one has been very successful. I have my hands full of work and inquiries and orders are coming in daily. I am glad that I have found out how to advertise in your valued paper and it is a satisfaction to state that the expected results have been obtained."—M. E. MARCHENA.

—F. M. Gilbert of Chicago, Ill., was a recent visitor at the WEEKLY office.

PLATE TO BE DESTROYED.

U. S. District Attorney Wise of New York has ordered the destruction of the plate of the beautiful exhibition stamps and all the stamps printed from it. Mr. Wise maintains that this label is too close an imitation of the U. S. Government postage stamps. We are advised of this fact just as we are going to press and will no doubt be able to give further information next week.

$1 PARCEL POST TO BE CHANGED.

It is the purpose of the Government to withdraw the present dollar parcel post stamp and substitute a design with a modification of its central part. The color may also be changed in an effort to make it as much unlike the one-cent value as possible.

KNICK-KNACKS.

We are told that the one dollar parcel post stamp is to have a sky-light; that is, the sky is to be lightened according to a tip from Washington.

"Sometimes I feel a stamp craving that is almost pain," confesses one of the soulful school. If it affected us that way, we should take something for it.

Entry in the Great Lilliputian Contest. An adult collector who said the dealer tried to rob him because he charged five per cent. over face for certain perfectly centered stamps, current issue, that are carried by only a few of the large offices.

"Is the enhancement in value of ancient stamps likely to be accelerated in the coming years?" is the opening lay of a hoity-toity contributor. Let us say nothing and keep him guessing.

"Before I became a stamp collector, I found it necessary to take a sedative to woo sweet sleep; but now I fall asleep over my stamps," says a reader. This is our idea of zero in complimentary allusion.

Parnassus Penflip has foresworn philately and its crew. Have you noticed that President Wilson has appointed him postmaster-general? Neither has Parnassus.

Someone has said that a stoker on one of the ocean steamers is a philatelist but we wager that he does not dalli with his stamps in the furnace room.

"How is this for an old-fashioned collector?" asks a reader who tells of a stranger who called on him to show him several stamps that he carried in his pocket handkerchief.

"I find that stamp collectors are always gentlemen," says a writer in the newspapers. Wrong. Some are ladies.

CHAPTER XXXI.

6 Cents, Issue of 1870-79.

Almost simultaneously with the appearance of the 1 and 3 cent stamps of new design and shade, came the six cents. The portrait of Abraham Lincoln, sober and sombre as usual, appeared within an oval medallion. For the first time in the history of the postal issues carmine alone appeared as the color. What was one of the handsomest postage stamps of the entire series, in way of shade was afterwards made almost repulsive through a change of color.

What has been written of the lower values as to the embossing of the stamps was probably true of this denomination. But it is not absolutely certain whether or not the ungrilled labels appeared first or not, for the reason that the same plate was used for the printing of both, while in the other denominations the lowest numbered plates were without grilles. It is safe to assume that the first stamps issued were not "protected against cleaning"—as the claims of the inventor of the embossing process set forth. Perhaps it matters little, too.

The first delivery of six cents stamps by the National Bank Note Co. was made on or about April 15, 1870. It was several months later than this when the presence of the grille was chronicled in the philatelic press. But as no definite records were kept it is not likely that the exact dates of issue of either will ever be known.

Four sizes of grilles have been chronicled, as follows:

Size.	Points.
8 1/2 x 9 1/2	11x12
8 1/2 x 11	11x14
9x12	12x15
10x12	13x15

The shades, as classified by Mr. Luff are—carmine-rose, pale carmine rose, and carmine.

The only variety so far noted is the "end roller grille" or grille extending the entire length of stamp. The reason for this variety has been noted in a previous chapter. I have seen a copy with double grille.

A trifle greater variety of shades are found in the six cents without grille, classified as follows:

Pale rose, rose, brown rose, rose carmine, carmine, brown carmine, and violet carmine.

One variety only has been mentioned—on double paper.

Plates number 26 and 27 were made for this denomination, and the grilled stamps were printed from one, perhaps both, of these plates. So far as the writer is able to learn it has never been clearly settled whether both plates were so used, or not.

There were printed and delivered to the postoffice department between April 1, 1870 and April, 1873, of this denomination, 27,398,850 stamps. This included the grilled and without grille. No record was made of the numbers of each printed.

In 1873 the Continental Bank Note Company, having been awarded the contract, took up the making of postage stamps for the United States. All plates, dies, transfer rolls and designs were turned over to the new manufacturers, and to separate the work turned out by this firm, from that of its predecessors, a "secret mark" was made in the die. Some writers have asserted that the "secret marks" were cut into the plates, but this is very improbable—first, because the same plate numbers were not used by the two companies; second, it would have been impossible to retouch the engravings in each stamp design without showing some material difference, which has not been shown. The "secret mark" consisted of recutting and deepening the four vertical lines beginning at the left within ribbon which contains the word "Cents." The shades were few, only dull rose and brown rose being given by Mr. Luff. To which I believe should be added a shade of slightly dulled carmine. At least I have several copies in almost the same shade as the stamps of the National Bank Note Co.

This stamp was grilled, for legal purposes only, and is a very rare thing. It was never used, officially at least, although it might have done service as such.

H. F. COLMAN,
 Second National Bank Bldg., WASHINGTON, D. C.

Two paper varieties are chronicled—double paper and ribbed.

The Continental Bank Note Company used plates No. 18, 21, 304, 305.

There were printed and delivered, between May 1, 1873 and December 31, 1876, 15,290,000 stamps. Probably some stamps were printed on soft paper before the contract passed to the company's successors. There were printed by this concern, 14,995,800 stamps.

The American Bank Note Company took up the work of supplying the government with its postage stamps early in 1879, and on Feb. 4, in that year, made deliveries of stamps printed upon soft, porous paper. For the denomination of six cents it is not likely that any new plates were made, as all known prints were from plates No. 304 and 305, used by the Continental Bank Note Company.

Mr. Luff classifies the shades as follows: Pale dull rose, dull rose, brown rose. How many of these were printed before the re-engraved design was adopted I do not know.

Proofs should, by all means, be secured by specialists. A most acceptable addition is a nice, well centered block of four, which can occasionally be obtained. Few plate numbers exist, and a collector is fortunate enough to obtain one.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—E. S. Bowden-Smart advises us that parcel post stamps are being used in the Canadian mails. He resides in Alberta and has seen many of these stamps used on mail between the two countries.

—Geo. M. Brack of St. Paul, Minn., applied to the P. O. Dept. over a year ago for some 5c stamps in coils. He advises us that he has just been notified that his application can be filled with the 5c value in perforated coils, stamps arranged sidewise. Mr. Brack is not at all enthusiastic over the haste displayed in meeting his application.

—Maitland Milliken sends us a clipping from the Denver Times which calls for a distinctive 2c postage stamp to help Denver in its celebration of the Last Grant Council of American Indians.

—Geo. O. Williams, Brownsville, Tex., is out in war paint after the dealers who send out unsolicited approval sheets. He also criticises in a communication to the WEEKLY the practise of certain firms in pricing stamps higher than catalog prices in order to allow fancy discounts.

—We are indebted to Herman W. Boers for two items of news. F. R. Schmalzriedt of Detroit, an active philatelist and a member of the A. P. S., has been nominated by the Republicans of that city as a candidate for representative-at-large upon Charter Commission. F. G. Sweet of Battle Creek, passing through Detroit on his way to New York, informed the local collectors that he was on his way to England and the continent on a five months' tour. Incidentally he took with him a grip full of fine stamps.

—The International Stamp Co. has submitted for our inspection a copy of the magnifying glass advertised elsewhere in this issue. For a small compass glass it is certainly a powerful one. It is convenient in form and can be easily carried in the pocket. The firm also sends two art calendars which it is distributing to its customers.

—W. F. Goerner sends us a newspaper clipping announcing the death of George E. Beard at Southern Pines, N. C., Feb. 27. Mr. Beard was an ardent philatelist and has been a subscriber to the WEEKLY for a considerable period. He was a man of great integrity and much respected by his fellow-citizens.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from John Fischer (7), H. Clark Jarrett, O. D. Challans, Hugo Kuenstler (11), H. W. Boers, Frank C. Threlfall, Geo W. Schaefer (3).

—The Watervliet Stamp Co. would like to locate W. J. Reed, Pittsburgh, Pa., John Timbers, Menomonee, Wis., L. Sturdevant, Indianapolis, Ind. If interested write the company at Watervliet, Mich. O. E. Rasor, St. Louis, Mo., is unable to locate H. Wilson of Orange, N. J. Mr. Rasor's address is 1516 S. Broadway, St. Louis, Mo. Still another report comes to us from the Hussman Stamp Co., John A. Muchmore of Enid, Okla. being the party under fire.

—A mistake was made last week in attributing the usual ad on the first page to Fred Michael. Instead, the name of Edward Michael should have been appended. There is no business connections between these two firms.

FOUR BOOKS YOU NEED.

There is one book on the stamps of the U. S. that you must have. It is the one by Goodwin which we are now running in the WEEKLY in serial form. We don't know how many pages it will take but already forty pages have been reprinted, and it may run to three times that number. The price of the book will be 75c or $1 but if you are sporty enough to subscribe in advance remit 50c and the book will be yours. Any instalment published in the WEEKLY will show how comprehensive is Mr. Goodwin's treatment of his subject. It will be a standard work on the stamps of the United States.

We announce for early appearance the book by Mr. Poole "Hints for Beginners." The title, however, is a misnomer, as the book contains data that every collector needs for reference purposes. The price of this book will be 25c only and we anticipate that the edition will be early exhausted. Add this amount to your renewal of subscription and we will send book when issued.

Poole's book on "Cook Ids." It is a masterpiece—the only book on the stamps of these islands. Fully illustrated and of permanent value. Price 25c, this office.

Unless you have Scott's Standard Catalog you can't collect stamps intelligently. It is the Standard and the price is 75c postpaid. It gives you all the information needed in a compact form. For sale at this office.

A GREAT OPPORTUNITY.

The way our $1.00 SPECIALS have "caught on" has stimulated us to greater efforts, and here comes the very best one yet. We've bought several collections of UNITED STATES this week, which with their duplicates amount to about $1000 Catalogue value. Every series from 1851 to date are well represented, the various grilles, the 1869 series, as high as the 24c, the high value Expositions, the various $1.00 values, Stamps that will catalogue as high as $4.50 each.

The entire lot have been made into 200 packets. We guarantee that each will catalogue at least $4.00, and many will run as high as $6.00 or $7.00 each. Each contains from 25 to 40 stamps. All Used. No Cut Squares. No Revenues. $1.02 the Packet in New York Funds

FRAUDS IN POSTAGE STAMPS.

Parcel Post Clerks Confused by the Similarity of the Designs.

The new parcel post stamps, which run from one cent to one dollar in denomination, are causing trouble to the Post Office authorities owing to the fact that they are all printed in red. This confuses the parcel post clerks and opens the door to fraudulent practices on the part of certain persons.

The denomination of one cent is indicated by the words "One-Cent-One" on the bottom part of the stamp. In the dollar stamp the word "Dollar" takes the place of "Cent." It has been found, it is said, that in a number of instances the word "Dollar" has been cut out of that stamp and pasted over the word "Cent" on the one-cent stamp.

The clerks in their hurry of canceling the stamps have mistaken the patched up one-cent for the dollar stamp. The designs of the two stamps are similar, the exception being the centre picture.

It is the purpose of the Government to withdraw the present dollar stamps of this issue from circulation owing to the fact that there is far too much detail in its background and to substitute a new dollar stamp with modification of its central part. Of this dollar denomination 400,000 stamps have been issued.

STAMP AUCTIONS A SPECIALTY.

If you have a really good collection or lot of stamps for sale and wish the best results, as obtained by modern methods, a first class catalog, and a list of tested buyers, write us. We have held 45 very successful sales (and are preparing others). We have incorporated some new ideas in auctions which have produced results eminently satisfactory to sellers and buyers alike.

TERMS:—Our terms are lowest for the best service and vary with the magnitude and quality of collection. MONEY ADVANCED INTENDING SELLERS, if desired. Sales held both in New York and Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA STAMP COMPANY,

PERCIVAL FARRISH, PRESIDENT

1904 CHESTNUT STREET

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

KNICK-KNACKS.

"Do stamps jump in price in spring-time?" asks a subscriber. Is there no sail in sight?

The worst is to come. He continues: "Are those Ivory Coast stamps very hard?" Yes, we have returned his subscription money.

Our friend in Watervliet, Michigan, says: "I see that you are looking for the o. f. c. who distributes ashes from his pipe through his stamp album. Well, here is one who keeps the air green about half of the time for that very reason." Notice that "green" as an improvement over blue?

The aforesaid friend likewise is a double-barreled shooter. Again: "I would like to know what kind of bullets to use on the o. f. d. who sends out perfectly good stamps stuck to the sheets with a drop of cement, or perhaps it is glue. Neither explosive nor brass bullets seem effective enough." We have already paged this human pest without result.

Borus Blurp, our own philatelic poet laureate, is still pursuing the calendar:

March the month of gust and sleet
 Finds philatelic blood at fever heat.
 His lay sounds like a nurse's record at the hospital.

"Do not those split provisionals loan a rare dignity to the album page?" asks an advertiser. We cannot see how such cut-ups can do so.

"When misfortune o'ertakes me, I turn to my stamps for relief. They never fail me,—they provide food, drink and all creature comforts," says a writer who evidently knows the way to the philatelic pawn-shop.

Our Great Lilliputian Contest. A reader thinks that this chap is worthy to be crowned King of Lilliput: "An acquaintance bought an auction lot of two stamps, one of which he wanted. The other he asked that I buy, pro rata, but demanded that I pay the postage both from and to the auctioneer."

"I find M. S. Spat in our telephone directory. Is he a philatelic anagram?" chortles Embossed Emil. Shame on Emil.

"A great wave of philatelic interest is seething over the land," writes an observer who evidently has swallowed too much of the water.

"How can one tell a stamp that has been cleaned?" inquires a valued reader. Usually by the price at which it is offered.

A QUESTION OF POLICY.

TO THE EDITOR:—

I got a letter and report from the American Philatelic Society Sales Department by which I understand no more circuits will be sent to the Philippines. This being our only benefit received from the society, I doubt if we can hold our members. You may remember that your paper published our branch as the fourth in amount of sales, during 1911. The reason given, that sea air injures the gum, is to my mind entirely inadequate. It doesn't. It is the moisture-saturated air of our rainy season, which begins in June or July and lasts till the end of November. But nobody here (except one) collects unused stamps and we had repeatedly asked that no unused stamps be sent here, I don't think we ought to be held responsible for any loss the owners of gummed stamps sent here may have suffered. I will here say that the class of unused stamps generally sent was a cheap class, that were perhaps seriously depreciated by losing their gum—but we didn't ask to see rubbish of that sort, anyway.

When you get through with reading this, if you don't want to print it, would you mind fraternally mailing it to whichever A. P. S. officer might be interested? If they want members out here they must send us sales books; I wouldn't ask anyone to join if they don't.

Note one of the objections to sending books out here is the length of time before books are returned to their owners. Well, I put in a book March 1, 1911, and some in June and July, 1911, and don't imagine any of these were sent as far away as here. Nothing heard of any of them yet. So I don't imagine the "time" objection amounts to much.

THEO. SIDDALL,
 Manila, Philippine Islands.

(NOTE.—As the Board of Vice-Presidents formulates the rules under which the Sales Superintendent conducts, we forwarded to them the enclosures of Mr. Siddall's letter, which were in the nature of protests against the ruling by members in the Philippines.)

EXHIBITION NEWS.

Thirty-two weeks to the opening of the Great International Stamp Exhibition to be held in New York City during the last week of October. The show has been fairly well boosted, but apparently every collector has not yet heard of the treat in store for him, because new members are coming in every day, and they are all anxious to get the beautiful set of stamps.

At present amateurs are all guessing what stamp is to be printed at the Exhibition! One thing is certain, it will not, and cannot be handsomer than the present Exhibition label. The annual meeting of the members of the Exhibition Association, was to have been held March 10. Particulars later. The directors then elected will have the entire management of the show and it is to be hoped that the best available men will be chosen. They will have great responsibility, and plenty of hard work. The efforts of the past year have only been preparatory, awakening the interest of collectors and gathering in the money needed to carry out the plans of the founder. Another five thousand dollars must be secured before the opening if the plans of its projectors are to be carried out in all their details.

EDITORIAL.

Illustrations of U. S.—A reader asks: "Will you please advise me through the columns of your paper if there is published and for sale any book or books on United States postage stamps, envelopes, etc., with full-sized illustrations?" So often does this question in some guise or other reach us that a few words here are advisable. There is no treatise on United States issues with full-size illustrations of United States stamps that has appeared during the past twenty-five years or more. About 1885 or so, the government enacted a measure prohibitory of the use of any printed reproduction of its postal or monetary certificates, current or obsolete; and steps were instituted at once to enforce the law. For instance, Mr. E. B. Sterling, Trenton, New Jersey, who in the eighties used a business envelope with a cut of the seven-cent U. S. stamped envelope upon it perhaps was the first philatelic victim of the interdiction of the government as in the year 1884, Mr. Sterling's stock of these envelopes was confiscated and destroyed. Another business envelope of Mr. Sterling showed a cut of an adhesive United States but in this case, the authorities relented to the extent that Mr. Sterling was allowed to utilize these envelopes after the picture of the stamp had been blotted out, effectually. Since that time, only in isolated cases have reproductions of United States envelopes been circulated and outside of the Melville books, published in London, which may not be available generally and the foreign catalogues, usually with miniature reproductions, there is nothing to offer on the subject. Several years ago, an effort was made, under the auspices of the American Philatelic Society to yield a point in their interpretation of the law and allow the use of fac-simile printings for scientific purposes was not successful. While not without sympathy for the object of the resolution of the society, which was supported by non-affiliated collectors as well, the authorities felt that it would be unwise to make any exception, even in the interests of education or instruction.

A GOOD THING

We have secured the greater part of a sheet of the 1909 issue $1 stamps in as pale a shade as the current Franklin $1. The regular common color of this stamp is a dark purp e brown, approaching black. The stamps of which we speak are much lighter in color and seem to have some red mixed in the printing ink. We will sell a few of these at $2.00 a stamp and blocks of four at the same rate. There is one block of four with plate number at top which costs $10.00.

Stretching a Point—As showing how jealously the authorities guard their preserves, we are informed that they have ordered the plate of the New York exhibition stamps destroyed because of its fancied similarity to United States postage stamps. So strict a construction of the law is akin to making a mountain out of a mole-hill, it seems to us. The head of Washington as used on the stamps souvenirs of the silver jubilee convention of the American Philatelic Society, Chicago, 1911, was the same as that used on the $5.00 United States proprietary revenue stamp issued 1871-75. Evidently, the Chicago stamps escaped the attention of the Washington censors or else the word, "Souvenir", on the stamp was their passport.

Half a Loaf—There are several works that are almost as satisfactory as books with the full-size illustrations would be. Toppan's "Notes Upon the United States and Confederate States Stamps and their Varieties," a ten-cent book, gives partial illustrations, both of adhesives and envelopes. Bartel's envelope publication shows the essential parts or die differences of the envelopes of the United States and there are several pamphlets in addition that show the varieties in United States issues. While it must be admitted that the novice in United States issues is adrift, yet he will soon learn that there are several anchors to the windward.

* * *

Hold—What has become of the old-fashioned collector who carried his collection in a Farmers' and Merchants' Memorandum book, in his breast pocket, everywhere he went? Is he at choir practice somewhere with the o. f. c. who on Saturday morning would get down to the dealer's before the stamp shop was opened? What has become of the old-fashioned dealer who closed his office early on sunny afternoons so that he could see Troy play his home team in the National League? Is he telling one of Bill Nye's stories somewhere to the o. f. d. who asked his boy customers if they smoked cigarettes?

There is Hope—Said the attendant at the Asylum for the Addled: "Do not be alarmed, gents; he is a gentle enough chap. Those microscopes, compasses, quadrants and what nots are the things he works with all day all by himself, disturbing nobody. It was this way. He says that he is on the track of a great discovery that will be the sensation of the age in philately. He has found a spot on Washington's nose on one of the current two-cent stamps; and he became so excited about it that his brains sagged and his folks sent him here. He is trying to prove what caused the spot and that is why his face is so drawn-like with hard study. Those books? Why, there is Hyde on 'Skin,' Wenn on 'Warts,' and a whole medical library on cutaneous affections. Soon as we can coax him into the sunshine, he will get over it, I am sure."

* * *

He Has Said It—Sinpod, the stamp sage, says that he has found a collector who says that of all the stamp papers to which he has subscribed none suspended publication before the expiration of term of subscription: A member of a stamp society who never heard the secretary in his report enjoin each member to secure at least one new name during the coming year: A dealer who never had a star customer and a cataloguer who was never accused of pricing certain stamps too low so as to be able to buy them up himself at his own prices.

* * *

Read the Letter—We trust that we violate no confidence in publishing the following letter, which breathes so kindly a spirit that it may serve as an inspiration to some of us cleave to the best sentiment in philately: "Manila, P. I., February 2nd, 1913. Mr. C. E. Severn, Chicago, Ill., Dear Sir:—Under date of December 13th, you wrote to my boy, John Kirkwood, Tacoma, Washington, in regard to your 'Shut-In's' proposition. He forwarded the entire deal to me as a matter of news. I wish to sincerely thank you for the letter. This boy is fourteen years old, and from his father inherits his love for stamp collecting. I have done all that I possibly could to teach him that a stamp is valuable, not at Scott's catalogue valuation but from personal association that surrounds its acquisition. I also have taught him to trade his duplicates, but to err on the side of generosity when figuring with his little pals. I have explained to him that in my travelling, he has a source of supply that is open to few, and that he should be generous and divide that opportunity with others. He writes me that he has sent to this Mr. Ira Fisher a line of approximately 500 varieties with instructions to take from the sheets any that he may wish. You may readily see that your suggestion works well with my teaching, and the pleasure that I took in his report was only equaled by the pleasure that the boy took in helping out this Mr. Fisher. Very truly yours, Chas. Kirkwood."

UNITED STATES.—George O. Williams also reports finding a 2c envelope, current issue, this time 2c on oriental buff, with the stamp offset on the inside.

ARGENTINE.—Lemaire's Journal reports the issue of the remaining peso values in the Laborer series.

Adhesives.

5p slate and olive green.
10p violet and blue.
20p blue and red brown.

CAYMAN ISLANDS.—J. A. Galbraith also shows us a used copy of the 1/4d King George stamp, chronicled in No. 1158.

AUSTRALIA.—Whitfield King & Co., the New England Stamp Co. and Morgan W. Taylor have shown us further values in the Commonwealth set, all in the "Kangaroo" design.

Adhesives.

2d gray.
5d red brown.
6d ultramarine.
1sh emerald green.

CEYLON.—Regarding the surcharges on Ceylon stamps and referring to Mr. Cooper's communication in No. 1155, Clark W. Brown writes as follows:

"Regarding the note on Ceylon stamps would say that I have specialized on Ceylon for a number of years and can give a little more information on the subject. The word 'Cave' is a type set surcharge made by the firm of H. W. Cave & Co. of Colombo, a large department store and answers just the same purpose as our own perforation of initials on the present United States stamps. So far as I know this is the only firm using a type set surcharge, but numbers of firms use rubber stamps for the same purpose, which shows the regular postmark also. Other small users of stamps when they send letters to the post office, by Coolies usually, draw one or more pen or pencil marks across the letter and stamps, so that it will be easily noticed if the stamps are removed. Others write the word 'Stamped' across the letter or stamps. All simply to prevent stealing. Many collectors consider these stamps as revenue stamps but such is not the case, as the postmark is also found on the stamps."

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC.—Hermann Focke reports the 1/2c and 5c values in the new set, which have hitherto been lacking.

Adhesives.

1/2c orange yellow and black.
5c blue and black.

FRENCH OCEANIA.—The New England Stamp Co. has shown us the new set of stamps for the French colonies in Oceania. Like all the recent Colonial issues the stamps are of large size, 20x35 mm. There are three designs, all printed in two colors, on white paper. The values from 1c to 20c are upright rectangles, with the portrait of a native woman, with hair decorated with flowers as the central feature. "Etablissements de L'Océanie," appears at the top, "R" "F" in the lower corners, the value in an oval below the portrait, and "Postes" just below. The frame is conventional, that for all the values, that for the franc values being the most elaborate. The design for the values from 25c to 75c are also in the form of an upright rectangle, the picture showing two natives with cocoanuts with water and palms in the distance. The inscriptions are the same as for the lower values, though reversed in position, the name of the Colony being at the bottom. The drawing is simple yet attractive, and the effect is excellent. For the franc values, the design is a horizontal oblong, showing a wild river in the tropics between lofty mountains. The frame is more elaborate, largely made up of palm leaves. The monogram "RF" appears in the upper left corner and the value "5f" in the upper right, "Postes" repeated at the sides and "Etablissements de L'Océanie" in a single curved line at the bottom. The name of the artist H. Le Masson appears on all designs, though rather difficult to read on the second. The stamps are surface printed, mostly in the odd shades which have been so prominent in the later work of the French printers.

Adhesives.

50c dark brown and black.
75c violet brown and violet.
1f carmine and black.
2f dark brown and green.
5f violet and blue.

GILBERT & ELLICE ISLANDS.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the 1d value in the King George series.

Adhesive.

1d scarlet.

GREECE.—In No. 1153, we noted that the current 10l stamp, which had previously been engraved was now lithographed. We now find that the 5l and 25l values have also been lithographed, our authority being Lemaire's Journal.

GUATEMALA.—Sometime since it was announced that the current Guatemalan stamps were to be surcharged "Oficial" for official use. O. H. Eidsor reports having seen the 20c value, perforated "Oficial" instead of surcharged.

HUNGARY.—A new value has been added to the current set, according to Lemaire's Journal.

Adhesive.

16f blue green.

JAMAICA.—Morgan W. Taylor shows us a used copy of the 1d King George stamp.

Adhesive.

1d carmine.

PARAGUAY.—Lemaire's Journal notes the issue of three new series, including regular postage, official and postage due stamps. The stamps were printed by the South American Bank Note Co. The design is the same for the three sets, only the colors, values and inscriptions being changed.

of the stamps available for their collections. All these surcharges were applied upon sheets of 28 stamps, 4 horizontally by 7 vertically. When perforated this makes 56 complete stamps to each sheet. Nearly all these stamps are to be found with inverted surcharges, but as we are not absolutely certain which ones are only to be found with normal surcharge, we have omitted that fact from the list. The variety with small "6" occurs three times on the fourth issue and once on the fifth. The variety with lowered "1/2" occurs twice on each sheet of the 1 1/2r. The variety with wrong font "I" occurs once on all sheets, except of course the "1 Real" stamps. The stamps of the first issue were bisected diagonally from lower left to upper right, and the old value was obliterated. Only a few sheets were issued with this diagonal perforation as an experiment, all other issues being perforated vertically, and as the perforation cut across the old value, its obliteration was not necessary. All the first five issues and two stamps in the sixth issue had the new values in the upper left and lower right corners, but all the later sixth issue have had the new values opposite, near the centre of the stamp. The numbers in the following list refer to Scott's Catalogue.

First Issue—May, 1911.
Surcharged "Republica".
1 real on 2r orange; No. 240.
Perforated diagonally.

Second Issue—November, 1911.

DEALERS TAKE NOTICE.

It is a common thing for dealers to send us the names of stamp collectors with whom they have had unsatisfactory dealings. We must request in the future that in all such cases the facts must be passed upon by some attorney, in order to relieve us from the responsibility attached to the publishing of statements submitted.

We mention this fact because we believe that an injustice has been done to Earl Parker, Pittsburgh, Pa., whose name was recently published in these columns under the heading given above. It is easy for misunderstandings to occur and until an attorney has passed upon all the facts in a given case we ought not to give space to any statement in connection with unsatisfactory business relations.

We withdraw Mr. Parker's name from the aforesaid list, and express our regrets at the publicity given him.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 331, Altadena, Calif.

THE STAMPS OF THE GERMAN EMPIRE.

Foreword.

In beginning this series of articles little is required in the way of an introductory note for the title is lucid enough. I may, however, point out that these articles are written solely for the guidance of the general collector, in which category, of course, all our boy readers are included. While all important philatelic facts will be recorded but little attention will be paid to minor varieties. Special stress will be laid on a study of the various designs and all necessary explanations will be given so that the lists of varieties appearing in the catalogues will be plain to the most inexperienced collector. In the "reference list," which will conclude each chapter, only such stamps will be included as may be considered "essential" and, as such, coming within the scope of the philatelist collecting on general lines.

The subject will be divided into the four main sections under which the stamps are usually classified, viz:—(a) the separate issues for the German States; (b) the issues for Germany proper; (c) German stamps overprinted for use in the foreign post-offices; and (d) the stamps for the German Colonies.

Baden.

The grand-duchy of Baden is a comparatively small territory, having an area of 5,821 square miles and a population of about two millions. It is bordered by the Rhine on the south and west, Wurtemberg on the east, and Bavaria on the north. Until the early part of the 19th century it played an insignificant part in European politics, but when Austria and Prussia were at war it sided with Austria. The results were disastrous, for when the tide of battle turned in favor of Prussia it found itself burdened with a huge war indemnity. It was forced to remodel its army on Prussian lines and join the North German Confederation. In the Franco-German war its troops fought on the German side, and in due time it became a part of the new German Empire. The grand-duchy has three votes in the Federal Council, and elects fourteen deputies to the Imperial Diet. The existing grand-duchy of Baden is a continuation and development of the ancient duchy of Swabia or Alemannia, principally through the two dynasties of the margraves of Baden-Baden and Baden-Durlach. In 1803 the ruling margrave of the united (1772) dynasties was made an elector of the empire, and in 1806 he proclaimed himself a sovereign grand-duke. The town of Baden is world famous for its mineral waters and baths. Though the healing virtues of the waters were known to the Romans (Aquae Aureliae) it only came into repute as a health resort about a century ago. It has a population of less than 20,000, but it is estimated that its annual visitors amount to at least four times that number.

In tracing the philatelic history of Baden in the "Adhesive Postage Stamps of Europe" the late Mr. W. A. S. Westoby wrote:

The postal administration of the Grand Duchy of Baden was formerly in the hands of the house of Thurn and Taxis; but the wars of the French Revolution, followed by those of the First Empire, so dislocated the service that Baden, in common with some of the other German States, withdrew from the Thurn and Taxis monopoly, and established an independent postal administration. Since December 31st, 1871, the separate administration of Baden has ceased to exist, and the Post Office is now under the control of the general postal administration of the German Empire.

So long as it continued to issue postage stamps of its own the currency of Baden was the florin, equal to about 40c, divided into 60 kreuzer.

THE FIRST ISSUE.

On April 6th, 1850, the governments of Austria and Prussia established a Postal Convention for the interchange of correspondence at fixed rates and other German States were invited to join the Union. Among other things the Articles of this Convention stipulated that, as a rule, correspondence should be prepaid and that such prepayment should be effected by means of postage stamps as soon as practicable. Baden at once agreed to join the Union but as the sanction of the Legislative Assembly was necessary before the grand-duchy could officially become a member matters were delayed until the meeting of that body in the autumn of 1850. The Legislative Assembly gave its consent and also sanctioned the issue of postage stamps. In the meantime enquiries had been made regarding the safest and most economical method of manufacturing stamps so that directly legal enactment was given to the recommendation to join the Union, the authorities were in a position to proceed with the manufacture of suitable labels. It was decided to issue four values—1kr, 3kr, 6kr, and 9kr—and Mr. C. Naumann, of Frankfurt, was commissioned to engrave the dies while the paper was obtained from a local paper-maker. It was decided that the most economical method would be to print all values in black but use paper of a different color for each. Mr. Westoby states that "the dies were engraved on copper in relief, and consisted of two parts: the numeral of value was in the centre on a circular ground, the pattern of which varied in each value; while the rectangular frame was the same for all the values."

At the top we find "Baden" in German capitals; at the bottom is "Freimarke", meaning "Free stamp"; at the left is "Deutsch: Oestr: Postverein", signifying "German Austrian Postal Union"; and at the right is "Vertrag v. 6 April, 1850", meaning "Convention of April 6th, 1850". The latter date, as already explained, refers to that on which the Postal Union was established.

The dies for the four values were completed by Naumann on Dec. 20th, 1850, and 100 electrotypes were taken from each of them, except of the 1kr of which only fifty electros were cast. It was decided to print the 1kr in sheets of 45, in five rows of nine, and the other values in sheets of 90, in ten rows of nine. The extra clichés were kept in reserve in case any of the others should become damaged or worn and have to be replaced. The paper was machine-made, wove, and differed in color for each value. The paper for the 1kr was buff; that for the 3kr was orange; that for the 6kr bluish green; and that for the 9kr was rose-red showing a faint tinge of violet. The stamps were imperforate.

The stamps were printed by the University printer, Mr. Hasper, of Karlsruhe, ordinary black printers' ink being employed. By the end of February, 1851, a supply considered sufficient to last a year was ready but for some reason or other the stamps were not placed in issue until May 1st. The demand for stamps being much greater than had been anticipated the first supply was exhausted in less than three months and a further supply had to be printed. This second impression was ready in August and the paper used for the 3kr and 6kr differed in tint from that originally used. The color of that for the 3kr was yellow and that for the 6kr yellow-green. The plates differed also, the reserve clichés being added, so that the 1kr was printed in sheets of fifty and the other values in sheets of one hundred. The additional electrotypes were so added that the horizontal rows contained ten instead of nine specimens.

A well authenticated error of the 9kr is known this being printed on the bluish green paper of the 6kr. It is an exceedingly rare stamp and it is presumed that only one sheet was printed. Reprints of the 1kr, 3kr, and 6kr were made in 1867 and, except to an expert, these are very difficult to distinguish from originals. The shades differ slightly, the paper for the 1kr and 3kr is thicker and the gum is white and smooth instead of being brown and crackly like the gum on the originals. Care should, therefore, be exercised in the purchase of unused specimens.

1000 Different Br. Colonies, $26.50
1000 clean, straight varieties, no minor varieties, such as shades, watermarks, etc., included, all stamps in good condition, no Revenues, Fiscals or similar rubbish. A remarkably fine Collection which will improve your Collection, even if you have over 1000 Br. Colonies now. It is strong in the older issues, although it contains quite a nice variety of 20th century stamps. Very cheap indeed at $26.50, only straight varieties.
Money back if not fully as good as described!

6000 Varieties, $99.75
We offer a mounted Collection of 6000 varieties at the above price which is less than regular wholesale price. Terms Net Cash, no discount, on approval to collectors furnishing satisfactory business or Bank references.

ACROSS THE DIVIDE.

By EDWIN B. HILL.

The red-headed girl at the general delivery window in the postoffice in Willow was chewing gum, quite audibly, as she ran through a bundle of letters from the box labeled "M." The patron who was delaying the sale of a "book of two's" was also busy with a piece of gum, likewise spruce, a handful of which was cumbering the glass change-counter in front the Titian lady. I arrived in time to hear the fag end of the conversation.

"As I was sayin' to my first wife, gum is the gift o' the gods to them that has teeth—"

"Or a good dentist," ended the r. h. g. They both laughed.

By that time the man was turning away. The girl sighted me, waiting, and her face at once matched her hair. "I do beg your pardon," she began.

"I wanted to ask if you'd—"

"Have a piece of gum," drawled the other voice, as the owner passed out the door.

Both of us laughed. Really, the red-headed girl had a sense of humor. She pushed along a couple pieces of gum, which clinched the humor issue irrevocably.

"That's Frevor Moore," resumed the girl. "He is the one other stamp collector on the range. I wanted you to meet him. I told him you'd brought your collection with you, most likely, and I know he'd be glad to see it. He'll be back, so wait."

I waited. It was not ten minutes before the door was shadowed by the gum man. I had opportunity then to observe him more carefully, a young-faced man with hair quite grey, and brown eyes that looked at and through one. His walk was quietness itself, almost as if he scarcely touched the ground. On his head was the inevitable wide-brim, grey-white hat of Philadelphia make and Arizona adoption. He wore a light blue shirt, and his trousers were of khaki. Around his waist was a belt, but with the essential "forty-five," both gun and scabbard now absent. The stable held both I was sure, for in this frontier town the new arrival was allowed thirty minutes to shed his gun, if sober; otherwise, as many seconds sufficed.

Moore came directly to me, his face alight with friendship.

"My name is Moore. I, too, am a stamp-lover, in a small way, and as we are the only ones this side Tucson, I thought we ought to meet."

The heat of Arizona midday was forgotten. It was the one oasis in months of desert-waiting. Moore's language, too, betrayed the culture which was sloughed when he talked with the girl, whereat I wondered.

"Give my love to your first wife," called the red-headed girl, as we went into the open, and she out of this story.

The shot hit, for the man laughed, and then explained that his "first wife" was a neighbor's child, age six, for whom he had promised to "wait while she grew up." The laugh was infectious.

"I want you to saddle up and come with me," said my new friend. "We'll be gone a fortnight, up at Lazy Bar; and I'll show you something in stamps that will open your eyes. They're not mine. It's the collection of a Spanish boy—Mexican—who was at the rodeo last year. Now he's in Mexico with one of the rebel bands. He's a fine boy, college-bred, and altogether too good to be tangled up in that affair. But it's his life, not mine."

Within an hour we were riding into the mountains. The second day we arrived at the long, low adobe ranch-house, peopled by two colliers and a Chinese cook. The boys, Moore explained, were "out on the range."

My host dived into a basin of water like a bird taking a plunge. "Best way to get cool," he explained. I was more circumspect.

"Now for the stamps," he said, as we finished dampening the towels. Moore's collection, mounted in several old International albums, vintage of '04, was not of great moment, although it contained some scarce United States, among them a set of the 1859 issue, and some B. N. A.'s that would pleasure even the most jaded collector. I recall New Brunswick, one shilling, unused without gum—"eaten by ants in India," explained the owner, sadly—and Cape Triangulars, fairly complete, in all printings, except the wood-blocks. There were some old Germans, too, which were notable for margins and cleanliness; and Sarawak was represented by No. 1, used, the rest nearly complete.

"I lived there—once," explained my host, in a voice which had the sound of a closed book.

H. F. COLMAN,
Second National Bank Bldg., WASHINGTON, D. C.

And so I turned the leaves to the end. Moore arose, and from beneath the cot pulled forth a trunk of prehistoric brand. He lifted the lid. "Here it is," said he, fondly, "and it's worth while,—this lot of stamps."

The collection was housed in a fine mahogany box, brass mounted. The albums, which were of the blank style, showed evidence of careful handling. "Mexico's the one country," said Moore, as he passed the books over to me. It was. My eyes opened. Here was a specialist's collection, fully "written up." My familiarity with Castilian made the thing a revelation.

"It's all there," said my host, "Everything."

And it was. Stamps surcharged with district names, and errors with and without; everything, regular and irregular, complete,—fine, clean, well-centered. Many stamps had their history carefully written out in a beautiful hand. I turned the leaves, and gasped.

"Campeche—yellow paper, and the white," declared my host, "and also complete, on the original."

The rare Chiapas were there, too, and Guadalupe; while Cuernavaca—Monterrey—Patzcuaro—Zocatecas (the last four doubtful as to authenticity) were here to prove their right to live in a specialist's collection.

Moore lighted his pipe, and as the embers glowed he began his story.

"José Escalante, when a student in the University at Mexico City, became interested in the stamps of his country through friendship with a fellow-student,—Santiago Garcia. It seems that some of Garcia's relatives had a room in the hacienda full of old letters, and Santiago, vacation time, spent his leisure hours looking them over for the stamps. There was about everything there, principally on covers. He wasn't allowed to absorb the letters, where envelopes had been dispensed with, so he soaked the stamps off. That was the beginning. Collectors are reborn in attics and in store-rooms, no matter where they first saw light.

"There was four years of college life, and then José and Santiago separated. Each had a fair collection of its kind; but, a few months later, when death made Santiago heir to the hacienda, and its grounds, with wealth besides in gold, the college chum was summoned. Further search of the store-room disclosed the greatest rarities known to collectors,—the Campeche. One year of work over these collections was rewarded most richly. The room was wealth personified. And then the mounting, and the study, and the writing-up! Other collections yielded their treasures, too, through the medium of exchange and purchase. Finally, both collections were merged into one.

"Then, at the end of the year, came the revolt against Diaz of the iron hand. Santiago was taken out, one morning, blind-folded, stood against a stone wall, and before the smoke cleared away he was at rest forever. José had taken no part in the quarrel until Diaz refused to intervene in the decree of death. It was a costly thing for that wily old diplomat, and led to his exile.

"José owns the collection, now. He is in revolt against the existing government. Any day I expect to hear of his end. He says it is Fate."

Then the silence brooded. Moore puffed at his pipe. I looked across the divide, seeing in vision a boy dying for a great principle. The sun dipped; then it sank behind the foothills. The glory had departed.

A NEW ALBUM WANTED.

By A. H. L.

The general collector, to-day, is swamped by the mass of new material that is continually coming on the market which not only makes heavy inroads on his finances but necessitates providing voluminous albums and, frequently, the devoting of more time than can well be spared, for the proper care of his acquisitions.

The specialist of a single country or group of countries not only has his work greatly curtailed, in comparison to the general collector, but he is restricted, ordinarily, to the work of one or two printing establishments with all that that implies as to limitation of design, engraving, printing, paper, etc. He misses, entirely, of course, the work of other houses and a superficial examination of his treasures by a non-collector conveys to the latter an impression of more or less monotony, of many rows of stamps apparently very much alike and forming little of general interest.

Now, my idea is for an album for commemorative issues only. Commemorative stamps have been issued by countries in all quarters of the globe and are examples of the best work in designing, engraving and printing of practically all the largest and most important printing establishments. They have a peculiarly strong historical interest for many of them are engravings in miniature of important events in the annals of various countries. They are rich in coloring and they vary in size.

My idea would be to have a printed album on the movable leaf plan, using one side of the page only, the stamps to be widely spaced rather than crowded together and each issue to be accompanied, either on the same page or on the opposite page, with facts as to the governmental orders in reference to the issue, where and by whom engraved and printed, when issued, how long on sale, the number of each variety printed and possibly redeemed later, together with a brief historical or biographical sketch of the scene or person depicted on each stamp, with any other information that might be instructive. This would give a combination of album and hand book.

The owner would be a general collector yet along restricted lines, he would be a 19th as well as a 20th century collector, his album with the blank leaves for new issues inserted in their proper spaces as needed, pending the arrival of additional printed pages from the publishers, would always be up-to-date and never lack space for the newest acquisitions, it would be sufficiently small to allow of ease in handling or in carrying to meetings and yet large enough and catholic enough to please all tastes. It would make a most instructive museum of art—a gallery of miniatures of great educational value.

THE POWELL CO. RISES TO REMARK:—

That stamp collectors should cease making remittances in postage stamps, in view of the fact that they are not legal tender, and especially since they cannot be sold legally at a discount from face value. Checks are always more acceptable than stamps and money orders cost but little. For fractions of a dollar stamps are O. K.

That it is a mean type of a collector who will order a packet, extract from the same certain stamps which he needs for his collection; substitute any old thing in the way of a duplicate, and then return the packet to the dealer as falling short of advertised qualities.

FOR PRECANCEL COLLECTORS

I have just secured a very good collection of Precancels which I have broken up and am offering to those who are interested in this interesting side-line. In this collection there are no great rarities but there's a lot of excellent stamps. Prices, generally, run from 5 cents up to 30 cents each. Books will be sent on approval to responsible collectors.

U. S. UNUSED SINGLES
My stock of unused U. S. in singles has been well fortified by several fortunate purchases, and will be offered at attractive prices. There are some desirable pairs, and a few blocks of four, but have no blocks of issues earlier than 1890. Books on approval, in the order of application.

I WANT, for good exchange, Scott's Nos. 56, 72, 122 and 292, in fine used condition only. Also U. S. Revenues in unsevered pairs, part perf. and unperf. Can use a few Departments in finest condition only, for customers.

EDITORIAL

Paper Variation.—In speaking of variations in the stamps of the United States, the experienced collector is apt to be careful not to attach importance to details of difference that are not plain and in their way, distinctive. In other words, the variation must be an actual one whose development is not the result of the working of imagination before it is considered worth while to speak of it in print. Mr. Wm. L. Stevenson, Flint, Michigan, who is a student of United States stamps and whose research in the issues has been attended with good results thus far writes: "I am enclosing for your inspection, a pair of the current ten-cent received on a piece of mail, dated Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 26, 1913. It is not only not the same shade as commonly seen but it is on different, blotter-like paper and the surface indications are much those of a lithograph. Is it possible that some experiments from the new process are out? I have seen it stated that the new process would be simply a method of printing from a recessed-line cylinder instead of from a plate as at present. I have also seen it stated that it would be an off-set process in which the cylinder impression in ink would go on to a rubber, or similar, roller and from that to the paper, continuously. If the latter is correct, would the result not be much as in this pair? Would not the slight embossing of the design into the paper be raised on the back instead of on the front and would not the surface 'feel' be comparatively smooth?" Let sight be lost of any difference in shade of this ten-cent pair and the fact remains that it is on a thicker paper of a different "make" and due to the paper or a difference in printing operation, the impression shows up unfamiliarly. Any theories that we could advance for the printing difference, as it seems, would be worthless in the absence of some definite information but it is evident that there is a variation in paper; and as we have seen a one-cent green, current, on paper that we remember as of the same description, we are inclined to believe that there has been some experimenting indulged in at Washington. It has been pointed out to us that even the carefully prepared paper for our stamps is not always of uniform weight and that it is possible to find paper in some stamps that is slightly thicker than that in others, and vice versa, but the paper under discussion does not seem to be of any evanescent or unintentional variety.

Kangaroo Stamps.—As perhaps could be expected the Kangaroo issue of the Australian Commonwealth is meeting a "mixed reception," in which the dominant note is not one of flattering acclaim. Instead, the new stamps are encountering a bit of abuse and a round of ridicule. Some of the opposition newspapers in Australia gleefully and cleverly point their shafts of sarcasm at the design, which is characterized as that of a Brobdignagian kangaroo of lugubrious aspect on a continent of infant's size. We like the kangaroo for his amusing qualities as Josh Billings had it, rather than as the model of faunal grace. In fact, we rate it as little more lovely than the esteemed kiwi in the scale of philatelic zoology; and for particulars of the kiwi, see the New Zealand stamps.

As He Tells It.—Count Lapp De Booz is speaking: "I was shipwrecked on the isle of Allday off the African coast and the Blackamoors who had captured me were preparing to practice their horrid cannibalistic rites at my expense when I bethought me to take a last look at my beloved book of duplicates. Old Chief Ringnose observed my action and instantly, his ugly, oily countenance radiated the greatest joy. In a thrice, he brought from the royal hut, somewhat to my surprise, a stamp album; and soon, we were rubbing shoulder to shoulder as we exchanged duplicates. I got a lot of very valuable early Mauritius among other rarities in exchange for a few Seebecks. Old Ringnose wanted to abdicate his throne in my favor but as he was now ready to anticipate my every wish, I asked to be taken into the path of the British packets. This he did, tears streaming down his cheeks at the thought of parting. There may be something in this 'universality of philately' saying at that."

Calls For Him.—What has become of the old-fashioned collector who washed off the original gum from the early unused United States stamps to prevent it from cracking the paper? Is he consorting with the o. f. c. who as an office-boy could not afford to spend money for stamps but who stood before the stamp shop's window each noon-hour? What has become of the old-fashioned dealer who showed a tattered newspaper clipping from an old paper that once "wrote up" his business? Is he cracking Haverly minstrel jokes with the o. f. d. who mixed up the two eagle sets of the German Empire in his stock books?

Privately Printed.—Those who give attention to patriotic pictorial war envelopes of the civil war period may have noticed occasionally, the U. S., 1857-60 and the 1861 three-cent stamped envelopes with the patriotic emblem and text in colors. We have seen several varieties, pictorially, of these envelopes in unused condition and upon obtaining recently a used copy of the three-cent, 1857-60 stamped envelope with the Dix dictum, "If any man attempts to take it down, shoot him on the spot!" under the federal flag, an old-time stationer was consulted who said that one or more firms in Chicago had quantities of the government stamped envelopes embellished at its own expense and sold the envelopes at the rate of four cents each, the price charged at the post-office for a single stamped envelope, —without the picture, of course. Perhaps it is needless to say that the picture was not placed on the stamped envelope by the government or under its direction.

The Color Line.—Said the attendant at the Asylum for the Addled: "Poor fellow, I don't quite understand his case myself but his relatives who are fine people told the Doc that his 'habitual hallucinations' were that he was a chameleon, or something fierce like that. As I got the story, the chap tried to learn all the different stamp colors in the catalogue, by heart, but that puzzled look in his eyes shows that his main spring has become loose. He mutters to himself that way all the time. Listen to him saying: 'Full black, dull black, gray black, dark black, light black, coal black, shiny black, pitch black, sky black, black black,'—and so on, all day. He certainly is Little Rainbow but he cannot go any too soon to suit me."

See Them.—Sinpod the stamp sage says that he has found a collector who never had any duplicates to wonder how to get rid of advantageously: A dealer who did not mind paying the bill for an ad that brought not even a single reply: A philatelist who has not said to himself that he would like to attend the New York Stamp Exhibition and the officers of a stamp society who never discussed how to make the meetings more attractive to the members.

RICHMOND (VA.) RE-ORGANIZED.

The second meeting of the Richmond Stamp Club was held at the office of C. L. Droste, the Austro-Hungarian vice-consul, in the Crenshaw Building March 11. Mr. Droste presided, and the secretary, Binford Walford, read the minutes of the last meeting. Business of the club was then discussed. It was unanimously decided that the club would welcome new members, and all in attendance were appointed on a committee to personally invite any stamp collector to join.

As the club has on its roll some members who have been collecting stamps for many years, some as far back as 1870, it was decided to ask some of the older members to deliver

FOUR BOOKS YOU NEED.

There is one book on the stamps of the U. S. that you must have. It is the one by Goodwin which we are now running in the WEEKLY in serial form. We don't know how many pages it will take but already forty pages have been reprinted, and it may run to three times that number. The price of the book will be 75c or $1 but if you are sporty enough to subscribe in advance remit 50c and the book will be yours. Any instalment published in the WEEKLY will show how comprehensive is Mr. Goodwin's treatment of his subject. It will be a standard work on the stamps of the United States.

We announce for early appearance the book by Mr. Poole "Hints for Beginners." The title, however, is a misnomer, as the book contains data that every collector needs for reference purposes. The price of this book will be 25c only and we anticipate that the edition will be early exhausted. Add this amount to your renewal of subscription and we will send book when issued.

Poole's book on "Cook Ids." It is a masterpiece—the only book on the stamps of these islands. Fully illustrated and of permanent value. Price 25c, this office.

Unless you have Scott's Standard Catalog you can't collect stamps intelligently. It is the Standard and the price is 75c postpaid. It gives you all the information needed in a compact form. For sale at this office.

FULTON STAMP CO.,

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

SPECIALIZED UNITED STATES.

By FRANK E. GOODWIN.

CHAPTER XXXII.

7 Cents, Issue of 1870-79.

The writer is uncertain just how to classify this stamp—the 7 cents, which is by reason of its design and other characteristics a part of this series. It was not issued until almost a year after the others had made their appearance, and it was withdrawn from circulation after three years' service. It might, with propriety, be said to be a single issue in itself—1871 to 1875—and yet all authorities class it with the issue under course of study. To conform with this general custom I leave it as it is.

This stamp is added proof that the stamps of this general issue were not grided until some months after the first stamps made their appearance, in common with the facts as before stated. For if the grille had been employed at the time the first stamps were made, it is not likely that practically the same characteristics of the grille in measurement would apply to this later stamp. Besides, the number of grided specimens, as compared with those not grided, when large numbers are examined, will be about the same as the 6 and 15 cents. This fact might well be used and considered in substantiation of the points about the use of the grille as I have stated them in previous chapters.

The 7 cents stamp made its first appearance early in April, 1871, probably on April 10. It was first designed to use this denomination to prepay postage to Germany, which during the year 1870, was seven cents. Before the stamp could be issued, this postal rate was lowered to six cents, and this made a seven cent stamp of but little use. Later Denmark made a rate of seven cents, and this created considerable demand for this denomination. But upon the reduction in Denmark's rate, all use for such a stamp disappeared, and it was withdrawn from issue.

Three sizes of grilles are known, as follows:

Size.	Points.
8 1/2 x 10 1/2	11 x 13
10 x 12	13 x 15
10 x 12 1/2	13 x 16

The only variety in the grille is the "end roller" and double grilles.

Shades in the grided stamps are classified by Mr. Luff as scarlet vermilion and vermilion.

The 7 cent stamp, without grille, possesses little by way of variety. It is a difficult stamp to find lightly cancelled and evenly centered, most specimens having some fault which makes them far from acceptable to the average collector and an abomination to the condition "crank." It has not the various characteristics of the other stamps to swell the number of varieties, not even appearing on ribbed or double paper. The shades are scarlet vermilion, orange vermilion and vermilion.

Both the grided and ungrided were printed from plate No. 33. The number issued from April, 1871 to April, 1873 was 2,946,900 stamps.

When the Continental Bank Note Co. took over the contract, it added secret marks to this stamp, as with most of the others. This mark was a small semi-circle drawn around the horizontal and vertical lines which formed a sort of "ball" at the lower right hand corner of the design. The diagrams in the catalogs explain this very fully. In shades there are but two, vermilion and scarlet vermilion.

There are two varieties—the Continental grille, used for legal purposes, and it comes on ribbed paper. The Continental issue was printed from Plate No. 22.

The new makers made no improvement in perforating the stamps evenly, and most of them are much off center. What the manufacturers left in passably fair condition by way of centering, the postmasters usually added to the destruction by applying hideous black postmarks, so that nowadays collectors sometimes examine dozens and scores of copies before they succeed in finding one which will not disgrace their albums.

The stamps were withdrawn from circulation in 1875, and the total number printed by the Continental Bank Note Company was 3,078,500.

A committee, bent on destruction, visited the vaults of the postal department on January 14, 1885, and upon leaving reported to the postmaster general that they had destroyed 545,600 stamps of this denomination.

In addition to the above stamps proofs may profitably be collected. Hard things to get are "Town" cancellations and particularly scarce are those showing year dates. Red cancellations, showing town and date, are rare and sought after by some specialists.

KNICK-KNACKS.

An auctioneer calls a stamp catalogued at five dollars, "extremely rare." He would be out of adjectives by the time he got to ten dollars catalogue.

"Enclosed find stamp for which please send my mother-in-law a copy of the WEEKLY," says a reader. By-the way, are we intended as a peace-offering or as a means of revenge?

"In the great philatelic symphony, I am eager to play my part, yet what instrument may be trusted to my untutored hands?" asks a delirious devotee. The cithara, "a sort of ancient lyre," for him.

"I cannot get away from stamps; they are always with me though I hie myself to earth's uttermost ends," moans a fitful philatelist. No wonder he says that unsolicited approval sheets are a nuisance.

They pasted an unused postage stamp on the forehead of the unfortunate man and the revolutionary soldiers paced off ten years, faced the prisoner and took careful aim at the fateful stamp. "I care not," mutters our hero, "the stamp will have a piece missing, anyway."

"I am ardent in my love for philately; perhaps, my ardor is too great. What is the cause of my ardency?" trills Tremolo, the sad stamp scribe. A little too much of "the ardent" is our guess.

At a stamp society meeting according to the report, the treasurer "was touched by the confidence that had been reposed in him." Did some member pay his dues without being dunned for them?

A youthful writer sent a contribution, "The Art of Philately," to a solid, scientific German paper with the request that the editor translate the article into German and publish it in his paper. We dare not translate the remarks of the venerable editor aforesaid, upon the receipt of the article.

"Proudly I wore my philatelic insignia in my coat lapel to the stamp meeting but as I slumbered in the car homeward bound, someone touched the button and consequently when I got to my home, I was lighted up with indignation," says Embossed Emil. The indignation part fools us not, Emil.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding cancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDERIDGE, Attleboro, Mass. Specimens must accompany chronicle, with self-addressed stamped envelope for return of the same. Please note these rules.

UNITED STATES.—The Rev. J. Dreyer writes as follows: "Referring to my note of recent date, I may add that while the stamped envelopes of No. 8 size in the new-cut pattern have been issued in amber and white, they will not be supplied in blue or oriental buff. Nos. 7 and 9 will not be issued in the new-cut pattern. The present one-cent McKinley postal card is soon to be issued (if not already so) with an improved border design around the portrait and printed in green ink on cream-colored card."

Frank B. Eldridge lists the following new precancels:

Chicago, Ill. (1153).—15c, 1913, Parcel Post, inverted; 15c, 1913, Parcel Post.

Yonkers, N. Y.—Four horizontal lines, 5 mm. apart, lines 1 mm. thick. 1c, 1912, triple strike.

Detroit, Mich.—Two lines (DETROIT—MICH?) horizontal inscription in capitals with serifs, between two bars, 13 mm. apart, bars 1½ mm. thick. 1c, 1912. Reported by Brig. Gen'l C. A. Coolidge.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Two lines (Minneapolis—MINN.) horizontal inscription, between two lines, 12½ mm. apart, and 1 mm. in thickness. 2c, 1912.

Cleveland, Ohio (No. 1153).—2c, 1913, Parcel Post.

AUSTRIA.—A correspondent of Even's Weekly writes as follows:

"By order of the Ministry of Commerce there will be some change in the Austrian postage stamps. The values from 1 heller to 35 hellers will, in future be printed on unsurfaced paper. Owing to this change the colour of the 6 heller stamp will be light brown instead of yellow, and the colour of the 10 heller will be carmine instead of claret. The 50 heller dark green will become obsolete, and will be replaced by the 72 heller brown, in the same design (Emperor Francis Joseph in Field-Marshal's dress as in the 50 heller stamp). The remaining stock of values 1 to 35 heller on surfaced paper and the 50 heller will be entirely destroyed."

AUSTRALIA.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us two more values in the new Commonwealth set.

Adhesives.

3d pale olive.
2sh brown.

The following article from the British Australasian shows that the new design is anything but approved of.

The new Commonwealth stamp, which replaces the separate issues of the various States, is deservedly meeting with ridicule and abuse from practically all the papers in the Commonwealth. The kangaroo, which we have embodied in our coat of arms, is there quite in its right place, and on the whole is rather a fine creature, but greatly as we are attached to our distinctive animals, we do not want them figuring in everything that belongs to the Commonwealth, and we are in agreement with the Age, which says:—"The kangaroo which obtrudes his egregious bulk across the Lilliputian map of Australia is a decidedly dismal and melancholy figure. Our national spirit may not be exactly hilarious, but we seldom fall into such a state of mental dejection as is indicated by that drooping and lack-lustre marsupial—surely a libel on his sprightly and spring-footed species." "A feeble-looking kangaroo perched on the continent of Australia." "That," says the Sydney Daily Telegraph, "is the best idea which those responsible for this production have been able to evolve, as to what is required in such circumstances." This paper goes on to suggest that the substitution of a kangaroo for the head of His Majesty, is likely to arouse in the outside world dubious speculations, if not as to the loyalty, at any rate as to the good taste of Australia. There is no doubt that the new stamp is entirely lacking in taste, but to drag a question of loyalty into the matter seems rather far-fetched. No imputations have been cast so far as we know upon the loyalty of Western Australia or Tasmania. Yet, in place of the King's head, Tasmanian stamps show a picture of Mount Wellington, while Western Australia has always been faithful to its swan. Some of the stamps of New Zealand, also, which in devotion to the Mother Country is not excelled by any other part of the Empire, are without the presentment of the King of England. A little while back the Telegraph suggested that the taking over of Government House in Sydney for State purposes was symptomatic of disloyalty, and if it persists in reflections of this kind, they may in the end be regarded as having something behind them, which would not be a good thing for Australia.

BELGIUM.—Four new values have been added to the postal packet set, according to Lemaire's Journal. The 35c is in the type of the centime values of the 1902 issue, the franc values being in the type of the franc values in the same set.

Postal Packet Adhesives.

35c brown and blue green.
4fr green and carmine.
5fr orange and green.
10fr olive and violet.

BOLIVIA.—Lemaire's Journal reports that three additions have been made to the series of 1901, now being reprinted in new colors. We have already noted several of the stamps in the new colors.

Adhesives.

1c vermilion.
2c carmine.
5c dark green.
8c orange.
10c gray violet.
20c violet and black.
50c purple.
1b blue and black.
2b black.

BRITISH SOLOMON ISLANDS.—Another value in the new set chronicled last week has been shown us by the Scott Stamp & Coin Co. This set is printed in the type of the new Grenadas described sometime since.

Adhesive.

11d lilac and carmine.

CAYMAN.—Specimen copies of the following values of the King George set have been shown us by the Scott Stamp & Coin Co.

Adhesives.

1d scarlet.
4d green and carmine on yellow.
6d lilac and mauve.

GRENADA.—John Fischer, the Scott Stamp & Coin Co., and various other parties have shown us specimens of the new Grenada stamps, already chronicled.

RUSSIA.—Offices in the Levant.—We find that the 1½pi on 15k was omitted from the list printed in No. 1157, though described in the text. The New England Stamp Co. has now shown us further values of the series. There is also a 50pi on 5r, but we have not yet seen it.

Adhesives.

1½pi on 15k brown.
5pi on dark brown and slate.
7pi on 70k green and brown.
10pi on 1r yellow green.
20pi on 2r brown red.
30pi on 3r dark violet.

ST. VINCENT.—Further values have been shown us in the new series, chronicled in No. 1157, by the Scott Stamp & Coin Co. The 2sh, 5sh and £1 stamps are in the type of Scott's A16, but printed in two colors. The 4d is in the new type noted in No. 1157.

Adhesives.

4d carmine on yellow.
2sh dark violet and ultramarine.
5sh blue green and carmine.
£1 black and violet.

SIERRA LEONE.—As announced in No. 1157 other values have been issued in the large type of the 3d noted in No. 1151, and specimen copies have now been shown us by the Scott Stamp & Coin Co.

£5 green and orange.

SOLOMON ISLANDS.—Though we have not yet seen the stamps, we understand that this Colony is to have stamps, with portrait of King George. Lemaire's Journal chronicles three values of the new series.

Adhesives.

1½d green.
1d carmine.
3d violet on yellow.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.—The Scott Stamp & Coin Co. have shown us several new values in the current set, all on paper watermarked multiple CA.

Adhesives.

3c carmine.
4c lilac.
8c ultramarine.

TURKS & CAICOS ISLANDS.—A new design has been adopted for this Colony, specimen copies having been shown us by the Scott Stamp & Coin Co. The King's Head is framed in an oval band whose lower ends rest on small ovals containing the Turks head which gave the islands the name. This band bears the name of the Colony. The value in figures occurs on small shields in the upper corners, and the value in words at the bottom. The word "Postage" is printed just under the portrait oval.

Adhesives.

6d lilac.
1sh brown orange.
2sh carmine on green.
3sh black on red.

EXHIBITION NEWS.

The association for stamp exhibitions held its annual meeting at the Collectors Club on March 10th and elected ten directors. The various officers read their reports. The Treasurer announced that the membership roll amounted to 380, and that 82 different donations had been received ranging from one to five hundred dollars with about a thousand dollars more pledged. The Boston Philatelic Society has made a splendid beginning and its name in connection with the securing of subscriptions was frequently heard, during the reading of the list. Of course more money is required. Grand shows cost a lot. The glass that covers the stamps will cost about four thousand dollars but about half of this will be recovered after the show. It is contemplated to print about 100,000, two hundred page beautifully illustrated catalogues. The exhibition will be a record breaker in every direction.

NOTES.

The following have been added to the Honor Committee:—John Wulff, Stockholm, Oskar Kraepelin, Stockholm, Josef Johansson, Stockholm, A. Wilms, Stockholm, Ernst Wilms, Stockholm, Bror Christenson, Dr. Astley Levin, Dr. Emil Jacobson, Dr. W. Lundgren, Gothenburg, John Milton Holt, M. D., Astoria, Alexander Sefi, London, F. F. Lamb, London, Casey A. Wood, M. D., Chicago, C. B. Bostwick, New York, D. B. Armstrong, Kent, S. L. Mann, Kenley.

Since the announcement that a complete set of the engraved Exhibition Labels would be presented free to each member of the Association for Stamp Exhibitions, applications accompanied with a dollar have been pouring in.

Cash contributions are coming in nicely and a complete list will be published in the near future. Mr. George W. Linn kindly offered a whole page of his coming series of U. S. Handbooks free of charge.

W. O. Wylie, Manager of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS, has applied for the privilege of presenting a specimen copy of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY to every attendant of the Exhibition. The Committee cheerfully grants this privilege. All publishers desiring the same privilege may have it upon application in writing.

EUGENE KLEIN, Chmn. Pub. Com.

NOT REQUIRED.

"Is it not contrary to the regulations of the postal department for the day of the month to be removed from postmark stamp on matter of any class? In order to hide delays in delivery of this (third) class of matter it has been for some time the custom at the Chicago post-office to stamp third class matter with day of month removed from the stamp."

"You are respectfully advised that the postal regulations do not require postmasters to indicate the day of the month in postmark used to cancel stamps on third class matter. Much of this matter is mailed under the paid in money plan, in which case the matter is not postmarked at all, considerable is also mailed with precanceled stamps affixed, in accordance with permit previously granted to mailers, and in cases of this kind stamps are canceled by means of the printing press before sold to mailers, and do not undergo subsequent cancellation.

Serious Exchange

Wanted on Approval Sheets

With Medium and Advanced Collectors and Dealers.

In the future we intend to greatly enlarge the scope of our stock and we therefore offer IN EXCHANGE for stamps, suitable for our use, of all countries but specially U. S. A. Departmental and General Issues, Hawaii and English Colonies:

All the Stamps of Spain, Spanish West Indies, Cuba, Porto Rico, Philippines, Rio De Oro, Fernando Poo, Elobey, Guinea Used, unused and also in pairs, strips, blocks and on original covers which hitherto we have made our speciality and of which we certainly hold the largest and most important stock in the world.

Within the last few years we have made purchases exclusively in these stamps for sums exceeding $100,000 of which the most important were:

The entire magnificent stock of the firm Antonio Vives of Madrid for which we paid $20,000, the celebrated specialized collections of Count de San Simon and Miguel Galvez also of Madrid, the whole stock of M. T— of Barcelona, the greater part of the Spanish stocks of the late dealers Isaac Blanco and Jules Bernichon of Paris.

Exchange Is Made on the Following Conditions:

(I) We do not demand any discounts, as we do not indulge in speculation and only wish to form a stock of foreign stamps in the way of exchange. Stamps must therefore be quoted by both parties at catalogue prices (Scott, Gibbons, Kohl, Senf, Yvert etc.)

(II) We take only stamps in perfect condition catalogued at least 10 cents up to $100 each. We can use up to 20 specimens of the medium priced stamps but we will be glad to furnish, if wanted, only one specimen of any desired kind.

Selections under $20 Catalogue Value are not accepted.

(III) We answer always within 8 days by sending a selection of at least equal value. All the stamps remain the property of the sender until contra value has been wholly selected.

(IV) All remittances must be registered or insured.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 231, Altadena, Calif.

THE STAMPS OF THE GERMAN EMPIRE.

Baden - Continued.

THE SECOND ISSUE.

Another printing of the stamps of the numeral type took place in 1853. The color of the 1kr not being considered satisfactory it was decided to print this value on plain white paper. At the same time, to reduce the cost of production, fifty additional clichés were made so that this value could be printed in sheets of 100 like the others of the series. In this printing, also, the 3kr and 6kr exchanged colors though for what reason is not clear unless there was some idea that these values might be confused with the similar denominations for the kingdom of Wurtemberg. No public notice of the change of colors was given but the information was conveyed to the post-offices in a general order dated June 3rd, 1853, as follows:—

You are hereby informed of a new impression of the postage stamps which will be sent you in a few days from the Grand Ducal General Post-office, in which the colours are changed, for the 6kr yellow, for the 3kr green, and white for the 1kr. All the Postoffices are informed of these changes, in order to render mistakes impossible. The new stamps are not to be sold to the public till the stock of the old ones is entirely exhausted.

From this notice it is plain that the new stamps could not have been issued prior to June 3rd, 1853 and as a matter of fact none of the values were used until 1854. The 1kr was issued in January of that year while the other values were placed on sale in the following month.

Later printings were made in 1854, 1855, and 1857 the colors remaining the same. Before the printing of 1857 took place complaint was made of the difficulty experienced in gumming the 3kr value. The manufacturers attributed this difficulty to the color of the paper and recommended paper of a new tint be used, blue being the color suggested. As, however, a large quantity of the green paper remained in stock and the paper maker would only take this back as "waste" it was decided to use this up before making any change. In 1858 another printing was made and the suggested change of color then took place. No notice of this change of paper to either public or officials has been found but from a study of dated specimens it seems proved that the blue 3kr was issued in December, 1858.

All four varieties were reprinted in 1867 and, like the reprints of the 1851 issue made at the same time, their detection is a difficult matter only possible to one who has made a special study of the stamps. The paper of the 1kr and 3kr is thicker than that used for the originals, the shades of all four are slightly different, and the gum is white and smooth.

THE THIRD ISSUE.

After the last printing of the numeral stamps, which took place in 1859, the electrotypes had become so worn that it was evident new sets would have to be made for all values before further printing could take place. The neighbouring kingdom of Wurtemberg had adopted a new design showing the Arms of the State and as other countries were contemplating the adoption of more elaborate designs it is hardly surprising that the Baden Government was also considering the advisability of replacing its plain numeral stamps with something more striking. As new plates were required anyway the time was opportune for a change. In an excellent article appearing in the Philatelic Record for 1894 we read

The Postal Administration sent in its report to the Government of the Grand Duchy on 21st June, 1859, setting forth the necessity of having fresh plates provided for printing the stamps, as those in use were worn out, and that the question had arisen whether the design should not be changed; that the present design was antiquated; that the printing on colored paper was not clear, nor were the stamps safe from imitation; that it would be better that the stamps should be printed on white paper in colors according to their values, and, as was then done elsewhere, the country should be denoted by the head of its Sovereign or its Arms; and that in order to render the stamps perfect, secure from imitation, and their separation readier, they should be perforated as in England and France.

The report was approved by the Ministry and on June 29th, 1859 the Postal administration was authorised to obtain the necessary dies for the new issue; to purchase white paper for printing the stamps; "to furnish the outer edges of the stamps with perforation, so as to facilitate their separation," and not to print any more stamps in the old designs but to use up all existing supplies.

From motives of economy it was decided to join with Wurtemberg in the purchase of a perforating machine. This was obtained from Vienna at a cost of 1200 florins ($480.00) and set up at Karlsruhe for the joint use of both States.

Immediate steps were taken to procure suitable dies for the new issue and a specification detailing what was required was sent to two engravers—Ludwig Kurz, of Frankfort, and Friederich Eckard, of Karlsruhe. According to this specification the design was to be a square of 7½ Baden lines, or 23½ mm., there was to be one original die on steel or copper for each value, and from each of these 110 electrotypes were to be made "of the thickness of a Baden copper kreutzer" and mounted on metal. It was stipulated that proofs should be sent and that the engraving should be corrected if required. The engravers were desired to specify the price at which they would undertake the work. With each specification a carefully executed drawing of the proposed design in Indian ink was enclosed. Quoting from the article in the Philatelic Record again we read:—

The engraver Eckard declined to undertake the order under the conditions, but on the 15th July, Ludwig Kurz, of Frankfort, offered to undertake the work at the price of 10 florins for each die, and 48kr for each of the 110 electro-casts of each value. The cost of the whole would therefore be 392 florins ($156.80). The order was given to Kurz on 24th August, 1859, and in October following he sent in a proof of the 3kr stamp. Some alterations were ordered to be made, and on 8th November he was informed that he might proceed with the other original dies. On the 23rd November he sent proofs of the 1, 3, 6, and 9kr, and he then proceeded with the electro-casts, which he delivered by the 23rd December—111 of each value, except that of the 3kr, of which he delivered 110. Kurz states that he engraved the original dies on copper in relief with the aid of aquafortis and that the drawing from which he worked was furnished by Herr Klimsch, of Frankfort.

In February, 1860, the printer, Hasper, was asked to submit color trials of the various denominations. This order he complied with and, as they were not approved, he submitted further ones later on. On March 22nd, he was informed that the following colors had been chosen:—"For the 1kr, good English black printer's ink; for the 3kr, Berlin blue; for the 6kr, dark chrome yellow; and for the 9kr, light Munich cochineal lake. He was directed to make special efforts to keep the tints in the various printings quite uniform—an order to which he paid no particular attention. Plain white wove paper was used for this issue and, the question of gumming being under consideration, half of the first supply was gummed with an Austrian adhesive matter made of bone-glue, and the other half was gummed with the mucilage used in Saxony—a mixture of Syriac gum and glycerine. The latter was found the most satisfactory and it was used for all subsequent supplies. The perforating machine gave a gauge of 13½ and was so constructed that an entire sheet of 100 stamps could be perforated at once.

The 1kr and 3kr were the first values to be printed and these appear to have been in use as early as June 1860, though the catalogues give the date of issue as 1861. As there were large stocks of the old 6kr and 9kr numeral stamps, which it was decided to use up, the corresponding values of the Arms type were not in use until fairly late in 1861 while they were not in general circulation throughout the grand-duchy until the following year. There were several printings of all values resulting in several strikingly different shades for the 3kr and 6kr. Of the former a printing in Prussian blue is distinctly rare unused.

In 1862 the perforating machine was overhauled and fitted with a new set of punches which gave a gauge of 10 in place of the previous 13½. The exact date at which this took place is not known but it was sometime between March and June. Supplies of all stamps printed in June or later are, therefore, perforated 10.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

10 Cents, Issue of 1870-1879.

If the specialist had no further cause for worry in the proper classification and segregation of the stamps of the United States, than he finds in the 10 cents brown, issued early in 1870 and continuing along until the American Bank Note Company re-engraved the design, philatelic life would be one long sweet dream. And yet, before the collector has exhausted every available point for study, and has gone as far as possible he finds that a few things have come up which would puzzle a man with the Wisdom of a Solomon.

The first stamps of the new 10 cents, uniform with the design of this issue, made their appearance during the latter part of April, 1870. Whether the first to appear were without grille, or were embossed, no one knows exactly. It is safe to assume that the stamps without grille "showed" first, to be followed a few months later with the grilles. The earliest postmark I have been able to learn of by which to identify the grille issue in this denomination was October 19, 1870, from Baltimore, Md.

The 10 cent stamps, with grille, are not overly prolific of varieties. Only two sizes of grilles have been chronicled as follows:

Size.	Points.
9x12	12x15
10x12½	13x16

The shades in the grilled stamps are classified by Mr. Luff as yellow-brown, brown and dark brown.

Only one variety has been noted—the end roller grille, or grille extending from top to bottom of the stamp. The reason for this variety was told in a former chapter. No plate number has been discovered which would positively identify the plates from which this stamp was printed, but it was probably either No. 18 or 19, and possibly both of these plates were used.

There are a few more shades to be found in the stamps without grille, and even these do not make a formidable collection, being yellow-brown, brown, dark brown, gray brown and dark gray-brown. The stamps were printed from plates No. 18, 19, 48 and 49.

From April, 1870 to April, 1873, inclusive stamps were delivered to the postal department to the number of 10,645,560. Not a single variety is chronicled in these stamps without grille.

When the Continental Bank Note Co. was awarded the contract, in 1873, it proceeded to cut its identification into the design for this, as well as all of the lower denominations and the two higher ones—12 and 15 cents. This is called the "secret mark" and was intended to provide means of distinguishing between the work of the later contractors and their predecessors. The mark is a half-moon cut into the ball which extends from the curved label to the right.

The first stamp made by the Continental, while chronicled as appearing May 15, 1873, probably did not come into use until the first week in June.

The shades, as classified by Mr. Luff, are: Pale brown, brown, dark-brown, chocolate, pale yellow brown, yellow-brown, orange-brown, red-brown, pale gray-brown, gray-brown.

It was grilled, for legal purposes only, the grille being the same size and having the same characteristics as mentioned in previous chapters.

The varieties noted are: Imperforate vertically, on ribbed paper and on double paper.

The stamps were printed from plates No. 23, 25, 302, 303. The number printed and delivered between May 1, 1873 and Dec. 31, 1876, amounted to 21,471,000 stamps. Later than this the records are rather confusing, and the exact number delivered is not exactly known.

The same design was continued by the American Bank Note Company, when early in 1879 it consolidated with the Continental Bank Note Company, taking the former name. The shades of printing by the new manufacturers of stamps are classified as follows: Pale yellow-brown, yellow-brown, orange-brown, brown, dark brown, gray brown and black-brown.

SPECIALIZED UNITED STATES.

By FRANK E. GOODWIN.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

10 Cents, Issue of 1870-1879.

If the specialist had no further cause for worry in the proper classification and segregation of the stamps of the United States, than he finds in the 10 cents brown, issued early in 1870 and continuing along until the American Bank Note Company re-engraved the design, philatelic life would be one long sweet dream. And yet, before the collector has exhausted every available point for study, and has gone as far as possible he finds that a few things have come up which would puzzle a man with the Wisdom of a Solomon.

The first stamps of the new 10 cents, uniform with the design of this issue, made their appearance during the latter part of April, 1870. Whether the first to appear were without grille, or were embossed, no one knows exactly. It is safe to assume that the stamps without grille "showed" first, to be followed a few months later with the grilles. The earliest postmark I have been able to learn of by which to identify the grille issue in this denomination was October 19, 1870, from Baltimore, Md.

The 10 cent stamps, with grille, are not overly prolific of varieties. Only two sizes of grilles have been chronicled as follows:

Size.	Points.
9x12	12x15
10x12½	13x16

The shades in the grilled stamps are classified by Mr. Luff as yellow-brown, brown and dark brown.

Only one variety has been noted—the end roller grille, or grille extending from top to bottom of the stamp. The reason for this variety was told in a former chapter. No plate number has been discovered which would positively identify the plates from which this stamp was printed, but it was probably either No. 18 or 19, and possibly both of these plates were used.

There are a few more shades to be found in the stamps without grille, and even these do not make a formidable collection, being yellow-brown, brown, dark brown, gray brown and dark gray-brown. The stamps were printed from plates No. 18, 19, 48 and 49.

From April, 1870 to April, 1873, inclusive stamps were delivered to the postal department to the number of 10,645,560. Not a single variety is chronicled in these stamps without grille.

When the Continental Bank Note Co. was awarded the contract, in 1873, it proceeded to cut its identification into the design for this, as well as all of the lower denominations and the two higher ones—12 and 15 cents. This is called the "secret mark" and was intended to provide means of distinguishing between the work of the later contractors and their predecessors. The mark is a half-moon cut into the ball which extends from the curved label to the right.

The first stamp made by the Continental, while chronicled as appearing May 15, 1873, probably did not come into use until the first week in June.

The shades, as classified by Mr. Luff, are: Pale brown, brown, dark-brown, chocolate, pale yellow brown, yellow-brown, orange-brown, red-brown, pale gray-brown, gray-brown.

It was grilled, for legal purposes only, the grille being the same size and having the same characteristics as mentioned in previous chapters.

The varieties noted are: Imperforate vertically, on ribbed paper and on double paper.

The stamps were printed from plates No. 23, 25, 302, 303. The number printed and delivered between May 1, 1873 and Dec. 31, 1876, amounted to 21,471,000 stamps. Later than this the records are rather confusing, and the exact number delivered is not exactly known.

The same design was continued by the American Bank Note Company, when early in 1879 it consolidated with the Continental Bank Note Company, taking the former name. The shades of printing by the new manufacturers of stamps are classified as follows: Pale yellow-brown, yellow-brown, orange-brown, brown, dark brown, gray brown and black-brown.

Stamps at only $29.95.

This collection contains only good, clean postage stamps such as a discriminating collector would allow in his albums. So many good things it's a task to even name a few, but among them one will find OLD GERMAN STATES, Large Austrian Birthday 1910 Jubilees, Bosnia, all issues and both Jubilees. Pictorial Bulgaria, Crete and Greece. A fine lot of Turkey, Persia and Portugal (both old and recent issues). A very select lot of British, French, German, Portuguese and U. S. Colonies.
Every stamp in this collection is either mint or postally used. Up to 5sh values Grt.
Britain.

Provisional, commemorative, regular and the most recent issues of South and Central America well represented by genuine post-ally used copies.

In fact, this collection is of the very highest quality and of immense value.
Not pasted down on sheets—but every stamp will be in your hands in good condition, free from paper and not the worse for wear.

Does not consist of the commonest varieties. Not "padded" with trash of any sort.
We have the largest stock of stamps in the world cataloguing under $3.00 each and all of them are sold through our packet-collections exclusively. That's WHY our customers wait for our offers—they know that they buy under the guarantee of entire satisfaction or money back and that we mean every word we say.

If you have 12,000 varieties or less you can use this collection to real advantage. Fill up those blank spaces in your albums! Replace those poorer copies with those from this collection!! Use a thousand for your collection and then sell the remaining 2,000 for what you pay us for the entire lot!! This collection catalogues hundreds of dollars and until June 1, 1913, we will send it to you

A BIG CASH PURCHASE

20,000 VARIETY COLLECTION

We beg to announce that we have just purchased for spot cash the fine 20,000 variety collection of Mr. G. F. M. Hauck of Baltimore, comprising stamps of both 19th and 20th Centuries. The collection is particularly strong in Portugal and Colonies, France and Colonies and general 20th Century. The rare Prayer sets of both Portugal and Azores are included. In Lagos the shilling of 1876 and the scarce complete set of 1903 listing about $130.00. Two Sicilies is about complete and includes all of the Bomba heads. Want lists solicited. Selections on approval to buyers.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers.
Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Thos. J. Eppes sends us in a new yearly subscription for a Jacksonville, Fla., friend and writes: "while not a member of the Booster Club I push the best stamp paper when I can." We beg Mr. Eppes' pardon. He is a full fledged member and the managing editor rejoices.

—Edw. Wintermute takes an advanced degree in the Booster Club by sending in a second new yearly subscription within a week. It was personal work and a copy of the issue of Feb. 22 that did the business.

—Freaks in the parcel post combinations are constantly bobbing up. Edwin Gardner submits three of an interesting nature. One piece of cover shows 4c postage, two cents regular and two parcel post. Two other pieces of cover show 2c and 10c parcel post stamps pasted over parcel post stamps of the same denomination. Mr. Gardner writes of the last two:—"The manner in which this happened is as follows: The person to whom the package was originally sent either could not be found or refused to accept it. Accordingly the postmaster then sent for return postage, which he affixed over the original."

—The H. S. Powell Stamp Co. by reason of its unqualified reliability, its policy of courteous and efficient service, has in four years built up a larger business in postage stamp packets and collections than the combined business of all of its competitors rolled into one.
(adv.)

—We give Chas. A. Townsend additional degrees in the Booster Club this week. He sends in two more new subscribers and writes that he would advertise in the WEEKLY were it not for the fact that it has already given him an amount of business that he is unable to handle.

—Our friend and contributor, Edwin B. Hill, Box 638, Mesa, Ariz., would like to obtain some numbers of E. F.
Gamb's St. Louis Philatelist, and also copies of his old price lists. Who will favor him?

—The Garfield-Perry Stamp Club of Cleveland, Ohio, celebrated its 23rd anniversary March 20, with a banquet.

—The Singer Stamp Corporation, Harrisburg, Pa., is introduced to our readers by a displayed advertisement in this number. The firm has devised a system of selling stamps that is claimed to be new and novel. It is well worth investigating and a prospectus will be gladly sent on request.

—The H. S. Powell Stamp Co. invariably refunds the purchase price, without protest, to any dissatisfied customer.

(adv.)

—From the last number of the West
we note that the Southern Philatelic Association is taking on a new lease of life, nearly thirty applications for membership being posted this month.
Information can be obtained from C.
V. Webb, Perry, Ohio.

—It is currently reported that the stamps of the British Colonies, King George issues, are to appear in the new watermark. This is important if true.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from Henry McConnell (5),
Geo. W. Schaefer (9), F. J. Parater,
Jr. (2), E. B. Charman, F. E. Greene
(6), H. S. Williams (2), Rev. Louis
Voss (2), Hugo Kuenstler (8), John
Fischer (20), M. A. Lesser, Fred J.
Jones, H. S. Williams (3).

—The "special property" of 415 lots in Wolsieffer's auction sale of March 29th belonged to Mr. C. A. Howes of the WEEKLY staff. Mr. Howes retains his special collections, of course.

—If the H. S. Powell Stamp Co. has a dissatisfied customer, it's not their fault. It's because that customer has kept it to himself. They guarantee satisfaction to every customer at any cost.

FOUR BOOKS YOU NEED.

There is one book on the stamps of the U. S. that you must have. It is the one by Goodwin which we are now running in the WEEKLY in serial form. We don't know how many pages it will take but already forty pages have been reprinted, and it may run to three times that number. The price of the book will be 75c or $1 but if you are sporty enough to subscribe in advance remit 50c and the book will be yours. Any instalment published in the WEEKLY will show how comprehensive is Mr. Goodwin's treatment of his subject. It will be a standard work on the stamps of the United States.

We announce for early appearance the book by Mr. Poole "Hints for Beginners." The title, however, is a misnomer, as the book contains data that every collector needs for reference purposes. The price of this book will be 25c only and we anticipate that the edition will be early exhausted. Add this amount to your renewal of subscription and we will send book when issued.

Poole's book on "Cook Ids." It is a masterpiece—the only book on the stamps of these islands. Fully illustrated and of permanent value. Price 25c, this office.

Unless you have Scott's Standard Catalog you can't collect stamps intelligently. It is the Standard and the price is 75c postpaid. It gives you all the information needed in a compact form.

EDITORIAL.

Big Edition—It is very gratifying to us that the stamp dealers are so liberal in their advertising allotment for our special numbers. It is not with wholly selfish reasons that these specials are projected. While each number of the kind means a substantial increase in our circulation list, yet it is felt that philately is benefited by the advertising that follows in the wake of the distribution of a large edition of any stamp paper. We shall circulate a number approaching ten thousand of this issue at a time when stamp interest is at its highest register. The WEEKLY will be the first stamp paper that some of those who receive sample copies ever have seen and even those who do not subscribe will have the assurance brought home to them that there is something definite about stamp collecting. There is the likelihood that the seed that will be sown may germinate in time to come. There is a vast land, peopled by philatelic prospects, through which it is the duty of those who are in a position to do so, to sound the philatelic call long and lustily.

Old Eagle Eye—Snipod the stamp sage says that he knows an habitual auction buyer who never said, "Let him have it," as some one on the floor outbid him: A collector of shades who gladly paid an extra price for a shade: A philatelic publisher who says that the circulation of his paper is not increasing and a collector who was never dissatisfied with the hinges that he used.

Two Veterans—Stanley Gibbons' Monthly Journal has recorded the deaths of Edward Stanley Gibbons, London and Pierre-Marie Mahé, Paris. We doubt whether the full force of these announcements will be felt by readers of the present generation but LARGE LOTS BY COUNTRIES are very popular; see Wolsieffer's sale 127 of April 12th next.

A SUPERB 20th CENTURY COLLECTION

Beautifully mounted in four high grade linen paper Krassa Albums for sale. The collection catalogs over $2500 and will be sold for $1500 net. We will gladly submit this to interested collectors. We are selling to counter customers fine stamps at 50% discount from a $3600 19th Century Collection that we have just purchased.

those whose identity with philately overlaps the periods of activity of the two decedents will pause in contemplation. In 1890, Mr. Gibbons retired from business after having gained a competency through years of service as a dealer from the time of the late fifties and having made his name synonymous with commercial philately in London. Monsieur Mahé was one of the very first dealers in Paris and his early guides and catalogues lighted the way to philatelic progress and remain a monument to his faith in philately. For well over fifty years, his philatelic example has been a shining one and at the age of eighty-one years he passes to his reward. Mr. Gibbons' age was seventy-three. Soon, the time is coming when the life of no man will span philately from its beginning to its present state.

Still They Come—Said the attendant at the Asylum for the Addled: "I don't think he is very much 'off-center' as you stamp collecting fellows would say but his relatives are all broken up over his case. You see, the chap babbles all day long about condition and he looks over about a million stamps of the same kind before he gets one to suit him but even then, he is not satisfied with it for long. He says that the stamp must be perfectly centered, lightly canceled, of sharp color, with perforations full and free with those at the corners intact. The paper must be unabrased by any wear and tear, without gum stain or any flaw that can be detected under the most powerful glass. With tears in his eyes he says that he wants to collect stamps but that he can get no stamps fit for his collection; as it is, he has a collection but no stamps. Some day, his full sense will suddenly return, I think."

Coming to Life—There seems to be a "recrudescence of interest" in the general issues, United States revenue stamps, particularly of the civil war period. Perhaps, it is time for revenues again to be exalted in the affections of collectors and for the recurrence of their cycle of popularity. Ten years ago or so, we know how revenues in general and particular varieties of imperforate and part perforates in pair, etc., were objects of keenest pursuit; and it is now high time for our beautiful fiscal issues to be ranking favorites again. Of all the issues other than postage stamps that deserve attention by reason of their inherent graces, the United States revenues take precedence. It is true that ordinarily the stamps in question are not emphasized on the score of investment attraction but the day is coming when the cheap varieties of the present will strengthen in price. Time will tell its story and as the finds of civil war revenues become more infrequent, the position of the stamps will be made firmer. It is known by some students of the issues that even in the first perforated issue, excluding the admitted rarities, there are a number of stamps that are priced comparatively low and not a few of the revenues of the second and third issues are to be placed in the same category. As for the Spanish-American war revenues, it has been noticed how the 1902, green and black issue has steadily mounted higher; ten years ago they sold at a fraction of the present quotations.

Helpful Philately—Count Lapp De Booz is speaking: "I had fitted out an expedition to a desolate part of Nubia to obtain a specimen of the Rollicus, an animal that I believed still existed in bleak Nubia, although scientists claimed that it long had been extinct. One day I wandered away from camp and was intent upon my pocket-album of duplicates when, upon looking around, I found a monstrous lion peering at the book over my shoulder. In my perturbation, I dropped my little book and the lion, much interested, began nosing it around, only to have a demonized Costa Rican stick on his muzzle, while his paws accumulated a number of Colombian Republics and a large Honduras served as a patch over an eye. In his bewilderment the lion presented so sorry a spectacle that I roared with laughter, whereat the huge king of beasts slunk away much discomfited. While I regretted the loss of the duplicates carried away by the lion, yet I was consoled by finding a Rollicus, thereby amazing the scientific world. I think that it is not a bad idea to always carry one's duplicates with one."

Are They Present?—What has become of the old-fashioned collector who wrote to the postmasters of different far-away countries asking that they please send him canceled stamps for his collection? Is he showing his new pulse-warmers to the o. f. c. whose congressman sent him a lot of department stamps? What has become of the old-fashioned dealer who tacked a sign on his door at noon: "Gone to Dinner?" Is he arguing the Hayes-Tilden case with the o. f. d., whose pretty daughter helped him as clerk on busy winter Saturday afternoons?

Well Done—We have feelings of profound consideration for Dr. John Milton Holt who has succeeded in carrying his endowment plan to a favorable development. The sum that has been pledged to date, $2670, is enough to indicate that alluring possibilities are in prospect, even though the interest from the fund at present is not of pretentious size. It is fair to predict that the enthusiasm that induced certain liberal-minded philatelists to support the plan will lead to even more striking results. Everybody's Philatelist deserves immortality if for little more than to serve as a memorial to the initiative impulse of a pure philatelist.

THE LINDENBERG AWARD FOR 1913.

Most people have never heard of the Lindenberg medal. But to philatelists the annual award is a great event. It was founded in 1905 by the Berliner Philatelisten Klub in honour of its first president. The holders of the medal, with the presidents and honorary members of the Club, form the jury that decides on the awards. Judge Victor Supantschitsch, of Graz, has been selected for this year's honour. He was born in 1838, and is the second Austrian to win it. He is well-known as a philatelic writer and bibliophile. His library of philatelic works is the finest on the Continent.

This stamp collector's medal is an international affair. Great Britain holds three, France two, Germany two, Austria two, Belgium one, Italy one, and Switzerland one. Of the twelve recipients four have died during the last two years. The Lindenberg medal is the only decoration in the stamp collecting world, and they call it the "Nobel Prize" of philately, but there is no money prize connected with it.—Manchester (Eng.) Guardian.

meet held at the athletic base ball park July 3 and 4, 1912, aviator Max Lillie who operated quite extensively as an aerial mail carrier at the big Cicero, Ill.

meet, carried mail for a distance of about four miles. From the base ball park which is located about a mile south of the city proper, Lillie carried the mail to a point outside of the city limits where he dropped the mail sack. An automobile carried the mail to the main postoffice. It had been planned to have mail carried to Oolitic and Mitchell, Indiana, but the wind was too stiff and Lillie gave it up. The aero cancellation was in black ink and consisted of two lines of large type as follows:

62 LOTS GERMANY and States in Wolsieffer's 127th auction sale of April 12th next. [61]

IMMENSE UNITED STATES

I have prepared 20 lots of stamps containing U. S. Envelopes, entire, and cut in half (mostly the old 2c green). Here is a chance to find the rare dies, also N. Y. State Rev. on the original document, and a Confederate stamp on a cover. There is a good lot of mixed U. S. also, containing the higher values, 3c to 10c and in each and every lot I have put the following (printed): 100 unused 1c postal cards and 100 unused 2c stamped envelopes; all of which are good for postage at face $3.00.

NOW WATCH—ONLY $3.40 Express extra. I want your trade. (Money back if you want it.)

NEW PARCEL POST STAMPS.

Design for New Set Approved by Burleson.

The design of a new and smaller parcel post stamp to replace those now in use was approved March 22 by Postmaster General Burleson. Numerous complaints that the present stamp, all denominations of which are the same color, is hard to distinguish as to value and easily raised caused the change.

The new design will possess little artistic merit, and will bear only a large numeral. The various denominations will be in different colors. Approximately $50,000 yearly will be saved by the use of the smaller stamps.

SERIOUS EXCHANGE

WANTED on Approval Sheets with Medium and Advanced Collectors and Dealers

In the future we intend to greatly enlarge the scope of our stock and we therefore offer IN EXCHANGE for stamps, suitable for our use, of all countries but specially U. S. A. Departmental and General Issues, Hawaii and English Colonies:

All the Stamps of Spain, Spanish West Indies, Cuba, Porto Rico, Philippines, Rio De Oro, Fernando Poo, Elobey, Guinea

Used, unused and also in pairs, strips, blocks and on original covers which hitherto we have made our speciality and of which we certainly hold the largest and most important stock in the world.

Within the last few years we have made purchases exclusively in these stamps for sums exceeding $100,000 of which the most important were:

The entire magnificent stock of the firm Antonio Vives of Madrid for which we paid $20,000, the celebrated specialized collections of Count de San Simon and Miguel Galvez also of Madrid, the whole stock of M. T— of Barcelona, the greater part of the Spanish stocks of the late dealers Isaac Blanco and Jules Bernichon of Paris.

Exchange Is Made On The Following Conditions:

(I) We do not demand any discounts, as we do not indulge in speculation and only wish to form a stock of foreign stamps in the way of exchange. Stamps must therefore be quoted by both parties at catalogue prices (Scott, Gibbons, Kohl, Senf, Yvert, etc.).

(II) We take only stamps in perfect condition catalogued at least 10 cents up to $100 each. We can use up to 20 specimens of the medium priced stamps but we will be glad to furnish, if wanted, only one specimen of any desired kind. Selections under $20 Catalogue Value are not accepted.

(III) We answer always within 8 days by sending a selection of at least equal value. All the stamps remain the property of the sender until contra value has been wholly selected.

(IV) All remittances must be registered or insured.

Care F. A. Brownell Motor Co., Rochester, N. Y.

Feb. 10th, 1913.
"Your 2000 variety Collection for $9.85 received and was more than pleased with its quality. Although I had already more than 2000 varieties, I picked out more than 1100 stamps which I did not have as yet, the rest are very good stock for Exchange purposes, etc."
CARLOS NIEDERMANN,
Esmeralda, Coah, Mexico.

The stamps in our mounted packets are not hinged but they are lightly pasted on a fine quality paper with peelable gum which makes it easy to remove them.

Remember our guarantee: if any of our packets do not come up to your full expectations and are in any way different from the description, your money is refunded promptly without argument.

Mounted packets sent on approval to responsible collectors furnishing good bank or business references.

Unmounted packets cannot be sent for inspection.

1000 Mixed, Cat. $25 to $30, $1.00

We have a stock of foreign stamps, from 1000 to 5000 of each, not enough to include in our whole sale list and of these we have made a grand mixture, suitable for Approval Sheet Trade. This mixture consists of stamps to retail at 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 8 and 10c each. The cat. value of 1000 stamps will be from $25 to $30 and will average at least $25.

The mixture consists of the better grade of stamps only, no Continentals whatever, no Reprints, only straight postage stamps including Cape of Good Hope, Austria Jubilee, Finland, Japan, Guatemala, Honduras, Peru, Orange River Colony, Transvaal, Venezuela, Natal, Col. Rep., Cuba, Mexico old and new, India, and many others. (No U.S.)

Each 1000 averages from 46 to 60 varieties. We know that you will be more than pleased with this mixture, and if you try 1000 of them, you will order more. No discount for quantities, 1000 for $1.00 Net.

FOCUSING PHILATELIC INTEREST.

By MILTON R. MILLER.

While articles and editorials appearing in MEKEEL'S STAMP WEEKLY and other philatelic publications urging the great body of collectors to labor a little for the general good of the cause, may seem to have covered every phase of the subject the movement appeals to me as one which should be ever helped along, never allowed to drag. Increase in the number of collectors means so much to Philately, means so much to each individual collector, that missionary work should constantly be in the minds of all.

My business is advertising and it affords daily opportunity to note the unusual results obtained by persistency in little things. Keeping everlastingly at the business of making more stamp collectors will work wonders.

"Never forget the goods," was a big sales manager's request of the road men who worked under him. Success in his selling campaigns he later attributed largely to the boosting activity of his force, to this co-operative effort to make known the merit of the company's product.

To "never forget the cause of Philately" in this same spirit would not mean that one should go around making a general nuisance of himself. It would infer a lot of thinking and action at the proper time. The collecting instinct is latent in almost everyone; arouse it and direct it into the proper channel and a new enthusiast is enlisted.

A conversion I particularly pride myself upon came not from showing the few "rarities" of my collection with "soft voiced statement" of their "great worth," but from a happy thought while thumbing over a friend's morning mail.

"Did you ever notice, Jack," I asked, "the many varieties of stamps one finds in a morning's mail now?"

Jack had never noticed.

"Why, they're all alike," he said, "just common every-day stamps."

But they weren't. And in the pile of letters on his desk half a dozen varieties showed up, the owner of the letters manifesting a lively interest in the search.

Fortunately I didn't make the error of preaching a sermon on the joys of stamp collecting. The subject was dropped and I took up the business on which I had called.

Several days later I had a telephone message from Jack. He had found something queer in the mail and would I drop in if I happened around that way.

The "something" was one of the less common coil perforations. Jack wanted me to take it.

"Oh keep it," I said. "Maybe you will get interested in collecting them. There's a queer fascination to it."

The seed was sown and it germinated. A nice little collection of U. S. has resulted and there is no limit to the future.

I've kept our local daily newspaper well supplied with items about the new issues of the United States. You, perhaps, as an average newspaper reader do not appreciate how anxious the city editor is to get disinterested authentic news. My story about the parcel post stamps describing them and going into a little detail about the probable resulting rarity of the higher values of the letter postage stamps was "played up" in good shape. Similarly a communication about the Panama-Pacific stamps, giving the number of each to be printed, the size, color, design, etc., was gratefully received. I'm certain that had I only thought to add on something descriptive of past commemorative issues and told how much these stamps were considered worth by collectors today, it would all have been printed.

There is an item now which I'll venture every newspaper to which an interestingly written account is sent will print. It is about the perforations of the current stamps, the differences which first interested my friend in collecting. Every collector knows enough about the stamp affixing machines to tell something of them and the use of coil stamps in them. Reference may be made also to the imperforate, or "unperforated" as the government says.

Real human interest may be added to the item by telling of rare imperforates of the past and their value today. Stimulate an interest in collecting. Who knows but that the careful collectors of some of the unusual stamps current today may reap a good big reward in a decade or two. We all believe it, why else are we hoarding away some of the good stuff? Refer to the increase in the number of collectible varieties. Make the game the fascinating pastime it is.

I'm going to write such an item for The Daily News of Batavia, N. Y., and I'll wager it's printed, and the editor is death on fads at that. It will be printed because it will be news. News always goes. If any collector thinks his home paper would use it I'll send, gladly, a marked copy on receipt of stamps for postage. It can be rewritten and made local to your community.

Everything printed about stamps helps, stimulates interest. A newspaper item may be the turning point, may be the one thing which determines someone undecided to take up the most delightful, entertaining and instructive hobby there ever was or will be.

It hardly seems necessary in conclusion for me to disclaim any ulterior motive for this article, because of a business interest in collecting. I have an interest in The Stuart Company of Batavia, N. Y., which has had and still continues business relations with a large number of readers of this publication. But I am a collector first, last and all the time. Be that as it may, if the number of collectors in this country could be doubled—publisher, dealer, collector, all—would profit immensely.

"Results come from focusing attention on the thing wanted."

We all want more stamp collectors. So, let's in 1913, go after them—and with a will.

ABROPLANE CANCELLATIONS.

By ARTHUR T. BROWNE, B. P. S. No. 543.

Lima, Ohio.—From the flood stricken state of Ohio I have just secured another aeroplane cancellation. This one comes from Lima and was used June 7 and 8, 1912, quite a few months before the flood, to be exact. Through the kindness of Mr. C. C. Klumph of Lima, I have secured a fine copy of the cancellation and some information concerning its use. On June 7, mail was carried by aviator Charles F. Walsh. Walsh carried 2,000 pieces of mail for short distance from the aviation grounds. Here the mail sack was dropped and was picked up by an automobile and taken to the main postoffice. On the second date, aviator W. B. Hemstrought carried 3,000 pieces of mail. The aeroplane cancellation was enclosed in an oblong, one and nine-sixteenth inches in length and seven-eighths of an inch in width. The cancellation was in purple ink and was as follows:

Aeroplane Mail Service

Jun 8-1912

Lima, Ohio.

Reading, Pa.—Aeroplane mail service was authorized for Reading, Pa., for September 10, 1912. The route was numbered 61002 and was to have started from the Reading Fair Grounds. The late arrival of the machine of aviator Joseph Richter prevented the service from being carried out. Postmaster Augustus M. High of Reading writes me to the effect that no special aeroplane cancellation was prepared for the service.

Lock Haven, Pa.—At an aviation meet held at Lock Haven, Pa., October 7, 8, and 9, 1912, aviator Walter Johnson of the Thomas Aviation company of Bath, N. Y., thrilled thousands of spectators with his aerial antics. Incidentally on the last day of the meet, Johnson carried a sack of mail from Lock Haven to Mill Hall, a distance of about four miles. No special aeroplane cancellation was prepared for this service, however. Souvenir postal cards were sold by a number of pretty girls. These bore a picture of Johnson and his biplane. Postmaster R. D. Peck of Lock Haven handed a sack of mail to the aerial mail man who placed the bag on the end of his toe. Johnson arose to a height of 250 feet and was going at a mile-a-minute clip. He followed the Bald Eagle creek. As he neared Mill Hall, the bird-man spied a herd of cattle in Agar's park and picked out one of the cows as a mark. He slipped the mail sack from his toe and so true was his aim that the sack of mail landed within a few feet of the startled bovine. A lad who had been watching the aviator, picked up the sack of mail and delivered it to Postmaster Stoner of Mill Hall. By the time it was delivered to the Mill Hall postmaster, Johnson was winging his way back to Lock Haven. He completed the distance, seven miles in exactly seven minutes.

Connersville, Ind.—At an aviation meet held at Connersville, Indiana, July 31, 1912, a heavy gale of wind prevented aviator Paul Peck from carrying mail. Postmaster S. E. DeHaven of Connersville writes me that no special aeroplane cancellation was prepared for the service. Later in the day, in spite of the strong wind that was blowing, Peck made a twenty mile flight to Rushville, Ind., alighted at that place and made a return flight. Peck, who used a tiny Columbia monoplane, has since been killed.

CATALOGUES AND COLORS.

By G. A. HUNT.

How many collectors know the difference between lilac, violet and mauve and their sub-divisions of color, red lilac, grey lilac, etc.? All the lawyers in Philadelphia would have a life job to untangle an argument on this subject.

There is one little 30c United States stamp, however, that seems to befog every cataloguer and that is the one issued in 1888. Can any reader give to the color of this stamp a definite name?

It is practically the same color as the 30c Columbian yet each are given a different name. Along in 1902 Scott listed the 30c 1888 as orange brown. Now, probably getting shy of type, they have it down as puce. The small boy sometimes spells "cat" with a "k" so we will make it "puke" not a very charming word or expression, yet if one looks in any standard dictionary he will find that "puke" is the name of a color between black and russet, and it is supposed to be synonymous with puce which by the way is defined as a dark brown or brownish purple color. Gibbons lists the stamp as plain chestnut, Yvert and Tellier as red brown, Bright as chestnut brown and so on they go, one has one shade or tint and another has another shade. As the stamp in question is brown and only comes in one shade why not list it as brown and be done with it or if one wants to be high toned call it "russet."

Stamps of one country are listed as rose, red lilac and lake, while stamps of identically the same shade and tint are listed in another country as maroon and magenta. Take Victoria, No. 150 listed as magenta for example and the 2c U. S. Columbian envelope, which is listed as violet. Both are practically the same color, in fact the 2c Columbian envelope is a true magenta and not violet at all unless a faded out copy could be called such.

These are only a few of many like instances. Fades and shades in them-

EDITORIAL

May All Be Well—The recent disasters by storm and flood have caused us no little concern for the welfare of the stamp folk in the afflicted sections and we trust that all our philatelic friends have been spared for further years of pleasure in our gentle pursuit. A report from Omaha says that no casualties were suffered by stamp collectors, so far as known, although there were some narrow escapes; and we are hopeful that similar messages will come from our readers in the flooded region.

Four More—Sinpod the stamp sage says that he has found a collector who never made small remittances in unused postage stamps: A philatelist who never told anyone of the "sleeper" that he got in an auction lot: A beginner who does not like "picture" stamps and a dealer who never takes a chance in sending out an approval selection.

Old Postmarks—An inquiry has been received asking for an explanation of the postmark: "Supplementary Mail," with post-office name and date, on a three-cent stamped envelope, 1861 issue. We have seen this postmark and assumed that "Supplementary Mail" designated that received after the regular pouch was closed but which nevertheless was sent along with it under proper charge. Apparently, the marking was used before 1864, the year in which George B. Armstrong, father of the railway mail service, received permission from Montgomery Blair, Postmaster General, to test by actual experiment his proposals for establishing a service of the kind. While the very first railway mail car, "a sort of crude compartment car" was operated August 28th, 1864, the first complete railway post-office car was built in 1867 by the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad. After the railway service was established letters could be posted up to the time of the departure of the train. A second question was as to the significance of the letters, P. B., in the postmark. This postmark, too, we have seen, and as it was on a drop letter addressed to a post-office box, the inference was that it meant, Post Box. Any further information would be welcome.

New Watermark Dues—Mr. C. Edward Wright, Washington, says: "It may interest some to know that the current U. S. postage due, three cent stamp, on paper with the new watermark was issued to postmasters January 22nd, 1912; the fifty cent, on October 3rd, 1912. The thirty cent has not yet been issued on paper with the single line watermark. This information has just been furnished me by the Third Assistant Postmaster General." Mr. Wright calls attention to a cover received in Washington from Peru on which the eleven centavos postage was rated by the 1c, official 1909 and two of the 5c, 1909, regular issue; and he asks if the use of official stamps on ordinary mail is recognized. We recollect that similar instances have been reported and we have seen in mail from the southern countries an official stamp used occasionally on ordinary mail.

Departmental Orders—A recent ruling from Washington provides that parcels weighing more than four ounces must be mailed at a post office or a branch or a station but parcels weighing four ounces or less may be mailed in the same manner as matter of other classes. For the information of several readers who have written to complain about the difficulty in securing the higher denominations of the parcel post stamps at their home offices, we submit the following ruling: "Postmasters will provide rural carriers, branch post offices and post-office stations with sufficient supplies of parcel post stamps to meet the public demand, under the same conditions as exist in relation to supplies of ordinary postage stamps." We suppose that relief from the conditions reported depends upon whether the postmasters will construe a philatelic as a "public" demand.

An Inquiry—Mr. C. B. Bostwick, New York, writes: "I have a stamp of the Straits Settlements, 2c, rose, watermarked CA surcharged in black, S. F. P. I cannot locate this in any of the catalogues. Can someone tell me what it is?" We do not find any mention of the letters named as a surcharge and under the circumstances, we incline to the belief that the letters were impressed on the stamp to identify it for the exclusive use of some firm of large stamp users. Stamps of India, Ceylon, Hong Kong and Straits are to be found with various letters printed on them to prevent the unauthorized use of the stamps; the marking was done with the consent of the post-office department.

Saved By Stamps—Count Lapp De Booz is speaking: "While cruising in an uncharted part of the Arctic Ocean in the interests of science, my crew was attacked by the dread scurvy and as captain of the expedition, I adjured the surgeon to check the ravages of the malady. The doctor said that the prospect was hopeless as there was no possibility of obtaining fruits or vegetables but added: 'Mucilaginous drinks would save us but where can we get them?' At the moment I was looking at my little book of duplicates and it came to mind that the original gum on the stamps could be of service. The surgeon made an infusion of the gum which the sufferers took; and their relief was instantaneous. It will be seen that many of my duplicates are without the original gum but perhaps you will not criticize them too harshly now that you know the reason for their condition."

Nobody Knows—What has become of the old-fashioned collector who made "stamp plates" out of his torn or otherwise defective duplicates? Is he bowing to the o. f. c. who studied volapuk so as to be able to make exchanges with collectors in foreign countries? What has become of the old-fashioned dealer who had a millionaire customer to whom nobody but he could sell stamps? Is he stranded somewhere with the o. f. d. who used to have his picture on all his printed announcements?

In Ward Thirteen—Said the attendant at the Asylum for the Addled: "Yes, he is the first stamp dealer who ever has been here and all of us are interested in him and he certainly has good care. He yawns all day long and looks like a harried jack rabbit. You see, he had a stamp shop in a big city and collectors used it as their lounging place and so he had to listen to all their stories of finds and near finds until nature protested and he was brought here by his loving friends. He is so dead tired that we keep him in that dark room away from everybody. Do not let him see you or he will begin to moan again and think that he is at the mercy of the stamp fiends once more. O, yes, his spinning wheel will slow down again, soon."

VAGARIES OF THE PARCEL POST.

By FRED L. PAULY.

I. I have a sealed letter (first class) that was prepaid by a two-cent parcel post stamp, no due stamp is attached, no due was paid.

II. In a remittance recently, we received three five-cent parcel post due stamps. Some postmaster's or green clerk's mistake.

III. A package of three ounces was received with 3 cents in parcel post dues attached at office of mailing. This is contrary to rules. We had to pay postage due, the postmaster affixing other parcel post stamps and then taking the entire wrapper and sending it to Washington.

IV. We daily receive third class matter, books, etc., franked with parcel post stamps and no dues collected, because nature of package is not determined by office here.

V. Recently we received a two ounce package of merchandise with a 25 cent parcel post stamp. This came from a firm and so was not a postal clerk's mistake but the firm's mailing clerk's. Twenty-three cents lost on one package because of the colors being the same.

Query:—Parcel post stamps were issued to assist in accounting. Take incidents I, II, III, and IV coupled with the fact that thousands of dollars of these stamps have been sold to collectors and firms and one naturally asks:—"Is the accounting any more accurate than it would be taken in some other way? If not, why have distinctive stamps?"

DOCTOR ACCUSED OF THEFT.

Alleged to Have Stolen Postage Stamps from Brother-in-Law.

Dr. Adolph Luria, 3611 Lexington street, formerly of Denver, Colo., was arrested on a charge of larceny, the complainant being his brother-in-law, Joseph B. Steiner, 721 South Central Park avenue. Dr. Luria is accused by Steiner of stealing part of a $30,000 collection of rare stamps which the former had given to Steiner as security on a loan of $500.—Chicago Tribune.

THREE BOOKS YOU NEED.

There is one book on the stamps of the U. S. that you must have. It is the one by Goodwin which we are now running in the WEEKLY in serial form. We don't know how many pages it will take but already forty pages have been reprinted, and it may run to three times that number. The price of the book will be 75c or $1 but if you are sporty enough to subscribe in advance remit 50c and the book will be yours. Any instalment published in the WEEKLY will show how comprehensive is Mr. Goodwin's treatment of his subject. It will be a standard work on the stamps of the United States.

We announce for early appearance the book by Mr. Poole "Hints for Beginners." The title, however, is a misnomer, as the book contains data that every collector needs for reference purposes. The price of this book will be 25c only and we anticipate that the edition will be early exhausted. Add this amount to your renewal of subscription and we will send book when issued.

Poole's book on "Cook Ids." It is a masterpiece—the only book on the stamps of these islands. Fully illustrated and of permanent value. Price 25c, this office.

SPECIALIZED UNITED STATES.

By FRANK E. GOODWIN.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

12 Cents, Issue of 1870-79.

One of the very rare stamps of the United States issues is found in this denomination—the 12 cent 1870, with grille. Fortunate indeed is the collector who has a copy of this rarity as one is seldom offered in the auctions. The writer has seen a number of large specialized collections of United States stamps which were most complete in other scarce things, and yet were lacking in the grided 12 cents.

A principal reason for its scarcity is, probably, that a goodly number of copies repose unnoticed in the class of stamps without grille. This is owing to the indistinctness of the points. Few of the copies known to exist present strong embossing. Most of them show just a faint trace of points, and are likely to be overlooked even by one who has spent some time on his stamps.

From a mechanical standpoint there is no good reason why this stamp should rank among the very rare ones. The stamp came into being and was put upon the market at the time when the grided varieties were being freely used; the very nature of the grille itself (most of them being faint and indistinct) would go far to prove that a considerable number of sheets were passed through the machine. But it is a hard stamp to show the grille upon under casual examination, owing to the nature of the engraving, and the color. So, unless one looks into his specimens with a strong glass, under a good light, and at various angles of view, a lightly grided specimen is likely to escape the collector's view.

Late in April, or during the early days of June, 1870, the 12 cents stamps were issued to the public along with others of the series. It is an ugly stamp, possibly the "homeliest" of the lot. Probably the stamp without grille appeared first. Only one size of grille is absolutely known—8 1/2 x 10 1/2, with 11 x 13 points. The only variety is the end roller grille. The shade of the grided stamp is pale dull violet. It was printed from plate number 24.

The stamps without grille were also printed from plate 24. Mr. Luff gives three shades—pale dull violet, dull violet and gray violet.

From April, 1870, to April, 1873, 3,330,445 stamps were delivered by the National Bank Note Company to the postal department. There are no varieties.

When the Continental Bank Note Company took over the contract for printing the stamps, early in 1873, the company proceeded to put in its "secret mark" so as to distinguish its work from that of the predecessors.

This "secret mark" consists in rounding out the balls which make up the numeral "2" until they become almost crescent shaped. It is a difficult mark to describe in print, but the catalogs describe it fully.

The shades are given as dull violet, deep violet and black violet—surely not a difficult lot to properly classify.

The first stamps printed by the Continental Bank Note Company were from the plates used by its predecessors—the National Bank Note Company—number 24. Later plate number 137 was made by the new manufacturers, and this plate was continued in use to the time the stamps were withdrawn, in 1875.

From the time the Continental Bank Note Company took over the contract, to December 31, 1876, there were delivered to the department, stamps of this denomination to the number of 2,915,000.

Varieties are few. There is the stamp, grided for legal purposes, and on ribbed paper.

For the Centennial exposition, in 1875, a "special printing" was made, consisting of 10,000 stamps, from plate 137. The shade is given as dull black violet. Later another printing of 500 copies was made in black violet. Of these stamps—10,500 in all—only 282 were sold, the balance being destroyed.

A variety in the regular issue has a distinct outer line at the bottom of the stamp. It may be that it is an engraver's guide line, which was not erased from the plate. Be that as it may, the line is there, and may be classed as a "minor variety" at least.

The proofs make a most attractive addition to the collection.

"Maybe you have 7200 subscribers but you will have only 7199 if you do not publish this joke enclosed," threatens a soulless reader. We should lose a dozen if we did.

"I was arranging my United States and had some loose stamps before me; and being about to sneeze, I bent down and drawing in my breath sharply, I swallowed a fine specimen. Am I not unfortunate?" gasps an esteemed reader. It was all right if the specimen was an Interior Department stamp.

UNITED STATES.—F. D. Collins writes: "In number 1154 B. Douglass Goode reports a die variety of the current 1c U. S. stamp, and in No. 1158 Henry E. Holley reports having found the same variety. If they will take the trouble to look for a sheet printed from plate 5901 they can get all of these stamps they want. I would also suggest that collectors who are interested in these minor varieties cease stretching their imagination to the point of new dies. This was undoubtedly caused by a broken transfer roll and not by a new die. These short lines of color are represented on the original die and on the plate by recessed lines and on the transfer roll by raised lines. The only wonder is that there are not more of them broken off the transfer rolls than are."

Frank B. Eldredge lists the following new precancels:

Cincinnati, Ohio.—CINCINNATI in the form of a circle, a star between the first C and the last I, lower centre. OHIO between two short horizontal lines in circle, but in smaller capitals. 1c, 1913, Parcel Post. Reported by Wm. E. Beam.

Tacoma, Wash.—Two lines (TACOMA—WASH.) horizontal inscription in thin capitals with serifs, between lines 9 mm. apart, lines 1-3 mm. thick. 5c, 1913, San Francisco. Reported by Wm. E. Beam.

Racine, Wis.—Cancelled by the regular newspaper cancellation of that office, and used on the circulars sent out by F. A. Tecktonius, dealer in prize winning buff leghorn fowl. 1c, 1913, San Francisco. Reported by Wm. E. Beam.

H. C. Buland reports the following: Chicago, Ill. — (1153) — 25c, Parcel Post.

Minneapolis, Minn.—1c and 25c Parcel Post.

St. Louis, Mo. (1158).—1c, Parcel Post.

Cleveland, Ohio. (1155).—2c Parcel Post, inverted.

St. Louis, Mo.—Two lines (St. Louis—Missouri/) horizontal inscription line above and below, 12½ mm. between, lines 1½ mm. thick. 10 and 15c, 1912.

Cincinnati, O.—Two lines (CINCINNATI—OHIO), Cincinnati on a slight circle, Ohio straight and two lines of short, thick dashes below to conform with the Cincinnati above. 1c, San Francisco issue.

Mason City, Ill.—Two lines (MASON CITY—ILL.) vertical inscription in sans-serif capitals, 2½ mm. high. 3c, 1910, reading down, 2c, 1912, reading up and down.

Australia.—Edwin F. Sawyer has shown us a wrapper for the Commonwealth, the design being the new Kangaroo type.

Ceylon.—Edwin F. Sawyer has shown us new King George envelope and wrapper, with design in the new type, with large "Ceylon."

Cuba.—H. E. Holley reports finding the 50c gray of 1879 without the period between "Cuba" and "1879." Examination of blocks of these stamps shows that the sheets were poorly printed, very poorly. In some cases the periods are quite distinct, in others very faint, while many of the stamps have no period at all. Therefore this is not so good a variety as in the case of the 25c of 1878, reported in No. 1158.

Egypt.—Sudan.—The Daily Express says that the new Sudan stamps which were to have been issued on January 1, have not yet been released by the postal department, owing to the large quantities of the low values of the current issues on hand at the various post offices. These are now being called in and punctured with the initials "A. S." (Army Service) and "S.G." (Sudan Government) for departmental use, in order to clear the way for the new issue about the end of this month or the beginning of next. Meanwhile all the overprinted official stamps of both issues are being withdrawn from use and the remainders destroyed. Copies of the 5m red and black, 1pi brown and blue, punctured "A.S." have been seen together with the 1m punctured "S.G.", all issued in January, 1913. This will have the effect of making the 10-piastres, watermarked multiple stars and crescents, overprinted "O.S.G.S." issued at the end of December, a very scarce stamp.

Grenada.—Edwin F. Sawyer shows us specimens of the new King George wrappers and registration envelope. The design of the latter is similar to former issues, but the wrapper design is entirely new. The King's head appears in an oval with small shields with the value in figures in the lower corners with the value in words across the bottom in a straight line. The name of the Colony is printed at the top in a curved line, the space around the crown being filled in with elaborate foliage designs.

GREAT BRITAIN.—W. H. Peckitt shows us specimens of the "5 Piastres" on 1sh, and "24 Piastres" on 5sh King Edward stamps, both new printings.

Already some stamps of the King Edward period have attained a degree of rarity which makes them valuable to collectors says the London Daily Mail. For instance, the 2½d light blue, 1902 series, unused is quoted by a reputable firm of stamp dealers at 3sh 6d.

The 4d green and purple, unused, fetches 7sh 6d and the 10d stamp commands 4sh and upwards, according to shades of colour. The 2d green stamp, whose varying shades were the subject of comment in the Daily Mail at the time of its issue, reaches in its several varieties a price from 2sh 6d to 10sh. Other British stamps of comparatively recent date have increased in value to collectors, including unused specimens of the early penny and half penny ones of the present reign.

According to the Daily Express a curious feature in connection with the current halfpenny stamp is recorded by several philatelic journals—a faint double watermark, which shows most clearly on the margins of the sheets, where the letters of the word "postage" overlap. It is found both inverted and reversed, as well as in the normal, and shows up very distinctly when the stamps are immersed in benzine. High prices are being asked for this variety in certain quarters, but it is doubtful if they are justified.

INDIA.—W. H. Peckitt has shown us the new 5r stamp, portrait of King George, and we find it a great improvement over previous issues. The portrait is placed in an oval as in the two previous issues, but as the crowned portrait is used, the crown is omitted from the frame. "India Postage" is printed in a straight line just above the portrait in a framed tablet of peculiar design. The whole is surmounted by an arch of ornamental work, supported by brackets nearly opposite the top of the portrait. An irregular tablet below the portrait contains the value thus, "5RS", while huge elephants on either side give the whole design the necessary oriental appearance.

Government April 1, though we have not yet seen any of the stamps even in specimen copies. The subjects of the designs comprise portraits of King Charles at various periods of his career, picturesque views of the country, and important buildings. The series is said to be a commemorative one, though of what is not stated. The stamps are printed in two colors and were made in England.

SAMOS.—Mrs. Louise W. Kellogg has shown us the permanent set, as announced some time since. The stamps are of large size 21x29 mm. and show the head of Mercury facing to the right, between two pillars supporting a tablet bearing two Greek words. "Samos" in Greek characters appears below the head with the value in tablets at the bottom. These stamps were in use only a short time, and have now been superseded by the same series surcharged "Ellas" in Greek characters in large type like the 1909-10 issue of Crete.

SERVIA.—This country is to issue a jubilee set with portraits of Servian sovereigns and views of the towns taken from Turkey.

SOLOMON ISLANDS.—The item under this head in No. 1160, should have been placed under the head of "British Solomon Islands."

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.—Johore.—W. H. Peckitt has shown us the 8c lilac and dark blue, on paper watermarked multiple flower.

TRINIDAD & TOBAGO.—London Tit-Bits has the following from the pen of P. C. Bishop:

Re-enter Tobago! This island, apparently, has grown weary of playing second fiddle to Trinidad, for the new postage stamps of the latter Colony are lettered "Trinidad and Tobago."

It is the story of the Leeward Islands over again. In 1890 the members of the Leeward group—Antigua, Dominica, Montserrat, Nevis, St. Kitts and the Virgin Isles—were deprived of their postal autonomy and condemned to use one general set of stamps, inscribed "Leeward Islands." This state of affairs endured for some years, but there was great dissatisfaction locally, the little Virgin Islands being the first to actively kick. Eventually the right to issue their own stamps was restored to the various "Presidencies" of the group, the Virgins being the first out with new stamps in 1899, the others following in 1903. The only change from the status quo ante was that St. Kitts and Nevis were amalgamated for postage stamp purposes, and hence the quaint stamps of "St. Kitts—Nevis" of 1903, whereon we are given a picture of Christopher Columbus looking through a telescope—an instrument which was not invented until long after the great navigator was dead!

As Nevis is to St. Kitts, so will Tobago be to Trinidad. Probably the Tobagoans would have preferred the right to issue stamps entirely their own, as in the period 1897-1896; but they will conclude that half a stamp is better than none at all. Indeed, there is one particular "half-stamp" of Tobago that is worth a bushel or more of whole ones. The stamp referred to is the 6d orange of 1879, which in 1880 was divided vertically down the centre and each half-overprinted, or rather over-written, "1d" in pen and ink. An entire envelope bearing the authentic postmarked specimen of this curious split provisional would be worth £10 or more of anyone's money.

URUGUAY.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us a new value in the Artigas set, locally printed. This is made necessary by the reduction in the rate of postage from Uruguay to Argentine from five cents to four cents.

Serious Exchange Wanted on Approval Shoots With Medium and Advanced Collectors and Dealers.

In the future we intend to greatly enlarge the scope of our stock and we therefore offer IN EXCHANGE for stamps, suitable for our use, of all countries but specially U. S. A. Departmental and General Issues, Hawaii and English Colonies:

All the Stamps of Spain, Spanish West Indies, Cuba, Porto Rico, Philippines, Rio de Oro, Fernando Poo, Elobey, Guinea Used, unused and also in pairs, strips, blocks and on original covers which hitherto we have made our speciality and of which we certainly hold the largest and most important stock in the world.

Within the last few years we have made purchases exclusively in these stamps for sums exceeding $100,000 of which the most important were:

The entire magnificent stock of the firm Antonio Vives of Madrid for which we paid $20,000, the celebrated specialized collections of Count de San Simon and Miguel Galvez also of Madrid, the whole stock of M. T— of Barcelona, the greater part of the Spanish stocks of the late dealers Isaac Blanco and Jules Bernichon of Paris.

Exchange is Made on the Following Conditions:

(I) We do not demand any discounts, as we do not indulge in speculation and only wish to form a stock of foreign stamps in the way of exchange. Stamps must therefore be quoted by both parties at catalogue prices (Scott, Gibbons, Kohl, Sent, Yvert, etc.)

(II) We take only stamps in perfect condition catalogued at least 10 cents up to $100 each. We can use up to 20 specimens of the medium priced stamps but we will be glad to furnish, if wanted, only one specimen of any desired kind.

Selections under $20 Catalogue Value are not accepted.

(III) We answer always within 8 days by sending a selection of at least equal value. All the stamps remain the property of the sender until contra value has been wholly selected.

(IV) All remittances must be registered or insured.

THE STAMPS OF THE GERMAN EMPIRE.
Baden - Continued.

THE THIRD ISSUE.—(Continued.)

In March 1861 the Prussian Postal Administration addressed a circular to the various States forming the German Austrian Postal Union proposing that uniform colors should be adopted for stamps of the same or corresponding values. This applied only to the stamps in use for the three rates of postage equivalent to 1, 2, and 3gr, and so far as Baden was concerned this affected all but the 1kr. The colors decided on were rose for the 3kr, blue for the 6kr, and brown for the 9kr. Baden agreed to the proposition which came into effect just prior to the alteration of the gauge of the perforating machine. About this period, too, some modification of the design was under discussion. Following the many changes round about this date in strict chronological order is likely to result in confusion and it will, therefore, be simpler to deal, first of all, with the changes as they affected the stamps of the type with lined background. None of the 3kr stamps in the new rose color were printed in this type for reasons we shall detail later on. Although supplies of the 6kr and 9kr in the new colors of blue and brown respectively were ordered in December 1861, none appear to have been delivered until the summer of 1862. Notwithstanding this fact an official notification of the change of colors was made to postmasters on Jan. 29th, 1862, and this has thus (though erroneously) been frequently stated as the date of issue. As a matter of fact the 6kr could not have been used earlier than August, 1862, while the 9kr does not appear to have been in general circulation until the following year.

THE FOURTH ISSUE.

After the printing of the 3kr stamps in June 1861 it was found that, although little more than 60,000 sheets had been supplied from first to last, the clichés had become too badly worn to be of further use. As a new set was necessary advantage was taken of this fact to ascertain whether a modification of the design would not improve the appearance of the stamps. Kurz was supplied with two of the clichés to see what he could do and from one of these he removed every alternate line of the background and from the other he erased the lines entirely so that the Arms stood out on a plain rectangle. The latter was considered such an improvement that the original dies of all four values were returned to Kurz for attention. The renovated dies were ready for use early in August 1861 but as only the 3kr was immediately necessary Hasper was instructed to prepare 110 clichés for the new plate for this denomination. A first printing of the 3kr in the new type was ordered late in 1861 and a first delivery of 2000 sheets was made in March 1862. These stamps arrived at the period when the overhauling of the perforating machine had been decided on but there was such urgent need for 3kr stamps that this supply was perforated before the new punches were fitted. We thus find the 3kr of this issue perforated 13½ as well as 10 like the other values. With the 13½ gauge the stamp is quite a rarity unused and fairly scarce used.

We have already referred to the fact that the dies for the 1kr, 6kr and 9kr had the background removed in 1861 but it was not until the close of the year 1863 that Hasper found it necessary to construct plates from the altered dies. He now made 110 clichés of each value to be ready for the printing of 1864 though none of the new 6kr were delivered until April of that year while the 1kr and 9kr were not supplied until June. On the 17th of June, 1864, a circular was sent to the various post-offices stating that the new postage stamps of 6 and 9 kreuzer, with plain background, would be supplied from the General Post Store in the next quarter, and the 1kr stamps of similar design in the following quarter. From this order it is evident the 6kr and 9kr could not have been in use prior to July or the 1kr until October 1864. Other printings took place later on and as the printer apparently made no special endeavor to keep the colors of the printing inks uniform quite a wide range of shades may be found in all except the 1kr denomination. Of these the rarest is the 6kr in a Prussian blue like that of the similar tint found in connection with the 3kr of the preceding issue. The 3kr is known imperfectly while the 9kr in the bistre shade has been found printed on both sides.

We now retrace our steps a little to 1861 when the alteration of design and change of colors was under discussion. In the same year a desire was expressed for stamps of a higher value than 9kr, the first step being taken by the Chamber of Commerce of Mannheim, who proposed to the Baden Ministry of Commerce that 18kr and 30kr stamps should be created. Although the use of the then current 12kr and 18kr envelopes had been very restricted the Ministry decided to introduce 18kr and 30kr labels and Kurz was commissioned to supply the necessary dies for these values. The dies, which were in the design with plain background, were delivered on October, 28th, 1861, and Hasper at once proceeded to make the clichés for the printing plates. The colors decided on were green for the 18kr and cinnabar-red for the 30kr. After a small number of sheets of the higher value had been printed Hasper reported that "the cinnabar-red was not fit for printing from galvano-plastic plates, as the quicksilver acted injuriously on the copper." He was consequently ordered to print this value in orange for the future. Whether the stamps in cinnabar-red were placed in use or not is not certain. Westoby lists it as having been issued and if his statement is correct the stamps in this color must be of extreme rarity. Other printings were made from time to time though neither of the values seems to have been in very great demand. The total quantity of 18kr printed was 315,200 and of these 151,012 were destroyed in July, 1870 as the new postal rates made the value absolutely useless. The total supply of the 30kr stamps numbered 430,400 and though comparatively few were used, and the stamp is rare in this condition, it is common enough unused as the remainders were sold to a dealer some years later.

HERE'S A DEEP ONE.

I have read with interest from time to time descriptions of minor varieties discovered by your subscribers and noted in your paper. I am the happy discoverer of the two following varieties.

In examining 1,000 of the current 2c stamps with a high-power microscope, I discovered one in which the distance between the 10th and 11th line of the background in the N. E. corner is .093 mm., whereas the same distance in ordinary specimens is .097 mm. This difference is easily detected with a microscope scale carrying a microscope and a vernier reading to thousandths of a millimetre. I am certain it is a variety because in looking over a second 1,000, I found it again and it was the 873 stamp examined, each time, which I take to be conclusive proof.

In looking over a number of 2c Columbians, I found one in which the fourth perforation from the bottom on the right-hand side was elliptical instead of circular, the major axis of the ellipse measuring 1.23 mm. and the semi-minor axis measuring .57 mm. The Prince of Pilsen writes me that he has noted the same variety, and that he has also discovered it in the 1c Columbian. I am not able to verify the latter, though I have examined several million stamps.—S. M. REED.

WITH APOLOGIES TO "HAMLET."

Fine or superfine the everlasting question. Now is it better to have no stamp at all Than to have one that is not perfection; Or to disregard the dictum of condition cranks And take them as we find them. Imperf. or perf. Each one must have a margin 'round And if a hair's-breadth out to south or north He will not have it and the space is empty, And never will be filled. Why not? because The stamp cannot be found, for sad to say The man who made them did his level best To spoil them all and few were left perfect To suit the crank. Frank A. G.—says, "If the centering's off a mite, reduce the price To some per cent. of catalogue for fine; But he is wrong, the crank must have them all As perfect as the best, with same outlay As saner mortals pay for average kind; And, if the saner mortal has for sale A copy that to him appears of worth, The crank returns it and demands instead Unknown perfection; says will pay the price Of damaged or off-centered stuff and shies When asked to pay according to the book Whose standard all are ready to accept, As guide and monitor, collectors' friend Which teaches us the A. B. C. of stamps And shows where copies without name belong. Thus does a fad make hopeless cranks of some And bids all wonder whether this collecting Is hedged around with such a hopeless task As hunting for the rainbow's hidden gold. The album's pages thus remain unfilled And dead is the collection.

BOSTON, MASS., Mar. 18, 1913.

The 288th (regular) meeting of the Society was held at the Club room this evening with President Nevin in the chair and 41 members and friends present.

The following was presented:—

Library Report for Jan.-Mar.

By donation: Drew's 122 and 123rd sales priced from H. F. King, Scott's 172 and 173rd sales priced from Freeman Putney, "The Making of Stamps," by Frank E. Goodwin and Linn's Philatelic Handbook No. 1 from New England Stamp Co.

Also the current numbers of the following magazines generously contributed by the publishers: Gibbons' Monthly, Mekeel's Weekly, Stamp Journal, Postage Stamp, Philatelic Journal of Great Britain, Scott Stamp & Coin Co. Circular, Philatelic Gazette, Roessler's Stamp News, Collectors' Journal, New England Stamp Monthly, British Guiana Philatelic Journal, Newark Stamp News and New Yorker Briefmarken Zeitung.

Mr. Stone reported that thus far the Boston Philatelic Society members, through subscriptions and membership fees, had subscribed $117 toward the International Stamp Exhibition to be held in New York next October.

The draft of the new Constitution for the Society was presented by the special committee and read by the Secretary. A copy will be hung on the Club Room bulletin board, for those who may wish to examine it, and it will come up for action at the next meeting. The report was accepted and the committee discharged.

The following were elected to membership:—

No. 573, Jesse T. Lillibridge.
No. 574, Marcus White.

The resignation of No. 478 was accepted, and the following were dropped for non-payment of dues:—Nos. 104, 389, 430, 433, 475, 498, 508, 549, 551, and 556.

The entertainment consisted of a most magnificent and complete collection of Exhibition and similar labels, largely foreign, belonging to Mr. B. W. Allen, which excited the wonder and admiration of all; and an extremely interesting collection of "side-lines," including freaks and oddities, the property of Mr. Willard O. Wylie, in which everyone found something of special attraction.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—The new denominations being chronicled from South American countries, such as the 4c Uruguay, the 8c Peru provisional, etc., are the result of the First South American Continental Postal Congress held from January 8 to February 2, 1911 at Montevideo. The countries sending delegates to the Congress were Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Paraguay, Peru, Uruguay and Venezuela. The action of the conference was ad referendum, and so far seven of the ten countries have ratified the convention affecting the change in postage rates, Brazil, Uruguay and Venezuela not having yet done so.

—"I read with interest and amusement what the climate does to o. g. in the Philippines. In India ants dine on it, and in the rainy season the gum grows moist and sticketh closer than a collector. Out here in Arizona, in the Salt River Valley, in Summer the heat curls a stamp with o. g. into a hopeless roll, and I would advise any one sending stamps into this section to keep o. g.'s for other climates. I, too, am a collector of used, wherever possible; but I have many unused, brought from the East, and a few without gum. The last named are permissible, in this climate."

—E. B. HILL.

—"I saw the 26c Philippines chronicled in an English paper which would indicate it was issued at least three months ago; but I did not see one, and feel sure they were not on sale to the public, until late in February. The 16c is on sale, just put on the counter. The 2 peso brown-violet, old watermark, has not been seen by many collectors around here. I have never seen one as yet. They don't sell them at the P. O. The 4c new wmk. is not out, except in booklets."—THEO. SIDDALL.

KNICK-KNACKS.

We stop the press to report the mysterious disappearance of the o. f. c. and the o. f. d. Sinpod the stamp sage has been asked to find them.

"I do not want to go where I cannot take my stamps with me," says a writer. Then he should reform.

There is no escape from Borus Blurb, the none-such philatelic poet, for eight long months. He has got only to April:

April, the month of nature's smile and tear,
Marks the acme of all the philatelic year.

Our Great Lilliputian Contest. "A member of our society accidentally dropped ink on my mint five shillings, Cayman, 1907, and then wanted to buy it for almost nothing because of its condition."

"Why does not some stamp dealer make a hit by offering 'Bargains?' asks a bold, bad reader.

"Now that the ball season has opened, I suppose that errors no longer will be scarce," giggles Embossed Emil. Stand back and give him air.

"The study of stamps gives an elasticity to the intellect," proclaims a writer who first should catch the intellect.

"He is a man who would say Stampology without a tremor," is the description given of a hardened philatelic character now at large.

Red is the color of passion and that accounts for the way in which the postal clerks bang the present parcel post stamps.

Great excitement is occasioned by the report that no revolution is in progress in one of the southern countries.

"Some of my stamps smile at me, others frown; it is the condition that they are in," confesses a writer. He means that it is the condition that he is in.

A reader wants to know what the first requirement in stamp buying is and we have no hesitation in saying the price.

On a wager a man has started to walk from San Francisco to New York but his real reason is that he probably wishes to attend the Stamp Exhibition.

Someone wants to know the best way to remove stamps from an album. When the owner is not looking, we should say, if such advice were not harmful.

THREE BOOKS YOU NEED.

There is one book on the stamps of the U. S. that you must have. It is the one by Goodwin which we are now running in the WEEKLY in serial form. We don't know how many pages it will take but already forty pages have been reprinted, and it may run to three times that number. The price of the book will be 75c or $1 but if you are sporty enough to subscribe in advance remit 50c and the book will be yours. Any instalment published in the WEEKLY will show how comprehensive is Mr. Goodwin's treatment of his subject. It will be a standard work on the stamps of the United States.

We announce the book by Mr. Poole, The Stamp Collectors' Guide. It contains data that every collector needs for reference purposes. The price of this book is 25c only and we anticipate that the edition will be early exhausted. Add this amount to your renewal of subscription and we will send the book.

Poole's book on "Cook Ids." It is a masterpiece—the only book on the stamps of these islands. Fully illustrated and of permanent value. Price 25c, this office.

CHAPTER XXXV.

15 Cents, Issue of 1870-79.

Like the others of the higher values of this series, the 15 cent stamps do not afford a very wide field for study—perhaps just enough varieties being noted to make it tantalizing to the average collector. Yet there is a bit more leeway in this than in the 12, the 24, 30 or 90 cent stamps. The fact that a great majority of the grilled varieties have the embossing so faintly impressed as to make the study of sizes most difficult, retards the enthusiasm of the student somewhat. Then, too, the color made these stamps most susceptible to the damaging effects of cancellation, and it is rare indeed to find a really superb used copy.

We can only use our powers of deduction in the matter of whether the stamp was issued first in grilled or ungrilled shape, or that possibly they might have been put on sale in both conditions at about the same time.

The writer has already shown that stamps of the lower denominations were offered first without grilles, and from what little data we have it seems likely that the entire issue, from 1 to 90 cents—with the single exception of the 7 cent stamps—did not appear embossed until some months later than the date of first issue. The facts are too meagre to state positively whether such was the case, or not. I believe the stamps, with grille, did not begin to appear until the latter part of 1870, at least. The one thing of which I am certain is, that traces of a worn plate is not an infallible test of a bad grille.

As the catalogs and the various handbooks treat the grilled stamps first I will not stray from that path, but will review the few things which are known of this variety, first.

Plate No. 20 was the one used for the production of the 15 cent stamp, made by the National Bank Note Company. Mr. Luff says that the grille appears upon the stamp, printed in shade of bright orange. I have three slightly different shades of this stamp, but am not at all certain but that the difference is not due to fading, or atmospheric action. Being printed in orange it is susceptible to color changes, and I have seen copies badly oxidized, and a bath of peroxide of hydrogen changed them to their normal color.

Three sizes of grilles have been found; perhaps there are more. They are:

Size	Points
8½x10½	11x13
9 x11	12x14
10 x12	13x15

One will look through many stamps showing the grille before he will be able to find those which he can positively identify as to size and count. These are rather scarce, as every collector knows, and to carry on the study to much extent the student will be forced to borrow many copies before he can say for certainty that he has seen the different sizes.

The end roller grille has not been chronicled, nor have I heard of any copy being known, although I see no reason why it should not exist as well in this denomination as in the others.

Three shades and no varieties make up the sum total of what the specialist has to collect in the stamps without grille. The shades, according to Mr. Luff, are: pale bright orange, and bright orange. To which the writer adds, the orange. This stamp is found upon at least two thicknesses of paper, but as no attempt has been made to classify these papers I shall omit them.

The exact date of the appearance of this denomination is unsettled. The issue appeared on April 15, 1870. It was not later than early May when this stamp went into use, and possibly it appeared simultaneously with the low-cent values.

From April 15, 1870, to April 30, 1873, there were delivered to the post-office department 5,581,800 stamps.

The Continental Bank Note Company took over the dies, plates, etc., and began making stamps upon a contract dated May 1, 1873. This concern deepened the upright lines in the triangle at the left, to identify its work from that of the former manufacturers. The plate used by the new contractors was number 31, showing that no use was made of the old plate.

Three shades are given to the stamps of this series by Mr. Luff, namely—pale orange, orange, deep orange.

Two varieties only are chronicled: Grilled, for legal purposes; on ribbed paper.

Deliveries between April 30, 1873 and December 31, 1876, were 3,052,000 stamps.

The American Bank Note Company, successors to the Continental concern, used the same plate as its predecessors—number 31. But the merged concern was a little more liberal with its shades, producing the following: Pale orange, yellow, orange yellow, orange red, orange, red orange and pale red. No varieties are noted.

Ten thousand copies of a reissue were made for the Centennial exposition in 1876 and later 500 copies more were printed. The shade was deep orange. Of these but 169 copies were sold to the public.

The proofs are handsome specimens of printing and should be collected.

HAWAIIAN EXHIBIT.

The Hawaiian Philatelic Society is making plans for an exhibition, the first in the history of the Society. It will be held in Honolulu during the first week in May, in the Y. M. C. A. building.

The exhibit will not be entirely confined to the members of the Society, as there will be a special section reserved for the members of the Junior Philatelic Society and another for the displays of any local collector or specialist. Several large private collections will be on display, including the collection of rare Hawaiian stamps which is owned by Charles Hustace, Jr., and another which is owned by William Wolter. Those in charge of the arrangements of the exhibit are vice-president W. C. Parke, Dr. W. T. Monarrat, Bruce Cartwright, Jr., B. F. Beardmore, and E. M. Ehrhorn. The Junior Philatelic Society recently held a most successful exhibit and the members of this organization will be expected to contribute to a large extent in the one which is to be held in May.

Our April Special

WILL BE ISSUED

Saturday, April 26, 1913

AND WILL BE A

POWERFUL PHILATELIC
ROPOSITION

¶ In addition to our regular mailing list of 7200 paid up subscribers we shall send out several thousand extra circulation based on orders secured from well known dealers. You cannot afford to miss this opportunity of reaching every buying collector in the U. S.

¶ Our contract rates are the lowest, (circulation considered) of any stamp paper in the world, and that our advertisers are satisfied is evidenced by their long continued patronage of our paper. For space to be used any time during a given year send for rate card.

¶ Users of large space in a single issue are accorded special terms. This concession is made to allow opportunity for displayed advertisements, auction sales, etc. Note the special rates quoted:

Full page (576 lines) only	$57.60
½ page (288 lines) only	30.00
¼ page (144 lines) only	15.00

¶ All the world's great advertisers, not only in America but Europe as well, are with us regularly and with us because it pays.

¶ Even the small advertiser has his page where two or three lines can be used for offers to buy, sell or exchange. We have averaged over two columns all winter and our patrons express great satisfaction. Here are our terms for "small ads":

Rate per line only	20c
50 lines to use at will	$7.50

Have Copy in April 19

¶ We would like to know how much space you can use by return mail. Have your copy reach us not later than April 19. Bear in mind that our advertising rates are the cheapest in the world and we will prove our case to any advertiser.

EDITORIAL.

A Generous Impulse—Mr. F. W. Grahame, St. Paul, Minnesota, writes to suggest that aid be extended by philatelists to those members of the American Philatelic Society who may have suffered through the recent visitation of flood; and he sends one dollar as a nucleus of the fund. He says: ". . .

While we cannot help all the philatelists in this stricken region, we can at least help those who are members of the American Philatelic Society. The fact that one is a member in good standing is a guarantee that one is deserving.

. . . Now is the time for philatelists to come to the front and demonstrate to the world that there is a bond of brotherly love among the followers of our splendid science." Mr. Grahame shows a spirit that is very creditable but we feel that as many of our readers have contributed liberally to the funds that were started immediately in all sections of the country, it is not incumbent upon us to establish a philatelic fund. However, if any members of the American Philatelic Society or other stamp collectors were among the sufferers, we shall attempt gladly to alleviate their distress.

* * *

Reaches the Pinnacle—General C. A.

Coolidge, Detroit, Michigan, has been nominated for the presidency of the American Philatelic Society and no one will say that the tribute that has been paid him is not deserved. We believe that the American Philatelic Society has no sincerer adherent than General

Coolidge and he will enter heart and soul into the work of the chief office.

That General Coolidge will be chosen for the high honor is a logical hope; he long has done yeoman service and has taken the preparatory degrees in the society. At Cleveland, we confidently maintain, General Charles A. Coolidge will achieve the culmination of a long and honorable philatelic career.

cent, 1869, with the famous blue-bottle fly cancellation, one of the most fantastic obliterations that ever emanated from the eccentric mind of an American P. M. Mr. Kain sends a ten-cent current issue that conforms to the description of the ten-cent in the WEEKLY of March 22nd; and above the "e" of cents, there is a colorless dash.

His Simple Tale—Count Lapp De Booz is speaking: "As I was taking seismographic observations in a remote and unexplored part of Guatemala, inhabited by those monsters of barbarity, the Ittilittats, I was seized by them. While my captors were debating what would be the cruelest form of death that I could suffer, I opened my little book of duplicates for a last look at my treasures. I was lost in contemplation of the stamps, only to be aroused by a chorus of friendly shouts. The dread Ittilittats were fighting to embrace my feet and were displaying all manner of rude reverential regard. The savages had seen the picture of the quetzal on my duplicates of the 1882 issue of Guatemala and as the bearer of pictures of their sacred bird, they ascribed a supernatural origin to me. The untutored natives now worshipped me rather embarrassingly and I soon took my departure, laden with gifts of golden ornaments. Perhaps you have heard of the DeBooz system of seismology, now so acclaimed by the scientific world; at least, you will not wonder why I specialize in the stamps of Guatemala."

Making it Right—Mr. W. E. Whitnall, Liverpool, England, whose keen interest in the stamps of the United States and attendant postal history has found expression in our columns at different times, writes: "In the second paragraph of Mr. C. A. Howes' 'Washington As Seen on Our Stamps,' in the issue of February 22nd, 1913, I read that 'by the Act of March 3rd, 1845 . . . the single rate (was) made uniform at five cents for all distances under three thousand miles.' Because the quotation from Mr. Jas. Leslie's article in the Stamp Collectors' Magazine for Nov. 1st, 1863—as given in Mr. Luff's 'Postage Stamps of the U. S.' on page 7 (three thousand miles) did not agree with Mr. Luff's copy of the Act, on pages 6 and 387 (three hundred miles) I sought some assistance here, and by favour of the United States Representative in Liverpool was permitted to see his copy of the printed records of the Act of March 3rd, 1845, 28th Congress, Session II, Chap. XLIII, where the distance is stated as three hundred miles. That settled the matter for me, and I have since then been satisfied that Mr. Leslie made a mistake or has been wrongly reported. Now Mr. Howes says 'three thousand miles.' Has he made a mistake?" Yes.

A Famous Act—The Act of March 3rd, 1845, by which congress sharply reduced the postal rates was a memorable one. The reactionaries predicted all sorts of dire results and maintained that the rate reductions would demoralize the post-office establishment. There was some reason for uneasiness as no little confusion attended the reform and in consequence of the increased labor and the decreased compensation and curtailed privileges of postmasters under the Act of March 3rd, 1845, perhaps one-third of the postmasters of the United States voluntarily vacated their offices within the succeeding quarter. Extra commissions granted by an order of July 9th, 1845, arrested the exodus and by the law of March 1st, 1847, higher rates of commissions were allowed postmasters. Before the passage of the Act of March 3rd, 1845, the rates "on a single letter, composed of one piece of paper" ranged from six to twenty-five cents, according to distance; the maximum charge was for "over 400" miles. The new act named five cents as the rate on a letter not exceeding a half-ounce in weight, sent not exceeding 300 miles; beyond 300 miles, ten cents.

* * *

In Ward Thirteen—Said the Attendant at the Asylum for the Addled: "That new fellow was brought in by his sorrowing wife who said that her husband had locked himself in a room and refused all food while he figured out how to mount his stamps so as to suit him. He has his own way here and that is why his rest-room is so littered up with contraptions. He told me a little while ago that he had decided to have his album made of glass leaves with the stamps unhinged between two panes of glass. The top layer protects the face of the stamp while the under one allows the back to be examined. He has just asked me to get rates on plate glass insurance. It is rather rough on his family but he gets good care here even if I say it myself."

* * *

Closed for Repairs—The floods at Dayton, Ohio, have seriously damaged the plant of the stamped envelope factory there and the authorities at Washington have issued an announcement that there is a temporary suspension of supply of special-request and office-request envelopes, but the public is informed that the department has an adequate supply of the unprinted stamped envelopes at the different distributing agencies throughout the country. Elsewhere, we print the departmental notice.

NEW STAMPS FOR RUSSIA.

That the Russian post office employees have refused to cancel the new stamps bearing the portraits of the rulers, because they feared to violate the respect due to the rulers by smirching their faces with ink, is well known, but inasmuch as the machines on which the former stamps were printed have already been taken apart and the supply of older stamps is a very limited one, it was feared that the supply would give out before new stamps could be printed. To meet this emergency, the Russian Minister of Posts has decreed

W. H. PECKITT'S 10% NEW ISSUE SERVICE

The first few months of the year 1913 have brought forth many novelties for the collector of new issues, and those who are members of an efficient New Issue Service will have received a large number of interesting new stamps at only a trifling cost over face.

Looking to the frequent changes that have occurred in Colonial stamps in recent years, changes of watermark, of colour, necessitated by Postal Union requirements, etc., etc., any outlay in keeping a collection up-to-date is well spent.

Among the many Colonial stamps that the above Service has distributed in the first three months of this year, may be mentioned the following:—

Gilbert & Ellice, Five values.
Western Australia Provisional.

Sudan, 10p O.S.G.S.
British East Africa.

Ceylon, 2c to 50r.
St. Vincent.

Morocco & Levant upon the new printings of English stamps.
Australian Commonwealth.

Sierra Leone, ½d to 10sh.
India, 5r, 25r, Etc., Etc.

South Australia, 5sh Crown & A wmk.

Etc., Etc., Etc.

The above service is not only economical but prompt and efficient, and all details with regard to its working will be sent post free upon application.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding pre-cancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDREDGE, Attleboro, Mass. Specimens must accompany chronicle, with self-addressed stamped envelope for return of the same. Please note these rules.

AUSTRALIA.—Frank Kocher has shown us a letter card from Australia with the new kangaroo stamp. On the back is a picture showing Queensland scenery.

Whitfield King & Co. have shown us further values of the new Kangaroo set.

Adhesives.

4d orange.
9d violet.

BAVARIA.—Ewen's Weekly says that owing to the accession of the new Regent, a new series of postage stamps is shortly to be issued.

BULGARIA.—Maury's Collectionneur says that the 50s orange postage due stamp of 1902-04 having become exhausted, the 50s blue of 1884, perforated and imperforate have been placed in use again.

CANAL ZONE.—Gerald D. Bliss sends us the new post card from the Canal Zone, the design of the stamp being a modified copy of the current 1c adhesive. The overprint "Canal Zone" reads down, and is in much larger type than the current adhesives.

Post Card.

1c green on white.

CAYMAN ISLANDS.—Harry E. Huber and Whitfield King & Co., also report the 1d, 4d and 6d values of the King George set, reported from "Specimen" copies in No. 1160. The stamps were issued in the latter days of February. Mr. Huber calls attention to inclusion of the 4d, which was discontinued in the King Edward "Postage and Revenue" series, after the first consignment of 2400 stamps had been sent out. The ink used for printing the duty plate of the 6d, has more carmine in the purple than was formerly the case.

ECUADOR.—Frank C. Davis has shown us a cover franked with a diagonal half of the 20c yellow green of 1907, used as 10 cents. The letter was postmarked "Mar. 4, 1913."

EGYPT.—Gibbons Weekly says that the designs of the new series have been accepted, and an order for the new stamps placed with De La Rue & Co. for the stamps. There are to be nine values as follows: 1m, Nile boats; 2m, the Goddess Hathor; 3m, Temple of Luxor; 4m, view of Fayoum; 5m, the Sphinx; 10m, Colossus of Memnon; 20m, Portico of Karnak; 50m, The Citadel; 100m, Assouan Dam.

FALKLAND ISLANDS.—Frank C. Davis has shown us a cover from the islands with ½d and 1d King George stamps and a 1d stamp of Great Britain. This letter stamp has not been considered as enough for postage, as the letter was rated up and 4 cents postage due charged.

Adhesives.

½d green.
1d scarlet.

HONDURAS.—Hermann Focke has shown us the new 5c provisional chronicled in No. 1161, and also a 6c provisional, made in the same way by surcharging the 1c steamer type.

Provisional Adhesive.

"6 cts" on 1c violet.

INDIA.—Edwin F. Sawyer has shown us the new registration envelope for India. The design shows a large oval with crowned portrait of King George, similar to the adhesives. The inscription reads "India Registration, Two Annas—Postage Half Anna," around the frame.

Registration Envelope.

NEW SOUTH WALES.—Frank Kocher has shown us a cover from Sydney, which has been franked by a cancellation mark extending across the envelope giving "Sydney," "N. S. W.," "Ja 6," "1913" and "Paid ½d" all let into the lines. These inscriptions are placed in two groups and are repeated constantly. This is even simpler than the precancels, though giving more work for the post office clerks.

NEW ZEALAND.—Ewen's Weekly states that the new design for the stamps of this country is an adaptation of the old English penny black. The King's head appears with the crown above on a background of small diamonds. Maori carving at the sides, and the numerals in the two lower corners. The stamps will be printed at Wellington.

NICARAGUA.—Hermann Focke has shown us a new provisional from this country. As predicted a long time ago, the 35c value has become unnecessary owing to the advancing of the foreign postage rate from 35 cents to 50 cents. The surcharge reads "Vale 15 cts.—Correos 1913." in two lines in black.

Provisional Adhesive.

15c on 35c green and chestnut.

QUEENSLAND.—Edwin F. Sawyer has shown us a registration envelope, which we have not previously chronicled. The design is the same as the Victoria Registration Envelope of 1891, but with embossed portrait of King Edward facing to the right.

Registration Envelope.

3d red on buff.

RUSSIA.—Maury's Collectionneur chronicles a full series of stationery with stamps of the commemorative designs. The envelopes and letter cards are printed on blue paper.

SAMOS.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the permanent set for this island, surcharged "Ellas," as noted last week. The firm also report having seen another set, all high values, a large oblong design showing a monastery in the centre, each value having "J. S." written across the face.

Adhesives.

1d brown.
2d blue.
5d olive.
10d yellow green.
25d red.

Maury's Collectionneur gives the following as the dates of the issue of the various decrees, authorizing the different sets of postage stamps for the Island.

1. By decree No. 1, dated Nov. 14, 1912, old style, the Government of Samos authorized the emission of three values, 5, 10 and 25 lepta, with map of Samos. The stamps are 30x40 mm., gummed and imperforate. As only a small quantity of this series was issued, the stamps are already scarce.

2. Nov. 26, 1912, decree No. 16 authorized the issue of a permanent series, 25x35 mm. in size, with head of Hermes. There were five values, 1, 5, 10, 25 and 50 lepta. These stamps were gummed and perforated, and were issued in limited quantities.

3. Nov. 29, the 5l stamp having become exhausted, the Government of Samos permitted the use of the 10l red cut in diagonal halves, each half serving as 5 lepta.

4. Dec. 22, by decree No. 45, these stamps were suppressed, and a new permanent set issued from the same design, but bearing the word "Ellas" in surcharge. This series was augmented by a 1d value. It was described in No. 1161 of MEKEEL'S.

5. Jan. 4, 1913, by decree No. 3, a new commemorative set was issued, the high value set noted above. Maury's says the written surcharge is "D. S."

TURKEY.—Right on the heels of the Turkish reverses in the Balkans comes the issue of a whole new set of stamps, including unpaids and stamps surcharged for use in the foreign mail, like Scott's Nos. 128 to 131. This set was announced nearly a year ago, but the issue has been postponed from time to time. The signature of the Sultan has been relegated to a subordinate place, appearing at the top in a small circle, the central part of the stamp being occupied by a picture of the Central Post Office at Constantinople. The stamps are very crudely designed and executed. The design shows a small oblong rectangle, with the Star and Crescent in the upper corners, and the Sultan's signature between, Turkish inscriptions at either side and below the central picture and the value in figures in the lower corners. The whole design has a lined back ground, which gives it a confused appearance.

The stamps are printed on unwatermarked paper, and are perforated 12. We have been shown these stamps by the New England Stamp Co.

THE TWO MISSING PARCEL POST.

W. T. Kimball of Lawrence, Mass., has shown us the new 50c parcel post stamp, plate number 6423. A curious feature in connection with this particular sheet is that it has the word FIFTY in large sans serif capital letters upon the margin near the plate number.

We are also advised that a sheet of the 4c has been seen with a large FOUR printed on the margin in a similar manner. So near as we can ascertain, not all sheets are marked in this fashion, and we shall hope to give further information in regard to this matter shortly.

W. L. Aldrich informs us that the 3c parcel post stamps were to be placed on sale April 9. He has received advice from Washington to that effect.

OUR REVIEW.

We have received the initial number of a quite pretentious magazine from our friend, Jun Kobayagawa of Tokio, Japan, entitled The Numismatic and Philatelic Journal of Japan. If this first issue is a sample of what subscribers are to look forward to during the year, we are sure they will not be disappointed and will receive a valuable and helpful magazine whether they be stamp or coin collectors. On the other hand the publishers are to be congratulated on the type of periodical they have put forth and we hope their effort will meet with the success it deserves.

The number before us is bi-lingual, the two languages lending themselves readily to this arrangement as the Japanese begins at what is to us the back of the book and reads toward the front. The contents include an account of the Third International Archeological Congress, a chronicle of the new coin and stamp issues for China, illustrated with two fine autotype plates, the Revenue Stamps of Japan, a rare block of 1871 Japanese stamps (with autotype illustration), and editorials and communications, all appearing in both English and Japanese. The English section also includes an article on the new Tibet issue, and the Japanese section an article on Korean Coin-charms and Amulets. The whole number is very interesting to students of the Orient. The Editor is H. A. Ramsden, F. R. N. S., and the Publishers, Jun Kobayagawa Co., 34 Water St., Yokohama, Japan. Subscription $2.00 per year.

"The Beginner's Guide," our Handbook Number Two, by Bertram W. H. Poole has just been issued and we believe that no more necessary and valuable a pamphlet, its object considered, has ever been offered. Readers of Mr. Poole's department in the WEEKLY are aware of the instructive qualities of his work; and in the Guide there are forty-four large pages of two columns each that give all the rudimentary instruction in philately. Mr. Poole has done his work effectively; and now we can give the beginner who wants to know about stamps a text book that cannot be excelled in the character of its material and the manner in which it is presented. The book, we may add, is a choice product of the Jewett press. The Beginner's Guide: A Comprehensive Treatment of the Scientific Hobby of Stamp Collecting and Conveying Much Information of More Than Ordinary Interest to the General Reader, by Bertram W. H. Poole. Price 25 cents; published by the Mekeel-Severn-Wylie Company, Boston, Mass.

Gold medals were donated by the International Philatelisten Verein, Dresden, and Mr. John N. Luff. Further donations of medals are acceptable; the prices of these were fixed as follows:—grand gold medal, $100; gold medal, $40; silver gilt medal, $12; silver medal, $10.

Prospective visitors intending to attend the exhibition should apply for reservation, rates and other information to Mr. J. M. Bartels, Chairman Information Committee, 99 Nassau Street, New York.

We hope to print and circulate an edition of 100,000 of the Official Exhibition Catalogue, advertising in which owing to large edition will be of permanent value. Limited space is offered to stamp dealers for philatelic advertising at reasonable prices. It is recommended that early application for space be made. Write for information to Eugene Klein, Chairman Publicity Committee.

SUSPENSION OF PRODUCTION OF SPECIAL-REQUEST STAMPED ENVELOPES.

Office of Third Asst. P. M. Gen., WASHINGTON, March 27, 1913.

1. The stamped envelope factory at Dayton, Ohio, has been temporarily closed on account of damage to the plant resulting from the recent disastrous floods. Pending repairs, the supplying of special-request and office-request stamped envelopes will be suspended. It is believed that production will very soon be resumed, and notice will be given when the Department is again prepared to fill requisitions.

2. Postmasters will notify purchasers of special-request envelopes that their orders will be accepted and forwarded to the Department subject to such delay as may attend the resumption of operations by the factory.

3. The Department has an ample supply of plain, unprinted stamped envelopes at the several distributing agencies throughout the country, which will be issued, so long as they last, in response to requisitions from postmasters on Form 3201 for sale to purchasers desiring them pending the filling of orders for special-request envelopes. Any printing on such plain envelopes must be done by local printers at the expense of purchasers.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 231, Altadena, Calif.

THE STAMPS OF THE GERMAN EMPIRE.
Baden.

THE FIFTH ISSUE.

At the end of 1867 the North German Postal Confederation, which was then formed, established a new scale of rates to take effect from January 1st, 1868. The rate on letters weighing under ¼ oz. was fixed at 3kr and that on heavier letters up to ½ oz. at 7kr. The latter rate also applied to letters sent to Switzerland, Belgium, and North America by way of Prussia, and later on it was extended to other foreign countries. The necessity of creating a new stamp of 7kr was at once apparent. The Baden Post Office in recommending the issue of this new value at the same time suggested the withdrawal of the 18kr value and reported that there was sufficient stock on hand of the 6kr, 9kr, and 30kr to last for years. The stock of the 18kr was, therefore, withdrawn and destroyed as we have already stated. It was decided to issue a 7kr stamp as recommended and Maier—an engraver of Karlsruhe—was entrusted with the task of preparing the die. As the inscription "POSTVEREIN," on the right-hand side of the frame, no longer applied, the word "FREI-MARKE" was substituted. It will be noted that the inscriptions are in thicker type than before (especially as regards "BADEN") and the value at foot is contracted to "KR". The work is altogether much inferior to that of Kurz. At the same time it was decided to alter the designs of the 1kr and 3kr to correspond with the new 7kr. It would appear that Maier only engraved one matrix, with the numerals of value omitted, and from this the three secondary dies required were constructed.

Although the new rates were effective as from January 1st, 1868, the 7kr stamps were not ready for issue until October and the modified 1kr and 3kr were issued about the same time. An official notice, dated September 1868, was circulated to the post-masters intimating them of the change of design, viz:—

A printing of three sorts of stamps from a new die will be ready this year. These are the stamps of 1 and 3 kreuzer, and a new value of 7 kreuzer. The design is the same as before, except that the word FREIMARKE is repeated in the right side of the frame, in place of POSTVEREIN as heretofore. The value is indicated by a numeral, and the letters KR.

The colours of the new issue are—1 kreuzer green, 3 kreuzer red, as before, and the 7 kreuzer blue, but of a darker tone than the present 6 kreuzer stamp. The delivery of the new 1 kreuzer stamp to the Post-offices has already begun, and that of the 3 kreuzer will follow as soon as the old stamps in the chief depots have been exhausted. The delivery of the 7 kreuzer stamps will follow at the beginning of the next quarter, and, unless otherwise ordered, in the quantities necessary for each of the Grand Ducal Post-offices.

There were further printings of these stamps in the years 1869, 1870, and 1871. On December 31st of the latter year the Postal Administration of Baden ceased to exist as a separate institution, and on January 1st, 1872, its stamps were superseded by those of the German Empire.

THE LAND POST STAMPS.

In 1859 a rural post was established in Baden, its chief object being to operate a messenger service connecting rural villages which had no post-offices of their own with the nearest State Post-office. It had an organisation of its own, distinct from the State Post, but to which, nevertheless, it was an adjunct. In the year 1862 a Grand Ducal decree was issued, under the date of 26th September, authorising improvements in connection with this rural post and 1kr, 3kr, and 12kr stamps were ordered to be prepared for its use. These stamps are of similar design showing large numerals in the centre with "LAND-POST" above and "PORTO-MARKE" below. An ornamental border completed this very unpretentious design. All were printed in black on yellow wove paper and perforated 10. The inscription "Porto-marke" indicates they were postage due stamps but they were not postage due stamps in the ordinary meaning of the term. These labels were used solely in connection with the rural post and in addition to being used to collect deficient postage, they were used to collect the delivery charge on parcels, and for various purposes such as the collection and conveyance of money. At this period the Post-office collected taxes and, in some instances, debts due to tradesmen. For this service it charged a commission fixed at the rate of 1kr per florin and this commission was denoted by means of these rural post stamps. The stamps were not sold to the public but were used only by officers of the rural post.

The stamps are scarce used, especially the 12kr but they are common enough unused owing to the fact that in 1873 Julius Goldner, of Hamburg, purchased the remainders consisting of 322,800 of the 1kr, 455,400 of the 3kr and 160,000 of the 12kr.

SHORT REPLIES.

"Subscriber" (Douglas, Wyo.).—The best way of removing stamps from envelopes is to float them face upwards in a shallow bowl of luke-warm water.
(2) The letters "o. g." are a contraction for "original gum."

A. B. (Minneapolis).—Such envelope freaks as you mention are not uncommon and are worth little more than normal varieties.

D. H. (Scranton, Pa.).—See reply to "A. B."

E. V. (Minneapolis).—The stamp you describe is a German private local.

SERIOUS EXCHANGE

WANTED on Approval Sheets with Medium and Advanced Collectors and Dealers

In the future we intend to greatly enlarge the scope of our stock and we therefore offer IN EXCHANGE for stamps, suitable for our use, of all countries but specially U. S. A. Departmental and General Issues, Hawaii and English Colonies:

All the Stamps of Spain, Spanish West Indies, Cuba, Porto Rico, Philippines, Rio De Oro, Fernando Poo, Elobey, Guinea

Used, unused and also in pairs, strips, blocks and on original covers which hitherto we have made our speciality and of which we certainly hold the largest and most important stock in the world.

Within the last few years we have made purchases exclusively in these stamps for sums exceeding $100,000 of which the most important were:

The entire magnificent stock of the firm Antonio Vives of Madrid for which we paid $20,000, the celebrated specialized collections of Count de San Simon and Miguel Galvez also of Madrid, the whole stock of M. T.—of Barcelona, the greater part of the Spanish stocks of the late dealers Isaac Blanco and Jules Bernichon of Paris.

Exchange Is Made On The Following Conditions:

(I) We do not demand any discounts, as we do not indulge in speculation and only wish to form a stock of foreign stamps in the way of exchange. Stamps must therefore be quoted by both parties at catalogue prices (Scott, Gibbons, Kohl, Senf, Yvert, etc.).

(II) We take only stamps in perfect condition catalogued at least 10 cents up to $100 each. We can use up to 20 specimens of the medium priced stamps but we will be glad to furnish, if wanted, only one specimen of any desired kind. Selections under $20 Catalogue Value are not accepted.

(III) We answer always within 8 days by sending a selection of at least equal value. All the stamps remain the property of the sender until contra value has been wholly selected.

(IV) All remittances must be registered or insured.

them, we had no trouble in arriving at prices satisfactory to both.

There are some lines of stamps which look exceedingly good in the catalogues but have greatly depreciated in the actual market. I recall one issue which is priced in Gibbons' catalogue at nearly $40. I bought it at a supposed bargain price of $15, but had to sell it for considerably less for the simple reason that the demand for that kind of stamps is practically nil. If you have bought foolishly, you must not expect a prospective customer to do the same thing for your benefit. During later years my philatelic studies have included a study of stamp values and I have found the little knowledge I have acquired along that line very serviceable.

If you are a man depending on a moderate income and have those that are depending on you, you should pay as strict and businesslike attention to your philatelic money transactions as you do to those of your household. You should not sacrifice your stamp collection any more than you would your house or your furniture. If you have a good collection and need cash in a hurry, borrow the money or sell something else. In the meantime, if the collection has to go, make a careful estimate of values, decide on a price which is fair to the purchaser as well as to you, and then stick to that price even if it should suffer a few rejections. At a dealer's request, I sent a small part of a collection stating my price. The dealer glanced over the stamps and wrote me, that he failed to see in the stamps the amount asked by me. At the same time he made me an offer at a considerably lower figure. I knew that my price was fair, and wrote him pointing out several items which he evidently had overlooked and also furnished him with the latest market quotations on some items not priced in the current price lists. His reply was a courteous "thanks" for the information and his check for an amount acceptably near my own figure.

If, in your own mature opinion, the condition of your stamps is not what it should be, you should not expect the prospective purchaser to differ with this opinion. Remember, that next to rarity, condition is the chief consideration in present day stamp dealings. Even a poor quality of hinges will detract from the value of your collection. Fine stamps slovenly and carelessly mounted, do not look as attractive as the medium quality mounted with care. A collection that is good and looks it, stands a far better show than one which is good but does not look so. Even the prosaic, professional dealer has an eye for beauty—sometime.

NEW ORLEANS ACTIVE.

There was a doubling in the activities of the New Orleans Stamp Club Tuesday evening, April 1, the occasion being the regular monthly meeting of the "adhesives" and the first semi-annual dinner. Both conclaves—mental and material—were called at the Old Hickory, and in the latter direction the supply of alimentary goods was all that could be desired. It is not necessary to go into the minutia of the menu—from appetizer to the cafe noir, the tables were swept clean, even the crumbs being an invisible quantity.

The business of the meeting, which preceded the dinner, was rather social in its way than creating any new ideas as regards the study of philately. The usual swapping of duplicates and auctioning off of books and sheets was supplemented by discussions of rare finds that had been made by the individual members, and universal execration of the attitude of the United States courts in confiscating the plates from which the unusually artistic stamps, advertising the international exhibit to be held during October in New York had been printed, and, as one member put it, the attitude smelled to the gods as one rather of envy than founded on any basis of public safety. This view was based on the present issue of parcel post stamps, which require the postal clerk to have a magnifying glass to distinguish between the 1-cent and the $1 "sticker."—Picayune.

OUR CATALOG HUNT.

The interest in our catalog hunt was splendidly maintained, and a great many entries received. It will be remembered that in our issue of Feb. 8 we published a list of thirty-eight questions based on errors of a typographical nature found in the Standard catalog.

Some of these questions were very difficult to answer, as evidenced by the fact that not a single complete correct list was received tallying with Mr. Hunt's list submitted when the questions were published. For the benefit of the contestants we publish herewith Mr. Hunt's list:—

1. P. 515, Note (163)	20. P. 550, 260b
2. " 91, (204)	21. " 670, last word

18. " 740, (13a)	37. " 481, (20c)
19. " 891, (Cyprus 65)	38. " 493, (20c)

The two best lists submitted were from Marshall S. Howard, Vancouver, Wash., and A. E. Stockin, Loomis, N. Y. Both of these contestants, however, failed in their answer to No. 2. Bolivia, page 110, was given as the answer in both cases, when according to Mr. Hunt's list the word is to be found in the note under 204 on page 91. Both of these lists are in such excellent form that we regret our inability to award the first prize to either Mr. Howard or Mr. Stockin.

The following contestants had a complete correct list with one exception, though the entries possessed less merit than the two above referred to:—

James Lewis Howe	Walter G. Grueby
F. N. Chevalier	B. G. Bushnell
P. C. Pikarske	Harry L. Newton
D. B. Gawthrop	G. E. Fountain
Wm. E. Looser	F. L. Bush
E. J. Linson

To all of these contestants, thirteen in number, we have sent a copy of our new Poole book, "The Stamp Collector's Guide".

The following contestants entered complete lists with two exceptions:—

O. H. Eidsor	J. J. Prendergast
Kate M. Burke	L. D. Horton
Mark H. Harris	A. G. Johnson

To all of these contestants we are sending the book, "The Making of United States Stamps", the Linn handbook by F. E. Goodwin.

The following answered all but three:—

Chas. W. Hall	H. C. Burns
E. B. Charman	J. H. Raymond

These contestants missed on four:—

T. W. Embley, M. D.	A. R. Mengel
---------------------	--------------

There were a dozen other contestants having five or more incorrect. We feel that the contest was keenly appreciated and as soon as space will permit we promise our readers something further of this kind.

PHILADELPHIA STAMP COMPANY,

1904 CHESTNUT STREET

PERCIVAL FARRISH, PRESIDENT

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

OFFICIAL INFORMATION ABOUT PARCEL POST MARGINAL INSCRIPTIONS.

I am in receipt of your letter of the 9th instant, in which you state that on a sheet of the 50-cent parcel post stamps you note the word "FIFTY" in large capital letters on the lower margin near the plate number, and request me to advise you whether this is found on all sheets of the 50-cent, and if not, the reason for its being on this particular sheet which you have. You further request to be advised whether a similar inscription is found upon the other values; has the same been used from the beginning of the series, and whether this word appears upon the bottom margin only, or upon all sides of the sheet.

In reply I beg to state that parcel post stamps are printed 180 stamps to the sheet. There are 18 stamps printed from the top to the bottom, and 10 stamps across the sheet. These large sheets are cut into four small sheets containing 45 stamps each, the same as are sold at the different post offices throughout the country.

The word, as in the case which you inquire about, "FIFTY" occurs eight times upon the large sheet, and when these large sheets are cut into smaller sheets of 45 stamps each, this word would occur twice on each sheet, but the positions would be varied according to the location of the quarter sheet of 45 stamps. For instance, the left hand upper quarter would contain the word on the lower part of the left hand margin of the sheet, and on the right hand side of the top margin; the right hand upper quarter, the word would be on the left hand side of the top margin, and the lower part of the right hand margin; the lower left hand quarter, the word would occur on the upper part of the left hand margin, and on the right hand side of the bottom margin, while in the last, or lower right hand quarter, the word would occur on the upper part of the right hand margin and on the left side of the bottom margin. These words were not originally placed upon the parcel post stamps but were afterwards put upon all sheets of the different denominations for the purpose of instantly calling the attention of postmasters to the denomination of the different stamps.

J. E. RALPH, Director.

KNICK-KNACKS.

"I bought at auction a stamp described with 'two slight tears' but when I saw the yawning chasms, my tears were large and copious," babbles Embossed Emil. Answer the telephone, Emil.

"Some collectors grope their way through darkness," begins a philatelic scribe who, we suppose, will lead up to the recommendation of some infallible eye remedy.

A stamp society announces "A Friendly Chat on some Postage Stamps" in its program, thereby reassuring the timid members who may have anticipated the settlement of moot points a la "Society on the Stanislaw."

The only reason that some countries issue any unsurcharged stamps is that they must have unsurcharged stamps to surcharge. Simpod must have done this.

"What do I feel that I owe my stamps every time I look upon their happy faces?" asks a quillman batedly. An apology, we should say.

Old Doc Dodder says that a vivid imagination is helpful in stamp collecting.

It certainly loans a picturesque quality to the tales of the stamps that one once had.

"Some stamps elude my grasp most mysteriously," complains Roundabout, the human element writer. He should put sand on his hands.

Most philatelists are optimists, some one says. Sure; one of them admits in his catalogue that a stamp with "piece missing, centered north and heavily canceled" is "otherwise fine."

An advertiser says that the increased cost of living has not affected the price of stamps but much as we love the "little bits of paper" we cannot eat them.

A philatelic scrivener has discovered the fourth dimension. At least he whispers that "it is as important to remember the stamps that you have not got as it is the stamps you have."

"Stop my paper. I have received one copy and that is enough, as I want to qualify as the shortest term subscriber on your books. Regards to the five-year subscriber," writes a chap who interests us strangely.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from Mrs. W. H. Cutler, John Fischer (5), W. A. Cain.

—We are advised by Clarence W. Kline that the DeWitt-Clinton High School in N. Y. City, considered one of the best preparatory schools in the U. S., has for several years had a philatelic society,—and a live one, too.

—H. V. Blackburn, West Toronto, Canada, desires us to state that he has resigned the secretaryship of the Canadian Philatelic Association. Mr. Blackburn filled the duties of his position with energy and zeal and it is a matter of regret that his efforts were not crowned with success.

—"Within the past two weeks I read a short article to the effect that ads in a weekly stamp paper are 'dead' in two or three weeks, while in a good live monthly magazine their life is extended to six months or more. Well, that may be so, but just the same, one adv of mine in an October issue of the WEEKLY was still very much alive Dec. 9, when 3 cash replies came in. My 36 l. advertisement Feb. 22 brought in 82 replies, the last one dated April 8."—CHAS. A. TOWNSEND.

—The daily papers relate the burning of the "Tattersall" Building at Stockholm, Sweden, involving a loss of over one million kronor. As this building housed the permanent headquarters of the Philatelic Society of Sweden with its valuable library, collections and fine equipment there is fear that further news will indicate that the Society has suffered a staggering loss.—L. H. KJELLSTEDT.

—James M. Prendergast advises us that the N. Y. edition of the Illustrated London News for March 22 contained a full page illustration "Freaks of Philately," gotten up in splendid form. Mr. Prendergast says that it is well worth the price of the paper, 15c.

—Julian Park sends us greetings from Ancon, Canal Zone. He is enjoying a tropical holiday, visiting Costa Rica, Guatemala and other points in Central America. He writes that the Zone seems to have a goodly number of collectors.

—The 3c parcel post has appeared. Several readers have advised us of this

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS.

It is now necessary for us to make Saturday the day for final receipt of advertising copy instead of Monday as in the past. The reason for this is found in the fact that our large edition of 7200, severely taxes the mailing facilities of the office and we must go to press Tuesday of each week instead of Wednesday. As the paper is printed in Portland, some 115 miles away from Boston, it will be seen that our plan is necessary to enable us to return to the early mailing so much appreciated by our readers. Remember the day—Saturday.

Not So Far Away.—The months roll by and the time of the International Stamp Exhibition at New York no longer seems so distant nor so wholly a circumstance for future rather than present consideration. Few months comparatively speaking intervene between now and next October when the Exhibition will be a reality and we beg of all philatelists to interest themselves in this most important philatelic event and to do their share in supporting the institution. The preparatory work is being done "excellently well" and to this fact will be due much of the success of the Exhibition.

To Resume.—We have been asked to insert the following notice dated April 9th that has been received from Washington: "The stamped envelope factory at Dayton, Ohio which was closed for a brief time on account of the flood, has resumed operations. Railroad transportation out of Dayton is not yet normal, and some delay in filling requisitions may be expected at first, but shipments will be caught up as soon as possible."

independent investigation on the solitary island of Wayoff on the subject of coral formation. I was the first to venture on the island which was uninhabited except for a colony of gorillas of gigantic size. Guns were useless against the huge beasts who had a trick of catching the most powerful bullets in their teeth. I was intent upon my work with my high-power magnifying glass in hand, when, looking up, I found myself surrounded by a band of the monsters, who stood gloating over me, before rending me to pieces. At this somewhat critical juncture, I opened my little pocket-album of duplicates, and with my glass, examined the stamps for the last time, as it seemed that it would be. I was looking at the St. Lucia commemorative, two pence brown and green, 1902, when I heard the most unearthly babel of sounds as the simian horde rushed away affrightedly. Never again did a gorilla venture near me and later from a sick gorilla that compassionately I nursed back to health, I learned, when I became to understand his rather crude language that the gorillas were obsessed with an intense antipathy to snakes and when they saw the snake, the fer-de-lance, on the St. Lucia stamp, greatly enlarged by my magnifier, they of course became panic-stricken. You will notice that I always have my glass with me."

Cheer Up.—Parnassus Penflip who has been sulking in his tent now sallies forth to do battle. He writes: "Of all the jewels in cavernous earth, gratitude is rarest. When fair philately spread her lure I yielded to her, feeling serene that my obeisance would be recognized with meet applause but how has the false philatelic crew repaid my homage? I gave the best that was in me to you all but what did I receive in return? The postmaster-generalship? No. Have I been elected the dean of the Academy of Philatelic Immortals? No. Have I been chosen to write the dedicatory ode to the New York Stamp Exhibition? No. Have I been nominated for the presidency of the American Philatelic Society? No. Have I been paid even a lowly pistareen for my literary triumphs to which is attributable your recent great increase in circulation? No. I answer in the tones of a stentor; and so, I say, a pest and a scourge on you." From the foregoing, we gather that Parnassus is slightly vexed probably because we sent him a notice saying that if he did not renew his subscription at once, his name would be taken from the list.

An Explanation.—Two covers, bearing a three cent, 1869 and three-cent, 1870, respectively, sent from Turkey, as the postmark form, "American Mission, Constantinople," with date, attests, have been shown us with the following explanation. At that time, mail from Turkey, particularly that emanating from unbelievers, could not be trusted to the Turkish postoffice with any feeling of security and as American travelers and others patronized the postoffice at the American Mission, it attained no little importance as a postal medium. The mail was postmarked with the impression at the Mission and carried to New York on reliable vessels, whence the domestic rate of postage paid the charge to the destination of the mail in the United States. The stamps, which were applied to the upper right hand corners of the pieces of mail, were not postmarked and canceled by the government until their arrival at New York.

Strong Ticket.—At a recent meeting of the Chicago Branch One, American Philatelic Society the following ticket was nominated, headed by General C. A. Coolidge of Detroit, who at a previous meeting was named for the presidency. Board of Vice-Presidents, Alvin Good, H. C. Crowell and J. E. Rust, Cleveland; Secretary, Wm. E. Ault, Jeffersonville, Indiana; Treasurer, Chas. F. Mann, Chicago; International Secretary, L. H. Kjellstedt, Scranton, Pa., and Directors-at-Large, E. M. Carpenter, Massachusetts, and H. B. Phillips, California. We are pleased to find the name of Chas. F. Mann, Chicago on the list of nominees, in consequence of the wish of L. C. Hassler, the present capable treasurer of the American Philatelic Society, to be relieved from further service. For many years, Mr. Mann has been treasurer of the Chicago Philatelic Society and he has all the endowments of a successful financial administrator. This Chicago ticket is an admirable one, viewed from any angle, and so formidable is it in its strength that all opposition will be discouraged.

In Ward Thirteen.—Said the Attendant at the Asylum for the Addled: "Say, the chap that they brought in last is a bad case and it looks as though we shall have to put him in the rest-room with the key outside the door. Doc was not going to take him in at first but the wife and friends were so nice about it that he yielded but he is sorry now, I bet. This new fellow does nothing but think stamps, sleep stamps and talk stamps. All the other patients run away from him. His wife said that he began the day with a philatelic prayer and ended it with a philatelic meeting at night; and all day long, he read the stamp papers, sang philatelic songs and recited philatelic poetry. It must have been awful. No matter what question was asked him, he answered with a stamp joke. Finally, when he lectured on the street corner on the 'Pulse of Philately' and the police ran him in as some kind of cult leader, his friends came to bail him out, only to find him reciting number twenty-seven in his list of advantages of philately that he was giving his cell-mate, a poor old bum who could not get away. Sure, the fellow is happy but how about the rest of us?"

OUR REVIEW.

We believe that "The Making of United States Stamps" by Frank E. Goodwin, number one of Linn's Philatelic Handbooks, is one of the most important contributions ever made to the literature on the stamps of the United States. The little work of fifty or so pages does not cover ground that has been overly cultivated; in fact it is something of a surprise that the subject has not received more attention. The book goes into the heart of things and it gives the essential elements of the study of United States stamps. The practical side is shown and no one who is not in a position to know can estimate the volume of demand for knowledge on the very subjects of which Mr. Goodwin treats. From "Engraving & Printing" to "Government Coils," the chapters deal with vital topics; and we commend the little book to all. While one may not always agree to the last notch with everything that Mr. Goodwin says, yet until someone goes him better, we shall give him the laurel. Printer Linn has done his work well and gives the book a becoming typographical dress.

In celebration of the 25th anniversary of the founding of the Berliner Philatelisten Klub, 1888, a handsome souvenir volume has been issued by a committee, Dr. F. Kalckhoff, Dr. P. Pirl and Dr. E. Stenger. The volume of over three hundred pages is a superb presentation of the scientific aspect of philately, and too, of typography; and a notice will be given next week.

POOLE'S GREAT BOOK

The Stamp Collector's Guide

Now Placed on Sale — Price 25c

We cannot be too extravagant in our praise of this book. It is all that its name implies and is suited both for the advanced collector as well as the beginner. We have no hesitancy in affirming that this book will be a faithful companion, frequently consulted and of permanent value. Its many chapters are marvels of information, a veritable thesaurus of philatelic information.

UNITED STATES.—Writing from Saginaw, Mich., John J. Spencer sends us specimens of the 3c parcel post stamp, the first we have seen. He also reports the arrival of the 50c parcel post, two days before the 3c, which came to hand April 8. The 3c has the value in large capitals in the margin of the sheet, a feature recently seen in some of the other values. The plate number of the 3c is 6257. The design shows the side of a mail car, with the mail catcher in operation.

COLOMBIA.—Frank C. Davis has shown us a cover franked with two of the current 2c stamps and a third cut diagonally, and half used as 1c.

GUATEMALA.—Frank C. Davis writes: "I wonder if anyone has noted a peculiarity about the 'Official' perforations of Guatemala, in that they are almost invariably reversed; i. e., the stamp must be upside down, and the perforation read from the back of the stamp. In all that I have examined this condition obtains, with the exception of an unsevered pair of 50c, one of which is as above described and the other reading from the face of the stamp, normally. I also have a 20c perforated perpendicularly. Has anyone any information as to the correct manner of perforating these stamps?"

HONDURAS.—The Rev. Louis Voss has shown us the two provisionals chronicled in No. 1161.

INDIA.—Jaipur.—Edwin F. Sawyer has shown us a couple of envelopes from this state both ½a. One has the stamp of the type of 1904-06, and the other has the native imitation, as noted in No. 1119.

Envelopes.

½a olive bistre.
½a ultramarine.

Kishengarh.—Ewen's Weekly chronicles the issue of a new provisional 2 anna stamp. The Philatelic Journal of India says that it has been locally designed and printed, and is apparently to fill up a shortage of the regular issue, 2 annas, orange-yellow. The stamps are printed in four horizontal lines and rouletted. An uncoloured space divides the two upper lines of stamps from the lower ones, so that any vertical pair is tête-bêche.

Provisional Adhesive.

2a deep violet.

ITALY.—Mr. Schachne reports the receipt of the following entires:

Post Card.

10c red on cream, dated 12.

Letter Card.

5c green on gray, dated 12.

MAURITANIE.—The New England Stamp Co., Wm. L. Aldrich & Co., and Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the new stamps from this Colony. The shape is the horizontal oblong recently popular in French Colonials, one design being used for all values. The central picture shows a country scene with natives going to market leading native cattle laden with produce. The value in figures appears in the upper corners, the name of the Colony "Mauritanie" appearing at NICARAGUA.—Elbert B. Charman calls attention to the half hearted listing of the 2c, 3c, and 10c values of the locomotive set on page 559 of the 1912 Scott. As the full list in the Appendix did not contain these values, Mr. Dunning was justified in saying that they had not been listed.

William L. Aldrich & Co. have also shown us the new provisional chronicled in No. 1163.

SALVADOR.—In No. 1131 it was announced that new set of stamps was to be issued. Frank C. Davis has now shown us a cover with three of the new stamps, which have evidently been printed by the American Bank Note Co. The designs vary, showing a portrait in each case, and are very handsomely printed.

Adhesives.

1c dark blue and black; Jose Matias Delgado.
5c carmine and black; Francisco Morazan.
6c dark green and black; Rafael Campo.

SIAM.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us another value in the new set.

Adhesive.

SWITZERLAND.—An entirely new design of the international post card is reported by Mr. Schachne. The card has dividing face line, bears 3 lines of inscription and has 2 corner ornamentations between the second and third head lines. The same card has also been issued advertising the Swiss National Exhibition to be held at Berne in 1914.

Small Ads Page.

This column is for the use of our patrons who desire only a few lines of space. If you want to buy, sell or exchange, it is without doubt the best advertising medium in the world.

RATE.—20c per line, cash in advance. No display allowed. Six words to the line, including address. We offer 50 lines for $7.50, where cash is paid in advance. This space can be used at such times and in such quantities as may be desired.

We shall use every possible endeavor to protect our subscribers, but we cannot undertake to be responsible for unsatisfactory transactions. Advertisers against whom complaints are proven will be barred the further use of these columns.

Advertisers sending out approval selections must take precautions to secure satisfactory references. We cannot undertake to settle all the petty disputes arising from the wide-spread watering of approval selections.

A NEW ADVERTISER.

The name of Leonard Brand is not a new one to those who read English stamp papers. We have succeeded in procuring from Mr. Brand a series of advertisements, and we desire to give him just as good an introduction to our readers as possible. Mr. Brand writes: "I shall hope to advertise with you regularly. I have always found you Americans, with very few exceptions, good keen business men, who can decide upon what they want much more quickly than my Continental customers. I hope to develop a good business with your side of the world." We hope so, too.

THE GREAT DISASTER IN OHIO.

We take the liberty of quoting the following from a letter just at hand from Geo. W. Linn of Columbus. Mr. Linn will have the sincere sympathy of all our readers:—"I have your letter of March 28th and should have answered sooner but you probably read of the flood. My place was surrounded by 15 feet of water, everything soaked. My fine philatelic library of bound volumes, worth easily $500, was almost ruined, all stamps were under water and it will be some time before I am in shape to attend to things promptly. We have no gas as yet and I have a coal oil light on my desk."

Mr. Linn will attend to all correspondence at his earliest convenience.

THREE BOOKS YOU NEED.

Poole's "Stamp Collector's Guide," a book absolutely essential to every student of stamps. Price 25c only. This book will never be used as a premium offer.

Goodwin's "Postage Stamps of the U. S. Specialized." Already 40 pps. have been reprinted and the book may run to several times that number. Price will no doubt be 75c or $1.00, but the advance sale price is 50c. This offer will soon be withdrawn.

Poole's "Postage Stamps of Cook Ids." is the last word on the subject. Your library needs this pretty and comprehensive book.

Renew your subscription and add to your remittance the amount needed for one or more books.

ing and chronicling a thousand things absolutely worthless to preserve one of value. But all that belongs to a complete bibliography.

I cannot look upon my copy of "History of the Postage Stamps of the United States," by J. K. Tiffany, without bitterness of heart. It was sold to me for a "first," at a goodly price. A first, in the strict sense of the term, it is not,—or at least not according to the Lord Crawford catalogue, which conveys the information that a genuine first has a paper cover, and also a portrait different from that in the extended volume of later date. I have both editions in cloth bindings. The only recompense I have is that when this paper is read by one man he will appreciate why I no longer call him friend; for he knew.

Let me not forget my copy of the "Revenue Stamps of the United States," issued by the Boston Philatelic Society. It has served me well and faithfully, although it will not chronicle my one cent proprietary, first issue, imperforate.

Quite the finest thing in ornate typography is Walter Clarke Bellow's "Campeche: Some Notes on the Most Remarkable Postage Stamp Ever Issued." The volume is in folio, the paper deckle edges with the letter press and illustrations on separate sheets, pasted in. It is a most artistic and quite unique bit of book-making. Of this edition one hundred copies were printed, Mine is No. 53. My copy is enriched by a card from the friend who presented the volume, as well as a letter signed by the author. The card reads as follows:

"Accept with my best regards a copy of 'Campeche' that I have requested Mr. Bellows to send you. I know you will enjoy it, and I am pleased to send this ray of sunshine into your philatelic life." The card is signed by the managing editor of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS, who has been my friend more than a quarter century.

Other things there are,—books, brochures, periodicals,—but these enumerated are dearest to me of all, and so I set them forth that others may perchance find one or two titles that will aid them to possess a volume of real worth in one's philatelic journey.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

UNITED STATES VARIATIONS.

By FRANK E. GOODWIN.

Recently in examining a considerable number of United States stamps of the issue of 1851-57 for a St. Louis specialist, I found a 1 cent, perforated, which showed very plainly an inverted double transfer. Whether the stamp is type I or type II I am not certain, for the reason that the perforations cut into the design somewhat at the bottom. From its general characteristics, however, I believe it was printed from the type I transfer. In the lower label, with value, appears strong marks of the ornaments at the top of the stamp. These lines are far more distinct than in any of the stamps containing the double transfers I have seen.

It is well known that reversed double transfers occur in this issue. The manner in which it occurred is as follows: The plate maker started the transfer roll out of position. When he discovered his mistake he turned the plate over, with its face upon a flat surface, and hammered the back until the sunken lines had been removed—as he supposed. Then he shifted ends with the plate and proceeded to finish it. The first marks had not been entirely removed, and the traces remained. I have seen the stamp with "thorn" near the ear, showing the reverse, but the one just discovered is a new one to the writer.

When the office mail was delivered a few days ago one letter was "received in bad condition." It was sealed with a blue official seal of the postoffice. I was about to throw it away, having a number of these seals among my duplicates. To my surprise I noticed that this seal was rouletted vertically and perforated horizontally. I hastened to the postoffice to find others, but was disappointed. All of the seals to be found in the postal station were rouletted both horizontally and vertically. Has anyone found the part perf—part roulette as described? I would like to know more INTERESTED IN U. S. REVENUES?

CORNWALL COLLECTION TO BE SOLD.

Expert Stamp Prophets declare that a revival of interest in U. S. internal revenue stamps is near at hand. Frankly, I think so myself.

I have been fortunate in securing the magnificent specialized collection of revenues which has been gathered together for years by Mr.
F. R. Cornwall, of St. Louis, president of the
A. P. S. It was not generally known that Mr. Cornwall was possessor of an almost complete collection of these interesting stamps.
But such was the case.

The collection contains such rarities as 1 cent Proprietary.

$20 Probate of Will.

$500 second issue, blue black and red.

$1 Proprietary, 1871-75.

$5 ditto, perfectly centered, original gum, lightly cancelled with pen mark, catalogs $350.

$300, $500 and $1,000 Documentary, Spanish

War.

Many imperfs., part perfs. in unsevered pairs and strips. Inverts, plate numbers, etc.

Mr. Cornwall has always been a stickler for condition, and this collection reflects his tastes in this direction. Want lists can be largely filled on early orders.

Books of Revenues sent on approval to responsible collectors, at reasonable prices. No fancy discounts given, however, because every stamp is worth a place in any collection. Approval books sent out in the order of request, as received. State preference of issue, if any,

in application.

about it, and whether it is scarce or common, in that form.

Speaking of official seals, a friend in Pennsylvania has recently presented me with an oddity for my collection. It is the current blue seal, with double impression. The two impressions are about 1 mm. apart, and the lines are almost entirely obliterated. This has gone into my collection among a considerable number of other stamps sent me with the donor's compliments, in appreciation of the writings I have been "guilty of" in MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS.

The writer has frequently been informed that "experts" have knowledge of secret signs in the stamps of 1870-71 by which they can tell the genuine grilles, and that counterfeit grille can be discovered by the absence of these marks. I have seen an article written by an expert, or specialist, that to the practiced eye the condition of the print of the stamp was an infallible test of genuineness or the reverse, in that the genuine grille was applied to stamps printed from new plates. The above statements, I am satisfied, are wrong in the main. There are no "secret marks" which would separate the grille stamps from the ungrilled ones, as the stamps with and without grilles were printed from the same plates. Bogus grilles could be manufactured upon stamps showing no wear on the plates, for the reason that the first stamps printed in all denominations were not grilled.
The first stamps printed by the National Bank Note Company were without grilles, the embossing being applied later. This much I have learned from my own exhaustive study of the stamps of 1870-71.

KNICK-KNACKS.

"I have decided to collect all the stamps of the world," says a reader who should leave a few for the rest of us.

"I read that one should take the new issues up to the pound but I thought only stray dogs and such things were taken there," gurgles Embossed Emil.
Do you hear the patter of the rain,
Emil?

How many dairy farms are the original of that depicted on the fifty-cent Parcel Post? Replies will be fully tabulated, as the auctioneer says.

"What is the capital of Zululand?" was a question that stumped all the members at a recent Chicago Philatelic Society meeting. If we thought that all our readers did not know off-hand, we should tell.

"Philately is taking an up-shoot," says a writer who evidently thinks he is reporting a ball-game.

Says a scribe of the saccharine school: "To me my stamps are very dear." He should see what they are to a stamp dealer.

"I was looking over an approval sheet on the door-step on a sunny morning recently and left the stamps for a moment while I did an errand. When I returned, I found that those stamps that the chickens had not swallowed, they had pecked to pieces. What am I to do?" asks a rural reader. Ask the dealer if he will take chickens in payment.

"What I like about stamps is their variousness," chirps a reader, who should not forget their variegatedness as well.

A new stamp society has been started with ten officers and one member and the first business transacted was the exemption of officers from the payment of dues.

Truly, philately is becoming a complicated study, as we notice that a critic speaks of "colors and near colors."

"Philately sounds good to me," declares an ardent devotee but the trouble is that it is pronounced in so many different ways.

Old Doc Dodder says that the true inwardness of certain stamps is seen at a glance. Yep, Doc, those with thin spots.

OUR REVIEW.

British Postage Paid Stamps—an illustrated and priced catalogue of over 5000 varieties used between 1870 and 1912, by W. Hartree, M. A., is a comprehensive little work of over forty pages, devoted to a subject that is not understood clearly in this country. In the introduction, Mr. Hartree has fully explained the kind and character of the postage paid impressions and the page after page of fac-similes of the post pays show the varieties. The similarity of the British post paid to our "Permits" will be remarked; and we can appreciate the spirit that impels collectors in increasing numerical strength to interest themselves in these impressions. Indeed, we admit that there must be a fascination attending the gathering of these markings. From the foreword of the book, we learn that for many years after the introduction of stamps in 1840, "the public had the option of prepaying the postage in cash or by postage stamps." Gradually, the

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS.

It is now necessary for us to make Saturday the day for final receipt of advertising copy instead of Monday as in the past. The reason for this is found in the fact that our large edition of 7200, severely taxes the mailing facilities of the office and we must go to press Tuesday of each week instead of Wednesday. As the paper is printed in Portland, some 115 miles away from Boston, it will be seen that our plan is necessary to enable us to return to the early mailing so much appreciated by our readers. Remember the day—Saturday.

EDITORIAL.

Drawing It Fine.—The authorities are particularly zealous in enforcing the law prohibiting the reproduction of any postal certificate in fac-simile or similitude. From time to time, instances go in compelling the observance of the letter of the law are given in the press and commented upon with some amusement by collectors. The instance of the destruction of the plates of the New York Exhibition stamps is fresh in the minds of all philatelists. Recently, the Sherman House, Chicago, issued for artistic and advertising purposes, a handsome bi-colored commemorative label of which we shall have more to say next week; and while the exacting governmental critics could cite no valid objection to the elegant and elaborate design, yet they suggested that the stamps not be perforated so as to remove any similarity to the real postage stamps. So, while a few of the labels in question were perforated the ones that are now being distributed are rouletted.

In Ward Thirteen.—Said the Attendant at the Asylum for the Addled: "Yes, they brought in a chap this morning but he seems mild enough and I do not look for any trouble in handling him. For one thing he is a gentleman but it seems that his grey matter became gummed up over stamps or rather as he says, the symbolism of stamps. He takes a plain, ordinary stamp and will point out some little curly-cue in the design and say that it represents the secret history of the corrupt court of Cobbitch. If it happens to be a triangle, he will say that one side means something very mysterious; the second, an unknown power and the last side, a lost element and that taken all together, the triangle signifies that in 1922 the Zulus will seize Scotland. He asked me if I could see a dot on another stamp and when I imagined that I could, he said that it was a symbol denoting a submerged continent; and when I asked him why they did not raise it, he said, sober-like that if they did its inhabitants would over-run the world and make slaves of philatelists. The simplest line on a stamp has a wonderful meaning for him and he insists upon sharing his knowledge with any one who approaches. I suppose that his relatives really got tired of having him around and you cannot blame them very much."

* * *

Good for Him.—Count Lapp De Booz is speaking: "I had penetrated into the forbidden country of Pypan in quest of a new species of shell that I suspected was to be found on the shores of Lotus Lake when I was waylaid by the fanatical natives and borne to the court of the Kaduff. The Kaduff leered at me from his gem-studded throne and stroking his huge pet tiger, he said with rare insouciance: 'The white stranger has come and we shall take him in or rather, Mopso will. If, within the hour the stranger does not perform some startling feat or produce evidence to prove the boasted superiority of the white race, Mopso will dine on succulent white meat.' I was a bit surprised to hear the Kaduff address me in English and I said: 'What would you have me do, your dazzling dizziness?' 'Make me a likeness of Mopso, without using any tool or color,' said he with a sudden conceit and he laughed harshly as he thought of the seeming impossibility of the task. I was lead away to a solitary cell and dejectedly, I reached for my little book of duplicates for a last look at my beloved stamps. The first specimen to greet my eyes was one of the Perak tiger heads and I knew that I was saved. The court in full panoply has assembled to witness my discomfiture and death and Mopso was licking his chops in fond anticipation. With a deep salaam, I presented the stamp, the first ever seen in Pypan, on a golden salver. 'Great Jibboom,' exclaimed the Kaduff, 'surely this is black magic,' and he gazed transfixedly at the stamp with the perfect picture of his tiger, which was now snarling loudly because his prey had slipped through his cruel claws. The royal entourage was at my disposal now and I was showered with gems. Despite the entreaties of the Kaduff, who was not a bad fellow after you got to know him, I departed from Pypan, leaving no address, once I had enriched conchology with the discovery of the new shell. Who will blame me now for rather fancying the tiger head stamps?"

* * *

No Chance.—The bill prepared by a representative at Washington having for its object the substitution of ordinary postage stamps for the parcel post issue has little likelihood of a favorable reception as the special stamps are employed not for effect but because it is necessary to classify fourth class matter unmistakably for accounting purposes. It indeed would be ironical if the parcel post stamps were removed in favor of the regular stamps after the department had gone to extraordinary lengths to prepare them on comparatively short notice.

* * *

Something to Think About.—That the Goodwin articles have stimulated interest in United States stamps must be admitted and the way has been shown by Mr. Goodwin to individual study of the stamps of our country. Mr. Goodwin, enthusiastic in his regard for United States stamps hastens to share the results of his application with all collectors, thereby setting an example that should prompt emulation by those who advisedly are authorities on the stamps. Mr. Goodwin has opinions of his own and reading his manuscript on the thirty-cent, black, 1870 type, we find that he says that soft porous paper was used by the Continental Bank Note Company in 1878, as well as by the American Bank Note Company in 1879 and later. He bases his contention on postmarked copies showing the year 1878 plainly enough that undeniably are on soft paper but even so, there are some skeptics who can prove that the year printed in a postmark is not always wholly to be relied upon. It would be interesting to have confirmatory evidence of some other nature, in addition.

According to Our Records.—The Continental Bank Note Company used the steam-roller process in stamp printing from 1873 to 1877 but in 1877, the government officials let the contract to the Continental company with the proviso that the stamps be printed by hand-roller press; and under the new order the stamp product was greatly improved in appearance. In 1879, the American Bank Note Company used the soft paper which was best calculated for easy working on the steam-roller press; and in 1885, the authorities allowed the readoption of the steam-roller press and the results justified the change as the stamps of 1885 and the succeeding few years are fine examples of workmanship. It may not be said with finality, perhaps, that under no possibility could soft paper have been used in 1878, yet the hand-roller process, the use of which was enforced in that year, did not argue for the employment of soft paper. It has been maintained that the American Bank Note Company used hard paper as well as the soft, after the beginning of the contract but, we believe, the Continental stamps were never claimed before to have been printed on soft paper.

AUSTRALIA.—Ewen's Weekly chronicles another value in the "Kangaroo" set.

Adhesive.

2½d deep bronze blue.

Ewen's correspondent says that the stamps are almost universally condemned; the design is too much like a cotton manufacturer's reel label, or in fact any trade label. Also the paper is thin with little gum, and the colours weak (except the 2½d value). It is hard to sever the stamps without mutilating them; the sheets (of 240) are clumsy, in fact some of the Post Office officials call it "wall paper."

Yet according to the following letter to the British Australasian it would appear that some (a few) are satisfied with the new issue. The voice of the crowd unfortunately goes against them:—

"I was astonished to read your remarks concerning the new Australian stamp in your last issue under the heading 'A Shocking Stamp,' for I have heard nothing but complimentary remarks from my Australian friends on this side, both as regards the design and colour of the new penny stamp. Personally I find it very attractive, and the clearness and simplicity of the design is in pleasing contrast to the grotesque and laboured detail of the majority of postage stamps, or the shocking portraits which appear on some of them. The national ideal of a White Australia, and the Kangaroo, which is inalienably associated with our country, are most happily combined, on a stamp of not too startling colour, in such a manner that the country and the ideal are recognised at a glance. As to your assertion that the design has not a single friend, I venture to say that if you make further enquiries you will find a majority of Australians in London who approve and admire the new stamp."

AUSTRIA.—Ewen's Weekly is informed that the 5h, 12h and 25h have been issued on ordinary paper, have been placed on sale at the General Post Office, Vienna, March 22. The 5h and 12h are unchanged in color, but the 25h is now issued in pale ultramarine, instead of dark blue.

Maury's Collectionneur reports the issue of a 72h value in the design of the 50h of 1908, and reports that the 6h will appear in yellow bistre, the 10h will be changed from rose to carmine, while the 50h will be suppressed altogether.

Adhesives.

6h bistre yellow.
10h carmine.
25h pale ultramarine.
72h violet brown.

BELGIUM.—Maury's Collectionneur reports that the 2fr value has been issued with the larger portrait of the king.

ECUADOR.—Lemaire's Journal says that the 3c of 1907, with portrait of Gen. Robles has been issued with modified frame.

Adhesive.

3c orange and black.

CEYLON.—Whitfield King & Co. report the 5r and 10r values of the new set. The 20r, 50r, 100r and 500r have also been issued, but probably for revenue purposes only.

Adhesives.

5r black and green.
10r purple and black on red.

FRENCH COLONIES.—The Bulletin Philatelique says that the stamps surcharged for Madagascar, Mayotte, Anjouan, Grand Comore and Moheli, which were part of the 108 surcharges issued in November last, were not lost at sea, as stated by another journal. All the stamps were in the Treasury at Tananarive February 1. The same journal says that it is strongly proposed to go through the same operation of surcharges for the stamps of French Oceania and French West Africa when the new stamps have appeared. "We expect, then," says Maury's Collectionneur, "to see shortly a surcharge on the cap of Faidherbe or on the cranium of Balley; that will be, perhaps not very respectful!"

INDIA.—Kishengarh.—Maury's Collectionneur chronicles a provisional stamp of the value of 2 annas, lithographed by native printers. The portrait of the Rajah is turned three-quarters to the left and printed in an oval surrounded with branches of foliage. The frame is rectangular, the inscriptions reading, "Kishengarh State—Postage & Revenue—Two Anna," in both English and native characters. The stamps are printed in small sheets of 20 stamps, in four rows of five stamps, and are rouletted.

Provisional Adhesive.

2a violet.

Soruth.—Maury's Collectionneur reports the issue of two provisionals for this state, the 1a and 4a stamps of 1886 having been overprinted with new values in black.

Provisional Adhesives.

"3 Pies" on 1a green.
"1 Anna" on 4a red.

JAPAN.—Maury's Collectionneur says that the Japanese Government proposes to issue the new stamps in August. Prizes of 50, 100 and 200 yen have been offered for the best designs. The higher values are to be printed in two colors. The stamps will bear the Imperial insignia, the chrysanthemum flower.

A letter card has been issued with circular stamp with a large chrysanthemum for the centre piece.

Letter Card.

3 sen.

ITALY.—According to the Lemaire's Journal, the following new rules have been in force since March 1, for the interior postage:

1. In case of the loss of a registered letter, the allowance to the sender is only 10 lire.
2. For letters having a declared value, the additional charge is fixed at 5 centesimi per 100 lire; in case of loss the full declared value is paid.
3. The postage on samples is fixed at 4 centesimi for the first 50 grammes and 2 centesimi for each additional 50 grammes or fraction.
4. For journals and catalogues the charge has been advanced to 5 centesimi per 50 grammes.

The above indicates the addition of 4c and 6c stamps to the list, and the re-issue of the 45c which has recently been omitted.

There has already been issued a stamp of 10c of the form of the Express stamp for the Pneumatic Post.

NETHERLANDS.—For the first time in its history Holland is to have a set of official stamps. The current ½c, 1c, 1½c, 2c, 2½c, 3c, 5c and 10c stamps are to be surcharged "Armenwet" for use in connection with the administration of the pauper law. The stamps will not be placed on sale.

PANAMA.—According to Maury's Collectionneur, the Congress of Panama has authorized the issue of a special stamp of 2½ cents, September 25, 1913, in commemoration of the 400th anniversary of the discovery of the Pacific Ocean by Balboa.

RUSSIA.—The following is translated from Lemaire's Journal: By decree of February 7, the sale of the stamps commemorative of the third centenary of the Romanof Dynasty was suspended in all the Postoffices of the Empire. This unexpected measure caused a profound sensation in all classes, and they pretended that it was brought about by the protestations of the Holy Synod and the intimate advisers of the Emperor, who were unable to resign themselves to the idea of having the august portraits blotted out by the postal employees. They related also the emotion of the fanatical peas-

We do not yet know what was the true reason for the retirement of the Romanof series of stamps, but we are able to state that, before many days, in spite of the Holy Synod, in spite of the intimate advisers, in spite of the peasants and posters, the stamps will be put back into circulation.

LINN'S PHILATELIC HANDBOOKS

The first book is now ready—every book is on the subject of

UNITED STATES STAMPS

THESE BOOKS ARE BEING WRITTEN BY

MR. FRANK E. GOODWIN

The author of the articles on "Specialized United States" which have been appearing for several months past in Mekeel's Weekly. Mr. Goodwin is a thorough student, and has for the foundation of his manuscript for these books probably the most thoroughly specialized collection of U. S. Postage Stamps in the world, exclusive of the rarities; also a vast amount of new information has been communicated to him as a result of the publication of his articles on Specialized United States. All of this learning and knowledge of United States Stamps, gathered from the leading collectors of the country, is compiled in proper form, and is being published in these little handbooks. You get it all, revised, rewritten, and compiled in neat and proper form. The first book, number one, is entitled,

THE MAKING OF UNITED STATES STAMPS.

A thorough understanding of the methods of engraving and printing our stamps is necessary to give one the ability to understand many points which confront every true lover of stamps. This volume contains 64 pages, and is enclosed in a neat and attractive cover. The cover and title pages are printed in two colors. A frontispiece, the likeness of the author, gives the reader an introduction to the work. There are nine different chapters in this work, as follows: Chapter I, Historical; II, Engraving and Printing; III, Paper Making, (here is another insert—an elegant picture of a section of a paper-making machine; the view shows the part of the machine which carries the "Dandy Roll," and one can almost see it impressing the watermarks into the soft paper pulp); IV, Perforations; V, Double Transfers; VI, Grilles and embossing; VII, Errors; VIII, Watermarks; IX, Government Coils.

Book Number Two will be devoted entirely to the 1847 Issue. An even dozen fine drawings of varieties and types of the 5 and 10c stamp are shown. The finest example of a shifted transfer on the 10c is accurately illustrated.

Every collector of United States Stamps, whether a specialist or just a plain ordinary stamp collector will be highly pleased with these books, and the price is within the reach of everyone. To be sure of getting a copy of each book, you should place an advance order for the first ten books of the series. Simply copy the following and send with $1.50 and the first book will be sent you at once.

GEORGE W. LINN CO., Columbus, Ohio

Gentlemen: I enclose $1.50, for your series of Handbooks on United States Postage Stamps. This amount is full payment for the first TEN books of the series and if upon receipt of the first book, I am dissatisfied with it I am to return it to you at once and my money will be refunded. It is further agreed that in event a series of ten books is not issued, you agree to refund to me at the rate of 15 cents per number for any part of the ten books which do not appear.

(Sign your name and address here.)

The above order is a guarantee that you will get every one of the books as issued. We are sure there are some who will be disappointed because they will "put-it-off" too long and the supply will become exhausted. The price of single books is

FIFTEEN CENTS PER COPY. (Postage 2c Extra.)

Don't think you have all the information about U. S. Stamps in books which you now possess. This series of books is the greatest work on United States Stamps since the famous work by Mr. Luff. We estimate the expense of publishing the series at TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS, and with all due respect to the MASTERPIECES OF TIFFANY AND LUFF.

It is folly to believe that nothing new has been learned since their publication.

Remember Dr. Chase's work on the 3c 1851—also bear in mind that the past few years have been very productive of discoveries in U. S., there has been a "revival" in early United States.

Send a copy of the above order at once and the first book will be sent you by return mail.

DEALERS—An attractive advertising proposition with space in these books will be explained to you on request. ASK FOR WHOLESALE PRICES.

THE TRUTH IS OUT.

The world wide organization, of which the H. S. Powell Stamp Co. is one of the seven members and who have the exclusive sales right for the whole of North America for packet-collections, has been fully organized and blankets the globe.

This organization holds contracts for all stamps collected and received by practically all of the Missions and large commercial houses, representing a source of supply of postage stamps from every country and colony.

There are four main storing centers where stamps of all kinds and descriptions literally pour in by the ton. From these ware houses shipments are made to the three assembling establishments, located in Germany, England and the United States, as they are needed. Here they are sorted out by varieties, soaked from paper and the perfect stamps being placed in stock. In London there is one of these assembling establishments and here there is only found stamps of the British Colonials and here the British Colonial packet-collections are assembled exclusively. In the United States and Germany the variety packets and collections are assembled and only stamps three dollars or less are placed in stock. Those cataloguing more than this amount are exchanged for stamps that are not obtained through the regular channels, such as mint British, French, German and Portuguese Colonies. Every stamp is sold through the packet-collections that they assemble, cataloguing under three dollars.

Each of the seven concerns who are members of this organization, are the largest of their kind in their respective territories. Five of them are well known as general stamp dealers and publishers who also carry a full line of these high grade packet-collections. For various and apparent reasons the names of the other firms are not mentioned in this article. Each executive of each firm is a specialist in his respective line and together it spells s-u-c-c-e-s-s not only to each firm but to the organization as a whole. One member devotes his entire time in selling used stamps by weight and so one can realize the magnitude of this particular business it is mentioned that the annual sales exceed 200,000 kilos. Practically all Mission stamps and cheap mixtures that are sold today come from this source.

The first and last member to be mentioned is the H. S. Powell Stamp Co., of Storm Lake, Iowa. They are the only concern of the seven that sell the packet-collections exclusively and they sell them direct to the collector. We need say no more as they are well known to our readers. It will be of interest to all to know that H. S. Powell is the general manager of the organization and has reached this high position by his keen foresight into the future, no project being too big for him to handle and in his ability to organize and command.

H. C. LUPTON, TOLEDO, IOWA.

Two English advertisers have written us in regard to the responsibility of H. C. Lupton, who is reported as giving this publication as a reference. We wish to state that we have not authorized Mr. Lupton to use the name of our publication in this manner, and dealers will be governed accordingly.

—In the hemicycle of the Art Museum, Toledo, Ohio, Albert C. Stewart, president of the Toledo Stamp Company gave a talk, illustrated by stereopticon views, on "Stamps and Stamp Collecting" that was appreciated by the two hundred men and boys who were present. No little enthusiasm was manifested at Mr. Stewart's offering; and at the close of the remarks, a philatelic discussion was held in the club-room, attended by a swarming-bee.

AUCTION SALES!

Our next sale will be held on May 14th and includes an extra choice collection of United States stamps, singly, in pairs and blocks, on cover, etc. Condition is exceptionally fine and the sale is, without doubt, one of the best we have held this year. Catalogues are now ready and are free for the asking.

Following our custom of many years, we shall not hold sales during the summer months. During the past season we have proven conclusively that stamps in fine condition bring fancy prices, while mediocre material is in little demand. Our sales are noted for the unusually good condition of the stamps offered; in fact we often refuse to handle consignments of scarce stamps simply because the condition is poor.

We have two fine collections to be sold in the Fall and have begun work on them. It seems rather early to begin talking about Fall sales, but even now we can't handle anything further until after October 15th. Write us now in case you are thinking of selling and we will immediately reserve a date for you pending further correspondence.

Our charge for selling collections at auction is 20 per cent. of the amount realized. We make a special rate of 10 per cent. (Minimum charge fifty cents per stamp) for handling desirable single rarities.

There are many other features of our new selling plan which we shall gladly explain to you. Write us today and let us tell you the many ways in which our auction service excels that of any other firm.

HYPNOTISM!!

Would you possess that strange, mysterious power which charms and fascinates men and women, influences their thoughts, controls their desires and makes you supreme master of every situation? Life is full of alluring possibilities for those who master the secrets of hypnotic influence; for those who develop their magnetic powers. You can learn at home, win the friendship and love of others, increase your income, gratify your ambitions, give the most thrilling entertainment ever witnessed and develop a wonderfully magnetic will power that will enable you to overcome all obstacles to your success. You can hypnotize people—quick as a flash—put yourself or anyone else to sleep at any hour of the day or night—banish pain or suffering. Our book tells you the secrets of this wonderful science. It is enthusiastically endorsed by doctors, business men and society women. It benefits everybody.

Practical Lessons in Hypnotism and Magnetism.

This is the author's latest and best work. It gives the only course which starts the student out upon a plain, common-sense basis of hypnotizing people. Each of the many chapters contains practical lessons prepared especially for self-instruction, a feature never before offered the public. Prof. de Laurence teaches a method which will enable any student to go right into an audience without any subjects whom he has previously hypnotized, and give successful hypnotic demonstrations. He has demonstrated the fact that anybody who can read can learn his methods as contained in this valuable book; the instructions are plain and the methods are the result of long experience, careful research and much study. Thousands have mastered his instructions as taught in this book, and are now successfully applying it in their daily vocations.

If this course was sold through a Correspondence School you would have to pay Ten Dollars or more. We are selling it in Book form, handsomely illustrated with actual Photographs for $1.50 Postpaid.

SPECIAL COUPON WORTH FIFTY CENTS IF USED WITHIN TEN DAYS.

Send this Coupon and One Dollar and we will send the above book postpaid.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS.

It is now necessary for us to make Saturday the day for final receipt of advertising copy instead of Monday as in the past. The reason for this is found in the fact that our large edition of 7200, severely taxes the mailing facilities of the office and we must go to press Tuesday of each week instead of Wednesday. As the paper is printed in Portland, some 115 miles away from Boston, it will be seen that our plan is necessary to enable us to return to the early mailing so much appreciated by our readers. Remember the day—Saturday.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

A Paper Chase—The students of paper of United States stamps are hard at it and the controversy over recent so-called laid paper varieties attracts attention to other paper variants. Give us laid paper as in the one and three cent, 1861, laid paper, in the subsequent stamps and then there will be no need to strain the imagination in attempting to justify their "laid" paper. Double paper is coming in for notice and we had the privilege of proving the existence of double paper in the National issue, 1870, by submitting an admitted six-cent National, double paper, used on envelope, plainly dated, for Mr. Luff's examination. Before Mr. Luff had seen this six cent, he had spoken of a twenty-four National on double paper but the evidence presented by the specimen was not wholly conclusive as the stamp was a somewhat defective specimen and was detached from cover. Our six cent, which is now in the Worthington collection, decided the question. In any discussion of double paper, it should be said that the printed impression sometimes falls on the thicker paper of the two layers.

Escapes Again—Count Lapp De Booz is speaking: "I had worked out an intricate astronomical problem and had demonstrated to my own satisfaction that a new star would make its appearance at a certain longitude and latitude; and so, with my instruments, I sailed for the given point, which proved to be an island that had never before been sighted by civilized eye. I soon found that the island was inhabited by a strange race of people, unknown to anthropologists, with heads like turtles; and while engrossed in my work, I was made a prisoner and conducted to the chief. Through an interpreter who had been in one of the shows at Coney Island, the king asked what I was doing in his country. I said that I was hunting a star. His next question was whether I had found it and I replied affirmatively. 'Where is it?' persisted he and I rejoined that I would show it to him that very evening. In high dudgeon, his majesty swore by the great loggerhead that if I did not show it to him within five minutes, they would bite my head off. Realizing my plight, I turned to my little duplicate book of stamps to give them a fond farewell. Pensively, I examined an early South Australia and I noticed that its watermark was a very plain and deep star. Eagerly, I hurried to the royal presence and with a flourish, I hand old Snapper the stamp, face downward, saying the while, 'Here is the star that I found.' Instantly, a roar of excitement arose and much affected, the king proclaimed me his successor to the throne. However, the place soon palled on me and it was not long before I was here announcing my new star. You will admit perhaps that I have some reason to say that in philately the study of watermarks has its place."

The First—In the death of Otto W. Brodie, the young aviator of Chicago, the aeroplane has exacted a heavy toll, as those who knew the twenty-six year old flyer will sadly testify. Mr. Brodie was the first aviator to deliver parcel post packages with his machine and immediately upon the establishing of the parcel post service, he was authorized to deliver packages from Cicero to Argo, Illinois.

In Ward Thirteen—Said the attendant at the Asylum for the Addled: "That last chap who was brought in sticks around all the time and I wish that he would soon be well enough to go. I wish Doc would not take such cases but as he says, he is the doctor. His trouble? O, didn't I tell you that he is a stamp collector who became to attach so much importance to original gum that his wits were all gummed up and he wouldn't take a stamp that had no stickum on the back? His mind dwelled more and more on the gum side of the stamp and it was not long before he had forgotten all about the stamp in his great interest in gum. Finally, he got so stuck on gum that he just began to buy all kinds of it and yes, he even went so far as to include glue and everything else that was sticky. Then, he would sit and gloat over the stuff and instead of saying that he had so many stamps in his collection as you fellows do, this jingle bell would tell everybody how many different kinds of gum he had. Sure, his folks thought it time to interfere; that's why he is here. I wish that some one would melt old Reuben Glue so that he would run away from here."

In The Encyclopaedia—Mr. Edgar S. Bissinger, San Francisco, California, writes: "The following is a little information that I received from the 1910 edition of Encyclopaedia Britannica. I refer all dealers and collectors to Volume 22, Pages 175-196 of this great piece of literature." Mr. Bissinger's quotations cover topics such as: Universal Postal Union; Postmaster-Generals, and Rates of Postage. One may gather many fugitive bits of information about postal affairs and progress from a work of the kind.

Private Labels—Joseph Beifeld, President, Hotel Sherman Company, Chicago, true to his instincts as a pioneer philatelist has issued a beautiful stamp, as we mentioned last week, to commemorate the Hotel Sherman. In fact with the different colors, there are six varieties of the striking bicolored label, five of which are rouletted and one perforated. The form of advertising that Mr. Beifeld is indulging in is a rather expensive one but then, we surmise that an element of pride marks the enterprise. When asked for details of the idea and origin of the issue, Mr. Beifeld said: "I have no other explanation to offer for the inception of the Hotel Sherman stamp than 'once a stamp collector, always a lover of stamps.' It occurred to me one day that the Hotel Sherman being named for two great men such as General William T. Sherman and the Honorable John Sherman, it would be appropriate to issue a commemorative stamp bearing their portraits. This was done and I had the Western Bank Note Company do the engraving." The stamps are large oblongs in shape and bear the two Sherman portraits in gray-black and are line-engraved in the best style of the art. A further description of the label is not given for a reason that is disclosed in the following paragraph.

His Surprise Party—Stamp collectors will applaud an issue of the description given, as not alone is the label a sort of tribute to philately but also is a vehicle for philatelic suggestion to the public mind. Mr. Beifeld tells us literally, "I will gladly send a set to any one applying for it." Away back in 1867, Mr. Beifeld was a stamp collector and we make due recognition of his early services as a philatelist. To-day, he is an important factor in Chicago's business world and now we broach the gentle conspiracy into which we want our readers to enter. We wish to awaken Mr. Beifeld to a realization of the great growth of philately since its struggling days of the sixties as we fear that he has not kept au courant with the pursuit. Instead of telling about the stamps, we ask that you see them for yourselves; and so, take your pens in hand and address: Mr. Joseph Beifeld, Hotel Sherman, Chicago. We are very anxious for our readers to get something for nothing when we do not have to give it.

THREE NOTICES OF REMOVAL.

H. Wesley Legg removed to Pepperell, Mass., May 1, where he may be addressed during the summer months.

We also note the change of address of E. H. Gammans, Jr., who has moved his entire stock from 61 Nassau St., N. Y. City, to his office at Newark, N. J. Mr. Gammans has used the WEEKLY quite regularly during the past winter and expresses himself well satisfied with the patronage secured.

Mr. Ohlman announces his removal to larger quarters at 77 Nassau St., N. Y. City. Mr. Ohlman is making a success of his stamp business and the WEEKLY has been a no small factor in it. He announces an auction sale in June.

ARE YOU SPECIALIZING?

If so, you'll be interested in this announcement. A well known student of U. S. Stamps, who has been collecting as near as possible to my writings in MEKEEL'S WEEKLY, and handbooks, has placed his magnificent accumulation of stamps in my hands to sell. This collection is made up of used copies only. It is rich in the many minor varieties and types from 1847 to date. There are no unused singles, pairs or blocks, nor proofs in this collection, the collector retaining these for the present.

I have made this collection up into various books as follows:
 Perfection copies, 1847 to date, 25% off catalog.
 Average copies, 1847 to date, 50% off.
 Rare cancellations 1847 to 1873, net prices.
 Pairs and strips, 1847 to 1895, net prices.
 Double transfers, 1847 to 1873, net prices.
 Unlisted measurements of grilles, net prices.
 Rare used stamps, uncatalogued, net prices.
 Covers, etc., at net prices.

Serious collectors who are specializing can receive these books, in the order of receipt of application. References must be furnished by those not known to me.

Each week I shall advertise some of the splendid things contained in this collection. I also have a very fine collection of Confederates both off and on covers, to submit to those interested.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

30 Cents, Issue of 1870-79.

A postage stamp which has not had its full amount of proper attention is that sober, sombre looking one, denomination of 30 cents, which kept its place with the lower values of the issue of 1870-79. It is not a hard stamp to get in good to fine condition; and in condition to give opportunity for study, they are fairly common. Usually, two or three copies will be the maximum number which will be found in the average collection of the specialist.

Like the three lower values which have just been studied—the 12c, 15c and 24c, it is rather hard to say whether it was first issued grilled, or without grille, or if both varieties were issued about the same time. There is a marked absence of the stamps showing year date, and few are found upon covers bearing date, so that it is a difficult matter to determine when the stamps without grille, and with grille, were issued. I am inclined to the belief that the stamps without grille were the first to go to the public.

For the sake of uniformity I will undertake the study of the stamps with grille first. I have been unable to determine when the earliest grilled stamps were used. Three sizes of grilles have been noted:

Size.	Points.
9x12	11x15
10x12	13x15
10x12 1/2	13x16

Mr. Luff accords but one shade to this stamp—full black. I have a second distinct shade (as such distinctions run) it being a dull black, and not as deep as the usual color. Nor is it the gray black found in the stamps without grille. The only variety is the end roller grille.

The commonest stamp—which shows no grille, was issued about June 1st, 1870. This was printed from Plate Number 22. This plate was used by both the National Bank Note Company and the Continental Bank Note Company, and for a time by the American Bank Note Company. Between April, 1870, and April 1873, the National Bank Note Company delivered 863,543 stamps, according to the records.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Alvah Davison sending us a check for ten years' renewal of subscription adds, "I hope to again renew." We hope so too. The word comes to us upon a card showing a picture of the Davison family in Mr. Davison's auto, underneath which is the inscription "In Northern New Jersey."

—The Dayton P. O. was inundated to a depth of about eight feet on the main floor (in addition to a six feet foundation) resulting in the loss of about 20,000 pieces (estimated) of mail and several thousand dollars worth of stamps and stamped envelopes. The thick mud and three days' soaking made it impossible to handle or decipher the mail and it was found necessary to destroy same in the office furnace. The Mercantile Corporation, manufacturers of the government stamped envelopes and papers, located about a mile from the post office, was also flooded and the inspectors are now busy ascertaining the government's loss on the stock on hand. The Friend Paper Company, manufacturers of the paper used in the government envelopes, and located at West Carrollton, a small mill town eight miles down the valley from Dayton, was also flooded, so that it is very likely that other paper will have to be used on the government products temporarily.—JOHN H. CHAMBERS.

—The Springfield Stamp Club visited Hartford, Monday evening, April 21, as guests of the Collectors Club of

When the Continental Bank Note Company took over the contract, in 1873, it used the National Plate, and no secret mark has ever been discovered, although an engraver employed by the concern, it is said, has positively stated that such a mark was inserted. This is not likely so, as it would have been engraved into the die, probably, and so far as is known the Continental Bank Note Company did not make any new plate.

Mr. Luff classifies the stamps in these shades: gray black, greenish black.

Two varieties have been seen—on double paper and on ribbed paper. Both are extremely scarce varieties.

Between April, 1873, and December 31, 1879, there were delivered 1,911,170 stamps.

It has been said that the American Bank Note Company used the National Plates upon which to print the stamps which are found upon soft papers. I am inclined to think that this is not so, although I have no proof that my contention is correct. It is known that the soft papers were employed by the Continental Bank Note Company, late in 1878, before it consolidated with the American Bank Note Company. This has been proven by finding stamps of several denominations plainly postmarked 1878, which are printed upon soft paper. I am inclined to think that the stamps printed on soft paper, from the National plate, in shades of gray black and greenish black, were so printed by the Continental Bank Note Co., and not by the American.

When the consolidation took effect, and the new company—the American Bank Note Company took over the contract, a new plate was made. It is number 405. The stamps printed from this were in full black shade only. I have no record of the number printed.

For the Centennial exposition in 1876 this stamp was included in the reissue. It was printed upon the thin white paper which characterizes the entire series of reprint and reissues. The shade was greenish black, and 10,000 were printed. Later 500 more were made, making 10,500 in all. Of these only 179 were sold. There were 10,321 returned or on hand, and these were destroyed. The shade of the reissue is greenish black.

the latter city, and were given a most cordial greeting. The Hartford Club, now numbering nearly fifty members, is located in new and commodious rooms at 42 Lewis St. The members were celebrating their fifth anniversary. In the Springfield contingent were Messrs. Stone, Champayne, Prevost, Oppenheimer and other veteran collectors. There were refreshments galore and the visitors talked stamps, swapped stamps and departed on the midnight express with pockets full of stamps.

—William Corey suggests that the postmark "P. B." referred to in the WEEKLY April 5 means "parcel box." Mr. Corey has an envelope bearing the letters "D. I. P. B." which no doubt mean "dropped in parcel box" explanatory of the delay in mailing the letter.

—Walter D. Grout of Worcester was a recent caller at the WEEKLY office.

—George S. Chapman sends us a copy of the order of the Postmaster General announcing the fact that fourth class mail reaching the office of address with ordinary stamps or parcel post due stamps affixed, and mail of other classes reaching the office of address with full postage affixed in parcel post stamps, shall be delivered to the addressee without additional charge.

—Dr. C. F. Roh, Garrison, Nebr., desires the address of the collector who wrote him in connection with the German aviation card cancelled "Flugpost."

—"I had fully expected to publish my Address Book this month, but I will not be able to get out the directory as early as announced. I will therefore thank you to kindly mention that I am Specimens must accompany chronicle, with self-addressed stamped envelope for return of the same. Please note these rules.

UNITED STATES.—Frank B. Eldredge reports the following new precancels:

Racine, Wis.—(No. 1153.) 1c and 2c, 1913, Parcel Post.

Paradise, Pa.—(1164.) Two lines (PARADISE—PA.). 1c, 1910.

Buffalo, N. Y.—(1164.) 10c, 1913, Parcel Post.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Two line (Philadelphia—Pa.) horizontal inscription in sans serif capitals, between double bars 1 mm. apart, ¾ mm. thick, 10½ mm. between inside bars. 1c, 1912.

St. Louis, Mo.—(No. 1162.) 4c, 1910.

Chicago, Ill.—(No. 1157.) 5c, 1910, upper a hair line.

Mr. Eldredge also shows us one of the current 2c envelopes, with the stamp so badly inked as to be nearly illegible. The color shows up strongly on the inside of the envelope, also.

George Story Chapman has shown us a 2c wrapper of the current issue, on which the point of the bust at the back touches the inner oval line. Also a current 3c stamp with a pronounced offset, so that the design is plainly to be seen on the back.

AUSTALIA.—W. H. Peckitt shows us the 2½d, 4d, 5d and 1sh values of the Kangaroo set, already chronicled.

AUSTRIA.—W. H. Peckitt has shown us the new 72h stamp chronicled in No. 1165.

CANADA.—The Canadian Post Office authorities seem to have given considerable latitude to the promoters of town and provincial affairs. Some time since we mentioned those for Hamilton, Ottawa and Brandon. Frank B. Eldredge sends us further specimens to advertise various coming events at Brockville, Edmonton and London.

CANAL ZONE.—H. F. Christensen has shown us the new printing of the surcharge on the 5c of the current issue, similar to the 2c noted in No. 1149. The spacing is slightly wider and the "C" of "Canal" is minus the serif at the bottom.

CAYMAN ISLANDS.—W. H. Peckitt also sends us the four values of the King George set, previously chronicled.

CHINA.—The Imperial stamps with Republic surcharge Waterloo print, are still coming out, the latest being the 10c ultramarine surcharged in red, which has been shown us by Whitfield King & Co. We have been shown also the 5c with the same surcharge by W. H. Peckitt.

CUBA.—L. L. Albright Co. has shown us a cover from Holguin, Cuba, franked with a 2c stamp cut from a Cuban envelope of the current series.

GREAT BRITAIN.—Offices in the Levant.—W. H. Peckitt has shown the 5d King Edward stamp overprinted "2 Piastres," in the new type, for use in the Levant.

GRENADA.—W. H. Peckitt sends us the full set of King George stamps, as previously chronicled.

INDIA.—Soruth.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the two provisionals noted in No. 1165. The overprint is in two lines, the new value being printed in both English and native characters.

LEEWARD ISLANDS.—George Story Chapman has shown us a copy of the King George 3d stamp, which has a broken "d" following the figure of value.

PARAGUAY.—H. Cormack shows the first copies we have seen of the 10c and 20c values of the new postage set chronicled in No. 1159. The design shows a rayed star, encircled by a wreath and a circular band inscribed "Republica del Paraguay." "Union Postal Universal" runs across the stamp just under the wreath. The value in figures appearing in tablets in the lower corners, with "Centavos" between. The stamps are perforated 11½. The colors were correctly stated in No. 1159.

SOMALILAND PROTECTORATE.—W. H. Peckitt has shown us the 6a value in the new King George set.

Adhesive.
6a purple and green.

ST. VINCENT.—W. H. Peckitt sends us the 2sh and 5sh values in the new set.

TURKEY.—The new set of stamps for the Ottoman Empire has also been shown us by W. H. Peckitt.

HAIL TO THE BOOSTER CLUB.

We have another name to add to the membership of the Booster Club. Chas. Van Bell, Newark, N. J., sends in two new yearly subscribers. This is boosting that means business. THE MANAGING EDITOR.

KNICK-KNACKS.

"Some stamps in my book are alive with interest to me and others are dead," says a writer who should fill a morgue as well as a stamp-album.

"At times my mind is hinged to my stamps more securely than at others," avers a quill-driver who means apparently that now and then his mind is unhinged.

The stamp with "back rubbed" can pity the stamp with "face skinned" in the stamp auction catalogue.

"I shall answer the call to battle whether it be in dewy morn or drowsy night. Gladly will I be a general in the army of fair Philatelia's protectors, and meanwhile, I sleep on my arms," writes a hectic reader. Turn over; and anyway, all the generals' berths are taken although there is room for a few privates.

Some one says that he proposes to inject philately into the veins of the public. Another of those serum cures, no doubt.

A very embarrassing incident was witnessed at the meeting of the stamp society the other evening. A visitor tried to say something about stamps but he soon noticed his mistake.

"I wish to dedicate my days to philately. Could there be a nobler ambition than to preach philately from the mountain top?" asks a frenzied friend. Get down to earth.

"Who knows which of the common stamps of today will be rarities ten years hence?" trills a human question mark. That would be telling.

"Are onion skin hinges always peelable?" chirps Embossed Emil. Fear not, Emil, it is a friend who calls.

Ganymedes bit his finger nails when he noticed that a stamp-collector carried his benzine cup with him on his travels.

Old Doc Dodder says that he can not tell who gets the more pleasure out of stamps—the fellow who is always singing their praise or the chap who seems to have a standing grievance against philately.

Alvah Davison, New York, our ten-year subscriber in advance gets the prize that we offered of a stamp worth not more than one hundred dollars or less than one dollar. Mr. Davison is remembered as one of the most able and active of the great philatelists of a generation ago.

COMMUNICATIONS.

(We do not hold ourselves responsible for the views expressed by our readers. Our columns are always open for communications of general interest.—Ed.)

MEDFORD, ORE., 4-15-13.

TO THE EDITOR:—

I notice that you are anxious to receive "Kicks, Comments and Compliments." Here is my "Kick." I do not get the WEEKLY often enough. It ought to come twice a week.

Here is my "Komment." I wonder why the United States Government puts sixteen spokes in the front wheel of the Rural mail delivery wagon and only fourteen spokes in the hind wheel. I am talking about the Parcel Post stamp of the 4c denomination.

I have been counting spokes in wheels lately and I find that sixteen is about the right number. What kind of a rig is this anyway? It seems as though the hind wheel, if there is to be a difference, should be the one to have the greater number of spokes.

My "Komment" is that MEKEEL'S is somewhat like our beloved George Washington, "first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of stamp collectors." (Philatelists, I believe they are termed sometimes.)

On the Coast here we have a monthly (Everybody's) that we also feel interested in, and I am glad that there seems to be a feeling of friendly spirit toward it on your part.

FRANK C. CLARK.

To the Editor: For every active philatelist in the United States, I venture to assert that there are anywhere from three to ten persons who have dropped the hobby. Hidden away in trunks and garrets are thousands of stamp collections that ought to be in "active service." Some of these collections, too, probably are of considerable value; lots of them of course are merely school-boy collections. Yet, within those who made these collections there still exists the philatelic germ. It rarely dies, but too often it lies dormant until it loses all virility. Again, there are entirely too few new collectors coming in to the game.

I note, too, an increasing tendency toward specialization. Naturally, in the United States, most collectors are specializing in the stamps of their own country. The result is that prices on these stamps are growing beyond all reason.

Here are two conditions, which philatelists in general should "view with alarm" as the political platform framers put it. There is something wrong and my idea is that it is the lack of a proper catalog for the beginner. In the second place the present catalogue prices are entirely too high.

We all know that there are many stamps that are not worth the price put upon them by the catalogue and we also know, that many of them sell at retail or auction for anywhere from one half to one-fifth the catalogue price. Imagine the average new collector picking up the Scott catalogue. He sees page after page of stamps priced all the way from 25 cents apiece up to $250 or $300. He sees absolutely no chance, with his pocketbook, of ever getting anywhere near a complete collection. There are too many stamps and the prices are too high. He puts his little collection aside, soon loses all interest in it, and philately has lost a recruit. It is losing hundreds every year in just that way.

The remedy is to put prices in the catalogue on a basis of actual value. A stamp that is catalogued at $1 and sold at 25 cents, will bring the retailer just as much profit, and the wholesaler just as big a price, if handled on a basis of its actual value as if it is handled on the inflated and fictitious value given in the catalogue.

The second thing needed is a simplified catalogue, a catalogue which will eliminate all varieties of watermark, perforation, ink and minute differences in engraving. Such a catalogue, with prices on a basis of real value, would do more to revive interest in general collecting and more towards keeping the new collector in the game until he becomes a real philatelist, than anything else.

Such a catalogue was issued some fifteen years ago, and, if my information is correct, there was only one issue. It was the best thing that has happened in philately in twenty years and it is a great misfortune that it failed of appreciation. I wouldn't sell my copy for fifty times what I paid for it, as far out of date as it is. Every time I look at it, I get a yearning to go back to general collecting. I am one of those who was driven into specialization by the prolixity of the Scott catalogue, both in its listing of varieties and its prices.

I would suggest that the A. P. S. take up this question and appoint a committee to try to arrange both for a simplified catalogue and for a revision of prices to a basis of real value. Then I would feel that I was getting something for the costs of my A. P. S. membership.

Pro Bono Philatelico.

PATTERSON ON PANAMA.

At the next meeting of the Chicago Philatelic Society, Mr. W. R. Patterson, once vice-president of the society, will give a stereopticon lecture on Panama, using the excellent lantern and equipment of the society. Mr. Patterson's slides were made from photographs that he took when in Panama. As much philately will be introduced by Mr. Patterson in his remarks as possible. Mr. Patterson is disposing of his extensive general collection and the Wolsieffer sale of May 17th will contain the second instalment but he will not abandon philately by any means. Mr. Patterson collected some of the scarce U. S. to the sixth duplicate.

Serious Exchange

Wanted on Approval Sheets

With Medium and Advanced Collectors and Dealers.

In the future we intend to greatly enlarge the scope of our stock and we therefore offer IN EXCHANGE for stamps, suitable for our use, of all countries but specially U. S. A. Departmental and General Issues, Hawaii and English Colonies:

All the Stamps of Spain, Spanish West Indies, Cuba, Porto Rico, Philippines, Rio De Oro, Fernando Poo, Elobey, Guinea Used, unused and also in pairs, strips, blocks and on original covers which hitherto we have made our specialty and of which we certainly hold the largest and most important stock in the world.

Within the last few years we have made purchases exclusively in these stamps for sums exceeding $100,000 of which the most important were:

The entire magnificent stock of the firm Antonio Vives of Madrid for which we paid $20,000, the celebrated specialized collections of Count de San Simon and Miguel Galvez also of Madrid, the whole stock of M. T— of Barcelona, the greater part of the Spanish stocks of the late dealers Isaac Blanco and Jules Bernichon of Paris.

Exchange is Made on the Following Conditions:

(I) We do not demand any discounts, as we do not indulge in speculation and only wish to form a stock of foreign stamps in the way of exchange. Stamps must therefore be quoted by both parties at catalogue prices (Scott, Gibbons, Kohl, Senf, Yvert, etc.)

(II) We take stamps catalogued at least 5 cents up to $100 each and as we have practically no stock of foreign countries we can use almost anything in perfect condition. Selections under $10 Catalogue Value are not accepted. We accept up to 20 specimens of the medium priced stamps but we will be glad to furnish, if wanted, only one specimen of any desired kind.

(III) In exchange we offer any stamp of the above countries according to list of wants and we are disposed to give rarities for cheap and medium stamps.

(IV) With Dealers we are open to exchange per 10 to 50 pieces or sets on cash basis.

(V) We answer always within 8 days by sending a selection of at least equal value. All the stamps remain the property of the sender until contra value has been wholly selected.

(VI) All remittances must be registered or insured.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 251, Altadena, Calif.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

BRITISH SOLOMON ISLANDS.

A Chicago reader asks for information regarding the interesting stamps of the British Solomon Islands Protectorate and the country issuing them. The Solomon Islands form the most important and most remote of the large groups of the Pacific Ocean. They are historically of the greatest interest for though they were the first to be discovered they were the last to be explored. In 1568 an expedition fitted out by the Spanish Government spent about six months among the islands and brought back to Peru an account of their discoveries so carefully detailed and accurate that it is now possible, 345 years afterwards, to identify every harbor, islet, and creek by which they passed. Yet though numerous other expeditions set out to visit them they were so completely lost to Europeans that the course of two centuries geographers entertained serious doubts as to their existence and they were actually expunged from the Chart until they were re-discovered by Carteret (an Englishman) and Bougainville (a Frenchman) in the latter half of the 18th century. This is all the more remarkable when it is considered that the group consists of seven large islands and numerous small ones stretched like a net in the course of navigation in an almost unbroken line for about 700 miles. There is surely nothing in the history of maritime discovery more strange than the story of how the Isles of Solomon were discovered, lost, and found again.

After their rediscovery in 1769 nothing is recorded of the group until 1857 when they were visited by Bishop Patterson of the Melanesian Mission. In 1871 the islands came under the baneful influence of the labor market thousands of the natives being persuaded to hire themselves out for three years service in the cotton fields of Queensland. As the "hiring" was chiefly compulsory the natives retaliated by killing the raiders whenever opportunity offered. In consequence of the scandal and constant troubles Britain declared a protectorate over the Solomon Islands in 1893 to save the blacks from the whites and the whites from the blacks.

The islands are of volcanic origin and have a total area of about 8,500 square miles, while the population consists of 150,000 natives and less than 200 whites. The chief islands are Choiseul, Ysabel, Mala, New Georgia, San Christobal and Guadalcanar. The natives are Papuans and Polynesians and until quite recent years they were strongly addicted to cannibalism. The group is governed under a British Resident Commissioner, the seat of Government being at Tulagi—a tiny islet situated between Mala and Guadalcanar.

When the first post-office was opened does not appear to be known but for some years prior to the appearance of the first issue some of the then current stamps of New South Wales were on sale at the Resident Commissioner's office and these were used for the prepayment of postage. The first postage stamps for the Protectorate were issued in 1907. There were seven different values, viz.:

- 1/2 ultramarine
- 1d carmine
- 2d indigo
- 2 1/2d orange
- 5d emerald green
- 6d chocolate
- 1s purple

All were of the same design and of similar shape and size to the stamps of Papua. The central picture shows a lagoon on which is a native canoe manned by numerous natives. The stamps were roughly lithographed by a New South Wales firm owing to the fact that it was desired to keep expenses as low as possible as the working of the post-office was more or less experimental. The stamps were all printed in sheets of sixty and the stones were made up of transfers resulting in six types for the 1d, 2d, 5d, 6d, and 1s values and three types for the 1/2d and 2 1/2d. The types are easily identified as are also certain stamps on the sheets by peculiar flaws. The issue is one of considerable interest and those readers who wish to delve more deeply into the subject will find all types and varieties fully described in an article I contributed to the Stamp Collector's Fortnightly in 1909 at a time it was possible to examine entire sheets.

The experimental issue was successful and as postal development was gradual and satisfactory it was decided to have a new set of stamps to be printed in London. The new set was the work of De La Rue and Co. and appeared in November, 1908, the same values being retained though colors were chosen to correspond with the Crown Agent's color scheme. These stamps were of normal size, were line-engraved, and printed on the paper with multiple watermark. Some time later 2s, 2s 6d, and 5s values were added to the set and in 1911 a 4d value was issued.

TEN YEARS PAID IN ADVANCE.

It will be remembered that Mr. Severn offered a stamp worth not less than one dollar nor more than one hundred dollars to our longest term subscriber. To Alvah Davison of N. Y. City, must be given this honor at the present writing. We have just received from Mr. Davison a check for $5 in payment for ten years' subscription to the WEEKLY. This is a marked compliment that we cannot fail to appreciate. I. W. Risdon, Cambridge, Mass., stands second, with nine years to his credit.

OUR REVIEW.

The Postage Stamps of Malta.—By Alexander J. Sefi. This is number nine of the W. E. P. series of philatelic handbooks, consisting of a reprinted article on the stamps of this island published in the West End Philatelist. The frontispiece is a picture showing some of the fortifications of Valetta Harbor. The various issues are treated in a very comprehensive manner and no collector of these stamps can afford to be without this handbook. Price 20c from the WEEKLY office. Published by D. Field, 4-5 Royal Arcade, London, Eng.

TEXAS PHILATELIC ASSN. MEETS.

The 17th annual meeting of the Texas Philatelic Association was held on Friday, April 11, 1913, at 8 p. m., in the rooms of the Scientific Society of San Antonio. The president, Edward W. Heusinger, presided, the following members being in attendance: Chas. Roemer, A. Riedner, E. A. Bailey, Stephen W. Kearney and Wm. Moore White.

The report of Wm. Moore White as Secretary-Treasurer showed that the membership of the association consisted of one life and twenty-four annual members and the financial statement gave a total of $128.92 on deposit in the San Antonio Loan and Trust Co.

Several amendments to the articles of association were adopted, and a motion to have same printed in amended form with a list of the members was voted on and adopted. It was also ordered to purchase a copy of Earee's "Album Weeds" and a book case for the library of the association.

The election of officers followed: President, Edward W. Heusinger; Vice-President, Capt. Dudley K. Lansing; Secretary-Treasurer, Wm. Moore White; Librarian, E. A. Bailey; Exchange Supt., Chas. Roemer.

THE STAMPS OF THE GERMAN EMPIRE.

By BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

BAVARIA.

Bavaria, or Bayern, is a kingdom of the German Empire, consisting of two detached portions—the smaller being west of the Rhine, between Alsace-Lorraine, Rhineland and Hesse-Darmstadt; and the larger east of the Rhine, between, Bohemia, Austria, Switzerland, Wurtemberg, and Baden. It has an area of 29,286 square miles and a population well in excess of six millions, the majority of whom are Roman Catholics. Bavaria forms a hereditary constitutional monarchy, the legislative power being invested in the king and two legislative chambers. The kingdom has six votes in the federal council and sends forty-eight members to the Imperial Diet.

Baiern, or Boiaria, land of the Boii, overrun by Rome of the early empire, was divided into three provinces—Rhaetia, Vindelicia, and Noricum. On the breakup of the Roman power, the country, occupied by the Teutonic tribe of Baguvarians (Bavarians) at the close of the 5th century, was ruled by dukes, first elective, then hereditary. After a struggle of two hundred years, Bavaria, absorbed by the Franks, was ruled by Charlemagne, who left his descendants as margraves (788-900) to hold the marches against Hun and Bohemian.

The title of duke was restored (920) for services rendered to the empire, and Bavaria helped the Emperor Otto I. to defeat the Huns at Augsburg. In the middle ages there were constant quarrels between duke and emperor; and the towns, which were either imperial or free (Augsburg, Nuremberg), ecclesiastical (Bamberg), or ruled by princes (Baireuth), rose into importance through the transit of Italian trade northwards, and again declined owing to the development of sea-borne commerce. During the same period the boundaries of Bavaria underwent continual change.

In 1180 Frederick Barbarossa conferred the duchy on Otto, Count of Wittelsbach, founder of the present Royal house. Maximilian I. (1598-1623) was made elector, and received the northern half of Bavaria, owing to Tilly's victory over the elector Palatine. The French defeat of Blenheim (1704) was shared by Bavaria, but after the treaty of Utrecht (1713) the elector was re-instated in his dominions. Thereafter Bavaria oscillated between the French and German alliance, being invaded (1796) by Moreau, who occupied Munich; siding with Napoleon I., who created Maximilian Joseph I. a king (1805-6); and, subsequently, secured in her new dignity by the allies, helping to overthrow her benefactor (1813). In 1866 Bavaria sided with Austria in the Austro-Prussian war, and had to pay the penalty of its choice in the shape of an indemnity and the cession of territory to Prussia.

In 1886 the throne of Bavaria passed to Otto Wilhelm Luitpold who, however, owing to mental incapacity has never taken any active part in the government of his kingdom. His uncle, Prince Leopold, was appointed Regent and was virtually ruler until the time of his death a few months ago at the advanced age of 90 years.

Although Bavaria became a member of the German Empire in 1870, she retained certain independent privileges, amongst them being the sole control of her postal system. Bavaria is the only German State to still issue its own distinctive postage stamps for Wurtemberg, which for a long period also issued its own stamps, relinquished the privilege on April 1st, 1902.

Bavaria was the first of the German States to adopt adhesive postage stamps, its pioneer labels appearing in 1849. From that date until 1876 the currency of the kingdom was the florin of 60 kreuzer worth about 40c in United States money. In 1876 the Imperial currency of pfennige and marks was adopted.

THE FIRST ISSUE.

An ordinance of King Maximilian, dated June 5th, 1849, authorised the issue of postage stamps and fixed the rates of postage. Local letters and printed matter were carried for 1 kreuzer, subject to certain limitations of weight; the rate on ordinary single letters (weighing not more than 1 loth or 1/2 oz.) was fixed at 6kr for distances up to 12 German miles; while 6 kreuzer was the charge for carrying single letters for longer distances. Postage stamps of these values were, therefore, prepared and, according to an elaborate "code of instructions" dated October 25th, 1849, these were to be placed on sale on November 1st following. The only items we need reproduce are those concerning the prepayment of letters viz.—

1. From the 1st November next the prepayment of matter sent by post in the interior of Bavaria must be effected exclusively by stamps, which the Postal Administration is entitled to sell according to Art. VII of the Royal Ordinance of June 5th; and for the correspondence, the marking of the postage on the seal-side of the letter, prescribed up till now, must be stopped.

2. The stamps intended for the prepayment bear the figures of the single rates, according to the new tariff for the interior of Bavaria, of 1 kreuzer in black, of 3 kreuzer in blue, and of 6 kreuzer in brown-red colors. Each stamp of the last two kinds carries in itself a red silk thread running from top to bottom, as evidence of its genuineness.

The design, common to all three values, shows a double lined numeral, ornamented with arabesques, within a square frame. In the top border is "BAYERN" (Bavaria), in the bottom one is "FRANCO" (Free), at the right is "KREUZER", and at the left the value in words—"EIN", "DREI", or "SECHS". In the small squares in the angles the value is denoted in figures on a checkered ground. The large central numeral on the 1kr is on a ground of mazework which occupies the whole of the interior square. In the case of the 3kr and 6kr the numerals are on a circular ground of solid color, this circle being flattened where it meets the inner lines of the border, thus causing the type generally known as "broken circle." The spandrels, or spaces in the angles, are filled with arabesque ornamentation. The designs were drawn by Mr. P. Haseney, and the dies were engraved on steel by Mr. F. J. Seitz, of Munich. The printing plates were constructed of separate blocks or clichés struck from the original dies and clamped together in a printer's chase. For the plate of the 1kr the casts were taken in ordinary type-metal there being ninety of these in all, arranged in ten horizontal rows of nine. The printing plates for the 3kr and 6kr also consisted of ninety impressions but these were arranged in two panes of 45 each (nine rows of five) placed side by side. The clichés for these values were struck in brass at the Mint and these impressions were soldered on to bars of iron in rows of five. The stamps were printed by Mr. J. G. Weiss, of Munich.

The 1kr was printed on ordinary white wove paper, but for the other two denominations a special greyish-white paper was employed, in the fabric of which red threads were introduced. This paper, known as "Dickenson" paper from the name of its inventor, had the threads arranged at intervals of 20 mm. so that one thread appeared in each stamp. According to a writer in the Philatelic Record for March, 1893,

The threads were introduced into the paper lengthways of the continuous roll, and not inserted between two laminae of the pulp, but were pressed into the pulp as it reached the "couching rollers," which, aided by the suction boxes, remove the greater part of the remaining water, and turn the sheet of pulp into one of paper. It was evidently intended that the thread should be especially visible on the back of the stamp, and impressions which shew it on the front are frequently classified separately by philatelists as being exceptions to the rule, and constituting varieties, due only, however, to the printer having taken the impression on the wrong side of the paper.

The plate of the 1kr soon showed signs of wear owing to the comparative softness of the type-metal of which it was composed. Consequently, about September, 1850, a new plate was made for this value the clichés of which were made of brass similar to those employed for the 3kr and 6kr. The new plate had the ninety stamps arranged in two panes of forty-five each. Only 2000 sheets were printed from this new plate when it was decided to alter the color and also to adopt a design conforming to that of the other denominations. These later impressions of the 1kr taken from the brass plate can be distinguished by the greater sharpness and clearness of the design. The color is also a more intense black than that used for the earlier printings.

The 1kr is known with silk thread in the paper. This variety is a proof or essay but that it is of considerable rarity may be judged from the fact that

Gibbons prices it at $30. The 1kr is recorded as existing in a tête-bêche pair but whether this is a true tête-bêche, caused by the inversion of one of the clichés on the plate, or due to two impressions (one upside down in relation to the other) being printed on the same sheet of paper, I cannot say.

The 6kr stamp of this issue is an exceedingly rare variety unused. The 3kr may be found in a number of distinctive shades of which the deeper tints are much the rarer.

There are no reprints of these stamps.

Reference List.

2. 1kr black, Scott's No. 1, or No. 1a.

THE SECOND ISSUE.

In April, 1850 Bavaria joined the German-Austrian Postal Union and as the rate on single letters between the states belonging to the convention had been fixed at 9 kreuzer, arrangements had to be made to issue a label of this denomination. Its approaching issue was announced by a Post-office notice, dated 25th June, 1850, and it was actually placed in use on July 1st, 1850. The design of this new 9kr is very similar to that of the 3kr and 6kr of 1849 with one important exception—the circle containing the large central numeral is a perfect sphere and not flattened where it touches the frame lines.

The die was probably engraved by Seitz and the plate was constructed by the ordinary electrotype process. It consisted of two panes placed side by side. Each pane was composed of 45 casts arranged in nine rows of five, with vertical and horizontal lines between them, and a single line around the whole. The plate was backed with type metal so as to render it quite solid. The color chosen was yellow green but a printing was made in a pale blue green—a shade that is of considerable rarity unused. The stamps were imperforate and printed on the paper with silk threads.

An official notice, dated October 1st, 1850, announced that the color of the 1 kreuzer stamp would be changed from black to rose. But not only was the color changed but the design was altered to conform with that of the other denominations. It was similar to that of the 9kr; the circle being complete and not intercepted by the inner lines of the inscribed border. The plate was made by the same process, the sheets consisted of ninety stamps in two panes as in the case of the 9kr, and the same silk-thread paper was used.

A new plate was also constructed for the 6kr, this likewise having the circular ground complete. At what date this was brought into use is uncertain but probably some time in 1851.

On July 19th, 1854, a Government notice was issued intimating that a stamp of higher value than 9kr would be issued for the general convenience of the public, and on August 1st following, an 18kr stamp made its appearance. In design, method of manufacture, etc., this value corresponds to those already described.

A postal convention between Bavaria and France came into operation on July 1st, 1858, it being mutually agreed that the postage on a letter not exceeding 10 grammes in weight should be 12kr. A new stamp representing this rate was placed on sale in Bavaria on the day the new convention came into force, the design corresponding to that of the other values then current.

The 3kr underwent no change either of design or color so this denomination does not exist with completed circle. As it was in use from 1849 until 1862 it may be found in a wide range of shades.

WANTED FOR STUDY
For the purpose of adding to the present limited information touching upon several points; the results of the answers to be published in these columns, with credit to the writers, if desired, I would like to have answers to the following questions:
Has anyone copies of any proofs, other than die proofs, of the original designs of 5 and 10 cents of 1847?
Has anyone copies of any proofs, other than die proofs, of the original plates used in printing the stamps of issue of 1851-60? All of the proofs I have ever seen are from the new plates made at the time the reprints were issued. What I would like to see are proofs showing the narrow spacing of the early plates used.
Has anyone a copy of the so-called Type III of the 1 cent 1851, imperforate, with top and bottom circles cut away (not broken or damaged) showing year date earlier than 1857, or on cover showing date before that time?
Has anyone a copy of the 10 cent 1851-60, perforated, showing Plate Number 3?
Has anyone a copy of the 90 cent 1861, shade of Marine Blue, which they would loan the writer for the purpose of identifying the shade?
Has anyone a copy of any stamp, variety of 1857, grided, showing the End Roller Grille from top to bottom of stamp?
Has anyone a true double transfer in the 1 cent, 5 cent, 10 cent, or 12 cent stamps, issue of 1851?
Has anyone a copy of the 3 cent stamp, issue of 1873, printed on the violet experimental or safety paper?
Collectors possessing any of the above will do philately a favor by communicating with the undersigned.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—The Mutual Stamp Exchange Bulletin dated April, 1913, is a leaflet issued by I. C. Greene, Fitchburg, Mass., dealing with the A. P. S. and the benefits to be derived from a patronage of the Mutual Stamp Exchange. This Exchange is warmly endorsed by many prominent members of the Society and our readers will do well to take advantage of the offer contained in the advertisement elsewhere in this issue.

—G. B. Newton, Jr., sends for our inspection a specimen of the postmark used in connection with the 1912 "Child Welfare Exhibition" held at Montreal last October. We have previously referred to this cancellation in the WEEKLY.

—The shortcomings of dealers who send out approval selections marked at prices above catalog quotations in order to allow fancy discounts are condemned by L. S. Keeler of Norwalk, Conn., in a recent letter to the WEEKLY. It seems incredible that any dealer would seek to thus impose upon any collector interested sufficiently in philately to subscribe to our publication.

—The Watervliet Stamp Co. would like to know the address of Harold Berg, Elyria, Ohio, and Allan Ball, Springfield, Mo. Mail sent to addresses given is returned "Unclaimed".

—B. W. H. Poole had the misfortune recently of being in an auto accident and luckily escaped with nothing worse than some bruises and a cut on the left hand.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from Geo. W. Schaefer, W. A. Kain (2), Geo. H. Sleeper, M. S. Karlitsky, W. E. Marsh.

—"The Monument" advertised in this issue is a souvenir of a fair held in 1840 to raise funds to complete Bunker Hill Monument. Its contents consists of poetry and prose, description of tables and their contents, the names of table holders and booths, and the towns contributing to the fair. Mrs. Bowen became the possessor of two copies, one of which she presented to the Bostonian Society.

—We are indebted to W. T. Wilson, Birmingham, England, for a specimen of the label issued in connection with the Fifth Philatelic Congress of Great Britain held at Edinburgh the last week in April. This label is upright rectangular in shape, printed in maroon and black. The central design shows the celebrated Scott monument and is the portion printed in black. The stamp used to mail the envelope is cancelled with the familiar "Congress" postmark, a large circle in which is the inscription "Fifth Philatelic Congress of Great Britain, Edinburgh, 1913". In an inner circle is the date, April 24, with the hour of mailing. Mr. Wilson has proven himself a great friend of the WEEKLY in the manner in which he has extended courtesies of this nature.

—The Postal Savings System has been transferred and assigned to the Bureau of the Third Assistant Postmaster General and designated as the Division of Postal Savings, effective May 1, 1913.

KNICK-KNACKS.

Now if that error of the two cent Pacific-Panama really has been offered for sale in Berlin, think of the hullabaloo that will be raised in this country. Another instance of German aggression in Central America.

Is it possible that the errors were sent to the Postal Union headquarters by mistake and that they seeped out from there? Consul, your report, please.

Imagination runs riot. Meanwhile, an answer to the cablegram that has been sent to Berlin has been received and the information is conveyed that the errors have been "closed out." That was a closing-out sale worth while.

While awaiting confirmation, yea or nay, of the momentous question, let us turn to something nearer home, such as the picture post card of the San Miguel Locks, for instance. That is as near as we shall ever get to the error.

"Are there any philatelic games on the market?" asks an innocent reader. Some of the fellows who have been fleeced, please answer.

Lest we forget, we say it now that Mr. I. W. Rison whose subscription is paid nine years in advance received a prize in our great moral contest. As we did not happen to have any hundred dollar stamps on hand when the awards were made, dollar stamps were given instead. Their loss is our gain.

Cleveland is getting ready to entertain the philatelic hosts who are requested to report in uniform. Our incomparable staff of writers will attend in a body, cash and circumstances permitting.

"The postage stamp removes all bars as philatelists can attest," says a happy scribe who, at least, was not in a saloon or in jail when he wrote.

"There is danger that some gum will crack," says a sage; and Embossed Emil says that the kind his little sister chews cracks, O, so loud. Now inhale deeply, Emil.

"Reading your column of connotations has made a serious collector of me," says an esteemed reader. Another reader, not so highly esteemed says that he likes this column because he can skip it without feeling that he has missed anything. We hope that he will have to write a column some time.

We wish that W. Hamilton Barnum would try his hand at it to be followed in quick succession by H. Wesley Legg, John N. Luff, Hiram Edmund Deats, Frederick R. Cornwall and other sparkling celebrities. More of this anon.

POOLE'S GREAT BOOK

The Stamp Collector's Guide

Now Placed on Sale — Price 25c

We cannot be too extravagant in our praise of this book. It is all that its name implies and is suited both for the advanced collector as well as the beginner. We have no hesitancy in affirming that this book will be a faithful companion, frequently consulted and of permanent value. Its many chapters are marvels of information, a veritable thesaurus of philatelic information.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS.

It is now necessary for us to make Saturday the day for final receipt of advertising copy instead of Monday as in the past. The reason for this is found in the fact that our large edition of 7200, severely taxes the mailing facilities of the office and we must go to press Tuesday of each week instead of Wednesday. As the paper is printed in Portland, some 115 miles away from Boston, it will be seen that our plan is necessary to enable us to return to the early mailing so much appreciated by our readers. Remember the day—Saturday.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Very Fishy—We have been told by Mr. A. Roterberg that a correspondent in Germany informs him that the Gatun Locks error, two cent Panama-Pacific, the supply of which is believed to have been wholly destroyed by the government, when it was found that through a mistake the Pedro Miguel Locks, instead of the Gatun Locks had been reproduced on the stamp, is offered for sale in Berlin at a figure that does not seem particularly fancy, considering the circumstances. Mr. Roterberg will not vouch for the veracity of the statement, which certainly is interesting if true. We trust that on the score of philatelic public policy, the information is not reliable; and it is unbelievable that the department's pledge that all the stamps "that had been printed, of which none had been issued, were destroyed," will be proved false.

A Paper Error—The remarks on double paper in U. S. issues are continued from the preceding issue and an interesting error that comes under this category demands a word. We have a pair of the two cent brown, 1873, in which both layers of paper are of the sized paper sheet that was to be used only as the second sheet and which was not to receive the impression. In picking up the first sheet, instead of the blotting or tissue paper layer, a sheet of the thin "backing" paper was taken, with the result that the compound sheet is composed of two layers of the thin, sized paper. Mr. Steel, the patentee of the compound paper, warned against the possibility of printing on the sized paper, as it was the tissue or top layer that was to receive the inked impression; this paper was the one that was readily disturbed by the action of water or acid when friction was used, while the second sheet, gummed on the face with a special adhesive preparation was to be the backing paper which was to give body to the compound paper. Notwithstanding Mr. Steel's cautionary words, the printers erred in this case, as they did in others; that is, when the ink was applied to the sized sheet, the blotting paper being wrongly employed as the back layer. If we are not mistaken, the six cent National which proved the existence of double paper in that company's product was printed on the sized paper layer and not on the tissue or blotting paper sheet, thereby reversing the idea of the inventor of this safety paper for postage and revenue stamps.

Good Guess—Some time ago, we mentioned a grill vaguely shown in a block of eleven unused, three cent, 1867 issue, 11 by 13, that was in our possession. The grill was of two different sizes and Mr. F. R. Cornwall gave it as his opinion that the lack of uniformity in the grill was due to the partial removal only of the bosses of two rows at the top of the "griller" by the lathe that ground down the outer rows of the grill when they became a bit worn. Mr. Wm. L. Stevenson, Flint, Michigan, has been studying the grills keenly and after scrutinizing the block in question, he advanced the opinion that the extension rows of seeming indentations are blind grills only and that the extension grill would disappear with the gum. As the extended grill never showed on the face of the specimens, it was fair to assume that the grill was a gum grill rather than a paper impression grill; and as Mr. Stevenson says that removal of a bit of gum seems to eliminate the grill at the particular spot.

Plating Grills—Mr. Stevenson is of the opinion that there is an inviting opening for the United States specialist with plenty of patience to "plate" the two grille cylinders of the 1867 issues, 9 by 13 and 11 by 13, respectively. He says: "To be accurate, large enough blocks to lap two stamps each time might be desirable but the plating may be done, if some one with the qualifications of purse and persistence would apply himself to the task."

British Newspaper Stamps—Mr. R. H. Perry, Mitchell, South Dakota, while helping to raise a house some time ago, found a number of Irish newspapers with the stamp duty impression in red, the type showing the rose, shamrock and thistle, surmounted by a crown, with "One" above, and "Penny," below; the name of the newspaper at the left. For the information of those who do not understand the nature of the hand-stamp marking, it is to be said that previously to the year 1855, newspapers were liable to stamp duty, payment of which was denoted by a hand-stamp in carmine on the sheet, "and in consideration of the duty, the newspaper was privileged to be conveyed free by the post for a certain fixed period. The stamp was therefore a fiscal one, carrying with it a postal franking privilege." In 1855, the duty was entirely removed but it was stipulated that free carriage was granted for a time after publication date of the newspaper "to the copies of any registered newspaper printed on paper impressed with the stamp denoting the duty theretofore payable, together with the name of the newspaper; or the newspaper might be conveyed at the book post rate at the option of the sender, in which case the prepayment was made by ordinary postage stamps." From 1855 to 1870, some of the newspapers availed themselves of this privilege and used the impression in red that has been described.

Saw-Tooth Perforations—Count Lapp De Booz is speaking: "I was geologizing once on the wastes of remote Isobar in search of a new mineral that I was certain was to be found there, when a band of horsemen descended upon me furiously and took me to the functionary who reigned over the rude people who inhabited the great barrens. The despot who was an awesome figure in the eyes of the simple, semi-barbarous subjects accused me of treason and a host of other crimes and sentenced me to die at dawn. He would hear no explanations and said that he would be my executioner and added as a cruel jest that the hole that I had dug in my search that day would be my grave. I was haled to a jail-like room and there I was left to meditate on my fate. I turned to my little book of duplicates for the solace of a last look at my beloved stamps and noticing a specimen that was discolored and stiffened by grease spots, it flashed on me that I could use the stamp as a sort of saw and this I did. The stiff perforations soon cut through the steel bars and I easily made my escape, leaving the inhospitable country without regret as I had discovered the new mineral, which has been named Boozite in honor of myself. You will now understand why a grease spot or two on a stamp does not make me look with disdain on the specimen."

In Ward Thirteen—Said the Attendant at the Asylum for the Addled: "I can't exactly make out what the trouble is with that new fellow but the way I got it from the Doc was that he was spending all his time and money on stamps and I think that it was his wife who had him brought here. It seems that at breakfast, instead of chatting with his family, he looked over his stamp mail and approval selections; he spent his noon hour at the dealer's and at night he tended to his collection and his stamp correspondence; while during the day, he always managed to have stamps on his desk. For sixty hours on a stretch he never spoke a word to his wife but

SUMMER PURCHASE

We have secured a dealer's stock of approximately 100,000 stamps, all of the better grade, cataloguing between 5c and $6.00 each. They were not arranged in any kind of order; most of them being mounted in small approval books or loose. We are sorting this lot for stamps needed in our stock envelopes. The majority of the stamps, however, will be mounted into our special 50% discount selections. This will take about two months to finish. As fast as the books are mounted, they will be put into circulation.

We do not know what we are going to find in the lot, but from those we have seen, we can safely promise to show the finest assortment of stamps at 50% discount that we have ever offered. We cannot promise to send stamps of any one country or group of countries, but if you are a general collector, do not fail to ask us for some of these selections. Write us today to send the books as soon as ready and thus secure first choice.

SPECIALIZED UNITED STATES.

By FRANK E. GOODWIN.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

90 Cents, Issue of 1870-79.

A well known specialist in United States stamps was recently examining my collection and I noticed that he spent considerable time in looking at the 90 cent stamps issued between 1870 and 1882. As he went forward to later issues he would turn back to those stamps, and he seemed to be fixing the shades, varieties, etc., more firmly in his mind. Then he remarked: "I wish I had given more attention to these stamps while there were any considerable numbers to be had. I did not know there was so much to be learned of them. Here you have more than a dozen copies in your collection; I have only three."

My own interest was renewed, and a little later I, too, took more notice of the stamp, the handsomest of the series. Large dealers seem unable to supply any number of them for study, so that while I have more than a dozen copies in my collection, I now know that my 90 cent stamps of this issue are far from being complete.

These stamps I believe were among the very last of the issue to appear. I have been unable to satisfactorily fix the date when they probably were first offered to the public, but I have seen one copy postmarked August (?), 1870.

Whether the stamps without grille were first to be sold, or whether it was the ones with grille, or if they appeared simultaneously, will never be known. They were printed from the same plate—No. 23.

The stamps issued between 1870 and May 1, 1873, were printed by the National Bank Note Company. Five sizes of grilles have, to this time, been chronicled, as follows:

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

Size.	Points.
8 1/2 x 10 1/2	11 x 13
8 1/2 x 11	11 x 14
8 1/2 x 12 1/2	11 x 15
9 x 12	12 x 15
10 x 12 1/2	13 x 16

The only shade given by Mr. Luff to the stamps with grille is carmine lake. I have one, in a lighter shade, but this might have been caused by fading.

Mr. Luff classifies the stamps without grille in shades of carmine lake and lake. To this I think should be added carmine.

There were issued to the government by the National Bank Note Co., between 1870 and 1873, dates as above, 213,450 stamps of this denomination.

On May 1, 1873, the Continental Bank Note Company began delivering stamps of this series of designs to the U. S. Postal department. The 90 cent stamps were printed from the National plate—No. 23. The knowledge of this fact would seem to establish the matter correctly that there was no secret mark engraved into the stamps issued by the Continental Bank Note Company. It has been written that a secret mark does exist, in that five lines of the star in the upper right hand corner were deepened. Personally, I am inclined to doubt this, for reasons which I shall discuss more fully in another and separate article upon the Secret Marks, for which I have been collecting data and information for several months.

The shades in the stamps of Continental print are named as pale rose carmine and rose carmine. These are sufficient to separate the National and Continental prints.

No varieties have been chronicled in this printing, unless we except the ribbed paper variety, and there is con-

SERIOUS EXCHANGE

Wanted, on Approval Books, with Medium and Advanced Collectors and Dealers.
We offer in Exchange for stamps of all countries:—ALL THE STAMPS OF

FERNANDO PO, RIO DE ORO, ELOBEY, GUINEA, SPAIN

used or unused, single, in small and complete sets, pairs, blocks, etc.
(The other colonies are only supplied upon demand).

Did you ever realize how much it would be to your advantage to profit by this Exchange Offer?

Did you ever think that it is really a life time opportunity to have at your entire disposal the Most Important Stock in the World of the Above Countries, and at the same time the possibility to fill your gaps by Disposing of your Duplicates whether they are Common, Medium or Rare?

Hundreds of American Collectors have grasped this opportunity and we are steadily exchanging with them with reciprocal satisfaction and profit!
WE EXPECT YOU WILL DO THE SAME!

REMEMBER THAT:

We take stamps of all countries but quite particularly those of English Colonies, Hawaii, U. S. A., both general and Departmentals. The latter stamps are a little neglected in your country but we can use up to any amount of them. In exchange we give any desired stamps of above countries according to Your List of Wants.

We take and give only stamps in Perfect Condition catalogued at least 5 cents up to $100 each. We can use up to 20 specimens of each kind but we will be glad to furnish only one of any desired stamp. We Give Willingly Rarities for Medium Stamps.

We do not demand any discount to our profit and stamps must be quoted by both parties according to Scott or Gibbons. We do not dispose of the stamps received until equal value has been wholly selected. Selections under $10 catalogue are not accepted.

siderable doubt as to this. The Continental print has never been mentioned as having been grided for legal purposes (in common with the 30 cents).
All of the lower values from 1c to 24c were so grided, with the smaller and later-made embossing dies. If it is so that the 90 cent (and 30 cent) stamps were not so processed, there must be a reason for it. That reason, if learned, might remove some of the other doubts surrounding this issue.

Mr. Luff, in his record of deliveries, shows that in 1874 there were 197,000 stamps furnished to the government, and that none were delivered in 1873, 1875 and 1876. For the remainder of the contract there are as well no figures accurately showing delivery.

On Feb. 4, 1879, the contract of the Continental Bank Note Company was assumed by the American Bank Note Company, with which the former concern was merged. The stamps printed by the new company were on soft, porous paper. But—and here is a question for some expert to solve—as other denominations were printed on soft paper by the Continental company before the merger, is it not safe to assume that some of the 90 cent stamps were also printed on soft paper by the merged companies?

The shades named by Mr. Luff are dull carmine rose, carmine rose, and rose carmine. The only chronicled variety is the stamp imperforate.

No accurate record of manufacture or delivery is to be found.

The Continental Bank Note Company made the reissues for the Centennial exposition, in Philadelphia, in 1876.
These reissues were printed upon hard white paper, in violet carmine shade, from plate No. 23. The issue consisted of 10,000 stamps. In July, 1880, the American Bank Note Company printed 500 stamps of this denomination, in dull carmine shade. When the reprints and reissues were later destroyed it was found that there were 10,330 copies on hand. This would show that 170 stamps of the reissue were, in some way, disposed of.

EGYPT.—Sudan.—Gibbons Monthly reports that the large camel rider stamps were punctured "A S" for "Army Service": 1m, 13,000; 2m, 13,000; 3m, 13,000; 5m, 100,000; 1pi, 18,000; 2pi, 3,840; 5pi, 1,200. There were no 10pi stamps thus treated. The Army Service stamps arrived at Khartoum Oct. 27, 1912, and were put into use Jan. 20, 1913. The 1m perforated "S G" is for official use, to take the place of the stamps overprinted "O. S. G. S." They were issued at Khartoum Dec. 20, 1912. Contrary to the suggestion in No. 1162, the 10pi overprinted "O. S. G. S." is not to be superseded.

GREECE.—Lemaire's Journal notes that the 1 lepton value of the current set has been lithographed, like the 5, 10 and 25 lepta values previously chronicled. The same paper says that the postage due stamps are also to be lithographed as the original stock has been exhausted. Possibly the colors may also be changed.

INDIA.—Kishengarh.—Lemaire's Journal reports the issue of another provisional in the type of the 2a recently chronicled.

Provisional Adhesive.

¾a ultramarine.

ITALY.—The New England Stamp Co. and Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the new provisionals from Italy, the 5c, 10c and 15c values of the Turin commemorative stamps being overprinted with new figures of value, placed over the old values, in black on the 5c and 10c and in purple on the 15c.

Provisional Adhesives.

2c on 5c deep green.
2c on 10c carmine.
2c on 15c slate.

MONTENEGRO.—We learn from Lemaire's Journal that a new series of stamps has been issued "without tambours or trumpets, but which might very well, intentionally or not, commemorate the grave events likely to result from the resistance of Montenegro to the commands of Europe. The new stamps bear the same portrait as the 5pa, 10pa, 25pa and 35pa values of the 1910 set, but the portrait is in a circle, and the frame is surrounded by foliage. Four postage due stamps have been issued in the same type.

Adhesives.

1pa orange.
2pa violet.
5pa green.
10pa deep rose.
15pa gray.
20pa brown.
25pa ultramarine.
35pa scarlet.
50pa pale blue.
1per brown.
2per dull mauve.
5per yellow green.

Postage Due Adhesives.

5pa gray.
10pa purple.
25pa dull blue.
50pa magenta.

Post Card.

1c green on cream; 120x78 mm.

NYASALAND PROTECTORATE.—Lemaire's Journal reports that the series with portrait of King George has begun to appear, but we omit the formal chronicle until we have seen the stamps.

SERBIA.—The Bazaar has the following interesting article on the Serbian "Journal Stamps" of 1911:

"The inner history of these mysterious labels still remains to be written, but it is now definitely known that they are in reality 'charity stamps,' and were produced for the benefit of a journalists' fund. An official order of the Postal Administration, dated November, 1911 (the date of '1912' given in Gibbons' Catalogue is an error), authorised their sale from 1st Dec. of that year, and stated that the public would be allowed to use either these special stamps or the ordinary postage stamps, at their discretion, for the postage of newspapers sent within Serbia or to foreign countries. On 14th Nov., 1912, a further order appeared, directing the withdrawal of the stamps, but allowing any remaining in the hands of the public to be exchanged for ordinary stamps within a period of ninety days. The statement made in Serf's Catalogue to the effect that only the low values, from 1 to 25 paras, were officially authorised for use is incorrect, as the order expressly mentions the whole series. The further statement made in the same catalogue that only these low values were distributed as specimens to the Postal Union, is probably also incorrect, but even if it were true, it would not affect the status of stamps formally approved by the issuing Government."

TURKS AND CAICOS ISLANDS.—William L. Aldrich & Co. have shown us the low values of the new set, as previously chronicled.

UPPER SENEGAL AND NIGER.—This Colony has been divided into parts, according to Lemaire's Journal, and new sets of stamps are shortly to be issued for Upper Senegal and for Niger.

VICTORIA.—A correspondent of Ewen's Weekly writes as follows:

"As one who has followed current Victorian stamps on the spot for the past ten years, I would like to remark that perhaps there was as much change in them in the year 1912 as in the whole nine previous years taken together. In the first part of the year the series Crown A on thick paper were in use. Then the ½, 1 and 2d came out on thin paper. Then the ½, 1, 2 and 9d, vertical watermark, came out on V and Crown duty paper (½ and 9d are known perf. 11). Then the ½, 1, 5, 6d and 1sh appeared on thin paper, ½d, watermark sideways this time. It is impossible to ignore the thin paper, for not only is it sometimes almost pelure, but the shade in different. The three pennies of 1912, i. e. A thick, A thin, and V and Crown duty, are all known in several shades, the first and last also with watermark sideways. Victorian stamps are now practically finished."

TO THE EDITOR:—

"Chambers' Machine Perforations," by R. J. Wagner, is a step in the right direction. Let us settle all matters about the time the stamps in question are in issue and there will be no need to search and research in the years to come. I believe Mr. Wagner has covered the subject excellently but there is one mistake he makes, when he writes, "There is one error known." There are three errors; the 1c and 2c, 1910, and

BOUND VOLUMES

Mekeel's Weekly Stamp News

We have recently had bound some volumes of the WEEKLY extending from 1902 to date. They are handsomely executed and, indexed by Mr. C. A. Howes, are invaluable to the serious collector. We offer these volumes at the following prices:—

the 1c, 1912, which is the rarest of all as stated by Mr. Wagner. The discovery of this extra hole was made by Messrs. Carbeen & Roberson and the late Ed Scheffer in the Chicago Philatelic rooms and there are twenty of each 1910, and only ten of the 1c, 1912. At the time Mr. Chambers extracted the extra tooth, he also rearranged all the teeth so now evenness is the order of the day, and there are no errors or different spacings between series of holes (some were 2 mm. apart and some 3 mm. apart) in the stamps now used. I do not know positively who has the errors of the 1c and 2c, 1910, but I do know the location of all the ten pairs of the 1c, 1912 "error" and they are all the way from New York City to California. Furthermore there is not a tinge of suspicion about the entire series of "Chambers."

REMEMBER THIS.

Section 673, Postal Laws and Regulations, is amended to read as follows: Unpaid, misdirected, unmailable and unclaimed domestic postal cards and post cards deposited for local delivery shall be returned to the sender when they bear his card address. All other undeliverable domestic cards shall be held for reclamation two weeks and then if not delivered shall be destroyed, or disposed of as waste, by postmasters, except that such as are obscene or scurrilous or bear uncanceled postage stamps, including the reply half of double postal cards, shall be sent to the Division of Dead Letters. Before being disposed of as waste the written communications on undeliverable cards shall be canceled or mutilated so as to prevent the improper use of the correspondence.

2. Undeliverable postal cards and post cards of foreign origin shall be sent to the Division of Dead Letters.

BRITISH EMBOSSED SERIES.

F. J. MELVILLE in Daily Telegraph.

The first two values in the series of embossing dies for Georgian postage stamps of Great Britain were delivered last week. Some envelopes of both denominations, 1/2d and 1d, were issued to various post offices and to the order of private firms. The stamps are the 1/2d green and the 1d red, and show a cameo profile to left of King George within an oval frame, with the crown at the top. The solid medallion of colour which forms the background to the profile is of an irregular shape in the halfpenny, and oval in the penny. The outer oval band in each case has uncoloured lettering of the words and figures of value, with interlaced uncoloured lines on a ground of colour. The embossed portrait, which is one of Mr. Bertram Mackennal's, gives the King rather an Italian appearance, and recalls Punch's criticism of the penny Edwardian issue as a "foreign stamp."

The embossed envelopes are manufactured for the Post Office by Messrs. McCordale & Co. (Ltd.) in a variety of sizes and shapes. In addition, stationers and other business firms are able to get their own stationery embossed with the postage duties at Somerset House, for which a small fee is charged on small quantities, though it is done without charge on large quantities. In the new halfpenny die there is a departure from precedent in the matter of size—a departure which is likely to prove a cause of much dissatisfaction with many business firms, and which, indeed, opens a channel for errors in embossing. The halfpenny is equal in size to the one penny, and in times of stress it may easily happen that the two duties may be transposed, the halfpenny being embossed in the colour of the penny, and vice versa.

But from the point of view of the business firms using large quantities of embossed envelopes of patent or other special designs for invoices, receipts, &c., such as the so-called "window envelope," the large halfpenny stamp will take up too much space. Some of these envelopes are of very small dimensions, with proportionately large "windows" through which the address can be read; these will scarcely take the large halfpenny stamp.

"The embossed postage stamps of Great Britain form a very interesting and handsome series, commencing in January, 1841, with the successor to the Mulready envelope. The fanciful design of the latter was received with such ridicule on its issue the previous May, that Rowland Hill foretold its early withdrawal in his diary on May 12th, 1840. 'I fear,' he wrote, 'we shall be obliged to substitute some other stamp for that designed by Mulready, which is abused and ridiculed on all sides. In departing so widely from the established 'Lion and Unicorn' nonsense, I fear that we have run counter to settled opinions and prejudices somewhat rashly. . . . I am already turning my attention to the substitution of another stamp, combining with it, as the public have shown their disregard and even distaste for beauty, some further economy in the production.' The embossed stamp which succeeded the Mulready envelope was, however, a thing of beauty, with a fine embossed profile of Queen Victoria to left, by Mr. William Wyon, of the Royal Mint, and an oval framework designed and executed by a Mr. Deacon, in the employ of Mr. Charles Whiting, of Beaufort House renown."

The Wyon head was retained, with technical and minor variations only, throughout the reign of Queen Victoria. Her late Majesty retained a partiality for that early portrait, which originated on the medal struck in commemoration of her first visit to the City of London (Nov. 9th, 1837) after her accession. The King Edward series of embossed stamps for postage duties bear a profile after a portrait by the well-known sculptor Emil Fuchs. Conforming to a well-conceived plan, the designs of the several duties vary in form, the duties ranging from 1/2d to 1s. The 1/2d green is oval, but of small size, and, along with the oval penny red stamp, appeared in January, 1902. The 1/2d yellow is shield-shaped (September, 1902), the 2d lake is oval (February, 1903), the 2 1/2d blue is a pointed oval, with a scalloped border (February, 1903), the 3d brown is of trilobe-shape (February, 1903), the 4d orange-vermilion is circular (circa February, 1903), the 6d violet is an irregular octagon (February, 1902), the 10d reddish-brown is octagonal, with an octagonal medallion in the centre (October, 1903), and the 1s is octagonal, with a shield-shaped medallion (September, 1903).

Most of these stamps are unfamiliar to the general public, and, except for the 1/2d and 1d denominations, are mostly used for stamping stationery to the order of private firms. The sixpence duty is largely used for stamped telegraph forms. The tenpence has been exclusively used for foreign and Colonial telegraph forms, the die having been abandoned as an ordinary postage duty in January, 1902. The Edward VII die, therefore, has not been used for regular postage purposes. There is one other embossed stamp which is more familiar in use than most of the embossed duties (excepting the 1/2d and 1d) and that is the 2d+1d registration fee and postage duty, which, in the Edwardian series, was issued in brown, in January, 1902. The stamp is not embossed to order at Somerset House, but is only supplied under the contract for post-office envelopes.

Meetings first (informal) and third (regular) Tuesdays, Room 322, Tremont Bldg., 7.30 P. M.

BOSTON, MASS., April 15, 1913.

The 290th (regular) meeting was held at the Club Room this evening with 36 members and friends present. President Nevin occupied the chair.

Mr. Carpenter announced that the evening's entertainment, an exhibition of Mr. Worthington's magnificent specialized collection, of Great Britain, had been held previous to the meeting as announced. Mr. Chas. H. Stone announced that Mr. F. W. Barry's fine collection of United States would be shown at the May meeting.

Mr. Stone also stated that the total contributions to the New York Stamp Exhibition from members of the Society now amounted to $151.00.

The name of Mr. Oscar Hill, proposed by B. L. Drew, was posted for membership.

New members were admitted: No. 575, Prof. Hamilton C. Macdougall; No. 576, Mr. M. B. Clark.

The reading of the new Constitution and its discussion, section by section, was then proceeded with and occupied the rest of the evening. A number of amendments were made and voted, and the Constitution finally adopted as a whole.

"UNTO THIS LAST."

By EDWIN B. HILL.

The Arizona summer with its heat had passed, and the coming winter had begun to call the tourist from the East. The snow-clad peaks of Superstition range and the Matatzals were visible forlornly. I felt desolate as they, for my friend, Frevor Moore, had gone into the hills in what we called Autumn to stay until Spring. With him had gone a veritable tourist of an Englishman,—one of those real gentlemen to whom all is strange,—one, too, who is inquiring. It was an axiom at Willow to save your lies for natives, and tell strangers the truth. That is why I steered clear of the Briton. I'd have to lie to him if he was receptive, although it would be merely passing on the local items retailed to me by cow-puncher or sheep-herder. So I hid out, and saw Moore depart for the hills with his friend.

"Mr. Moore was looking for you," said the red-headed girl in the post office when I collected four days' mail an hour after the cavalcade was out of sight. "He wanted you to meet his friend, Algon Prince."

"Ha! Prince, eh? Ha!" I replied, somewhat testily.

"Cheer up! You won't be bothered till Spring," said the girl, hopefully. "Too bad it's so short a time."

That was the straw. The red-headed girl saw I was piqued, and so she let it soak in.

After this little exchange of amenities, she was most kind and forgiving. I felt this intuitively; for she even went so far to prove it as to show me His picture,—a nice gentle cow-puncher who worked up at Moore's ranch. I knew and liked him.

I "holed-up" until the snow melted, the Winter floods passed, and the green showed on the mountains.

Moore came into the postoffice with his quick soft step, grasped my hand warmly, and then burst out:

"Heard the news? Madero dead—murdered—and I'm afraid for Juan—sore afraid he's gone out, too. I'm down to get word."

There were letters galore, but not the letter.

"No news is bad news" declared

Moore. "But I want you to come up to the ranch with me and meet my friend, Prince," he continued.

"Ha!" ejaculated the red-haired girl, and then busied herself amongst the letters. I shrunk properly. That stab from her was entirely unnecessary.

"Glad—glad to go!" I replied quickly; and I was. So we rode forth into the mountains.

At the ranch-house I was introduced to Algon Prince, of London. He knew his Lamb and his Coleridge and his Keats,—and I cursed my stupidity and boorishness. Better than that, to me, just then, he knew stamps, as none besides,—while of the ways of the forger and the faker he was as familiar as with an open book. It was glorious! And I'd missed it all these months!

"Show him your collection of rarities," suggested Moore, as he puffed at his pipe.

Prince went over to Moore's trunk, and pulled forth a small black volume.

"In mourning," he laughingly declared as he passed it over to me.

I opened the book at the first page. The sight took my breath. Hawaii! Missionaries! Eight of them! There was a sight for the gods! I gloated and gloated; for these were the first of those famous stamps I had ever seen.

"And every one a gem,—if only they were perfect," added Prince, sadly.

I looked again. Then I took the book into a better light. My eyes, schooled as they were to search for skillful repairs, with difficulty discerned the work of an artist in every stamp.

"LeGrande! As I'm a sinner!" burst from my lips.

"Yes; the greatest of them all," said Prince. "There are just 229 stamps in that book, worth as many thousand pounds if perfect, every one of which has been repaired by that wonderful artist, LeGrande, of Paris. One year ago he died. These were his legacy to me,—his swan-song,—the gems of his curious collection. You knew the old man? Not a perfect stamp in his small shop. Every one had been repaired by himself. Why, he must have restored rarities worth millions of pounds.

H. F. COLMAN,

Second National Bank Bldg.,

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Good old LeGrande! I can see him now, amongst his darlings, as he called them,—those ruins of rarities. He taught me to respect his art, which has died with him.

Prince slowly filled a pipe as I looked through the volume, noting the world's greatest rarities made to look as good as the best. But always I recurred to the Missionaries.

"LeGrande was a character, and the soul of integrity, too," said Moore. "I knew him fairly well the last two years of his life. Don't you remember, I asked him once to alter a common variety into a rarity? I wanted to use it as a joke when I went back to London. I can see, now, how the old man's hand trembled as he took from his stock-book a copy of this rarity, and handed it to me. 'Yours,' he said. I tried to explain. The old man waved me off, and went into the rear room, closing the door. My eye! I was in a stew until you dropped in and I explained. Then I went to my pension until you came for me."

"I have that stamp yet. And the memory, too, of an insulted and hurt old man. He was apology personified. I remember, when you fetched me across Paris to him. But I never forgot it,—nor did he."

We sat silent, looking across the mesa. The rhythmic sound of hoof-beats came on the breeze,—sighing through the house.

"There's death in it!" declared Moore, suddenly, as he dropped his pipe and sprang to the open door. We crowded the narrow entry into the open.

A solitary horseman, mounted upon a sorry animal, was close upon us. The man was an Indian, and he rode as if he had come a long distance. He was on the verge of falling as Moore caught him, swaying in the saddle. Moore helped the man indoors, we gave him water. He thanked us gravely, and then, looking intently at Moore, he spoke slowly in perfect English:

"Senor, he is dead. He sent me to tell you. I—I follow quickly."

That was all, in English. Then, in his adoptive Spanish, he poured forth his soul of love and affectionate remembrance. He was the last of his tribe,—the last of the house where he had served three generations. Huerta's men had led his master to his death with Madero that bloody day. José knew the end long before it came. His people were not ready,—the reforms were in advance of their time. And so—

That night the old man slept into the Silence. We buried him at dawn, where the sun shone first upon the hilltop, and the evening sun last at night. His faithfulness had brought to him desired rest.

S.P.A. CONVENTION AT WICHITA, KANS.

The annual convention of the Southern Philatelic Association will be held at Wichita, Kans. where the S. P. A. has a live branch. The date will be Sept. 13-14-15, 1913. This past year has been one of great success and one of the best conventions in years is sure to be among the results. Already a number of the prominent officers have expressed their intention of being present. Every collector residing within a reasonable distance should be present: for he is sure to meet some of America's leading philatelists. Wichita is a live city and situated as it is, it makes an ideal convention city for collectors in the middle western states. Every collector in the U. S. (and elsewhere for that matter) is cordially invited to be present at this convention. Those who will be present are urged to inform C. V. Webb, Sec.-Treas. S. P. A., Perry, Ohio, of that fact.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—We are indebted to Herman W. Boers for a couple of clippings. Mr. Boers also notes a 1c parcel post precancelled in two lines "Cleveland, Ohio".

—We have been favored with a handsome calendar from the office of the International Stamp Co. This firm occupies a foremost rank in the character of its calendars, and the patrons of the firm are fortunate in being thus favored.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from John U. Hoffman, L. A. Nixon, Fred W. Bauer.

—Ivan Shoemaker sends us an aeroplane cancellation bearing date April 19, 1913, and postmarked Sacramento, Cal. The postmark is of the regulation order.

—G. de Lachasse, N.Y. City, expresses the desire that dealers shall remove his name from their lists, in order that he may be relieved of the receipt of price-lists, auction catalogs, etc. Through failing eyesight he has been compelled to cease collecting and has sold his specialized collections of United States and France.

—L. A. Beebe, Yonkers, N. Y., shows us a strip of the Siam 2 satang, Scott's No. 109, in which is found an interesting example of irregular perforating. Each of the three stamps is perforated horizontally in such a manner that the row of perforations is not even with the row on the neighboring stamp.

—J. J. Prendergast submits a specimen of the label issued by the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, to advertise this hostelry. It is quite an imposing label printed in green and black with pictures of Gen. Sherman and Hon. John Sherman in oval frames. The label is oblong rectangular in shape, and there are six different combinations of colors.

—We are indebted to the following subscribers for back numbers of the WEEKLY needed to complete files:—Paul S. Hedrick, E. A. Ricksecker, Geo. McL. Lawson, M. C. English, E. S. Bissinger, M. Swenson and W. E. Mallalieu.

—Kansas City parcel post precancels have been issued on 1c, 2c, 5c, 10c, 15c, 20c and 25c. They are now printed from a plate, instead of a roller as on other issues. The name is in two lines "Kansas City—Missouri" typewriter capitals being used. They are printed on a multigraph machine in the post-office.—H. F. KOHR.

MAIL FOR THE MURPHYS.

A freckle-faced girl stopped at the post office and yelled out: "Anything for the Murphys?"

"No, there is not," said the postmaster.

"Anything for Jane Murphy?"

"Nothing."

"Anything for Ann Murphy?"

"No."

"Anything for Bob Murphy?"

"Not a bit."

"Anything for Lize Murphy?"

"No, nor Pat Murphy, nor Dennis Murphy, nor Peter Murphy, nor Paul Murphy, nor John, Jack nor Jim Murphy, nor any Murphy, dead, living, unborn, native or foreign, civilized, savage or barbarous, male or female, black or white, franchised or disfranchised, natural or otherwise. No! there is positively nothing, jointly, severally, now and forever."

The girl looked at the postmaster in astonishment, and said: "Please see if there is anything for Jerry Murphy."

ADVERTISING COPY DUE SATURDAY.

We must have the cooperation of every advertiser in the matter of the early receipt of advertising copy. It must reach this office not later than Saturday of each week, which will enable us to issue the WEEKLY on time as a general thing. Our large edition of 7200 copies is a severe tax upon the facilities of our mailing force and the early receipt of copy will aid us very materially in getting the paper into the post office on time.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

New Card.—The order of the postmaster-general to issue the United States postal card in green in conformity with the recommendations of the Universal Postal Union was given the widest publicity by the newspapers, some of which treated the announcement with the embellishments that are a setting for important news.

In Ward Thirteen.—Said the Attendant at the Asylum for the Addled: "Those stamp collectors with their brains tied in knots are beginning to get on my nerves and if Doc doesn't soon stand for a raise, I will discharge myself. That new fellow over there playing with stamps as if he were on a sand-pile was brought here by his sorrowing folks, who put up with him until nature rebelled. It seems that he had a mania for buying the large lots of stamps that were 'guaranteed unpicked.' He got the mixtures by the million, by the sack, by the hoghead and by the ton, I guess, as he had his house stuffed with stamps from basement to attic. He did nothing but hunt through these stamps for great rarities that he was sure that he would uncover. Though he never found anything to speak of, he became all the more set in buying the lots and when he tried to mortgage the old home to raise the coin to buy a freight-car consignment of the great unpicked, a halt was called.

Bargain: Complete imperforate sheet of 240 Hudson Fulton, plate number 5393 or 5395 either for $10.00.

EUGENE KLEIN, Inc., Empire Bldg., 13th & Walnut Sts., Philadelphia, Pa.

Here he has easy picking, without meaning to joke, but I suppose that when no new lots of stamps are given him, he will raise a rumpus. That poet surely was right when he said that 'Hope springs eternal in the human breast'.

Restored.—Count Lapp DeBooz is speaking: "Wishing to perpetuate my fame as a mycologist, I decided that I would seek a new variety of fungus in the wilderness of Bajax, even though I had to defy the fierce inhabitants of the country. I was ambushed and dragged before the savage chieftain who ordered that I be confined until the next feast-day, when, said the ruler, I would be 'served right.' My doom was sealed in these light words and a prey to woe, I opened my pocket duplicate-book of stamps for a last lingering look at my beloved possessions. I noticed that a three cent, 1851, United States, had become sulphuretted to black almost and mechanically, I gave it a bath of peroxide of hydrogen. The H202 did the work and instantly revealed the original red color of the stamp. An exclamation of awe caused me to look up and I found the repellent features of the king softened by a smile. 'He make black man, red man; he big medicine man,' said the king and from that time on, he and his people almost suffocated me with kindness. However, having discovered the new fungoid growth, I left the country secretly, not wishing to witness the grief of the Bajaxes who had become so attached to me. On my travels, I make it a rule now to carry a little vial of hydrogen peroxide."

Delicate Distinction.—Mr. R. J. Hogg of Adelaide, South Australia, has sent the following details of a complication in watermarks in Victoria which few collectors will be able to untangle. The differences between the two issues are very slight and are likely to test the keenness of the specialist. It seems that recently, the Australian Commonwealth authorities ran out of paper and the half penny, one, two and nine pence, respectively, for use in Victoria, of the old Victorian types, were printed on paper that was borrowed in consequence from the state department for the printing of the state revenue stamps. As this paper is watermarked, V over crown, in the old pattern in use before the crown over double-lined A paper was introduced, the appropriation of the paper for postal use perhaps would not have been detected; but as it happened that some marginal strips of the paper were saved, with the double-lined watermark on the top margin, "Stamp Duty," no doubt could exist of the issue of the Victorian stamps on the revenue paper. It would be difficult to recognize the paper in question particularly in the case of used stamps but as only a small printing was made before the use of the paper was dispensed with, it is not likely that cataloguers will notice the reappearance of the old crown and V paper stamps of Victoria.

Earn Their Rest.—Further, our correspondent tells of the final exit of two philatelic patriarchs whose faces have been scanned by collectors from the beginning of philatelic time to the present day. One of these stamps, both of which were issued by New South Wales was happily named the Grand Old Stamp of philately on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of its use. New South Wales can claim a double record now that the advent of the Commonwealth issue will retire the two oldest stamps on the stage. The large diadem head, five pence green, was first issued in 1855 imperforate, on paper watermarked 5 in double lines. The stamp in its original color, green, has been on sale to the public for fifty-eight years; and for fifty-three years, it has been in perforated condition while for thirty-three years, it has been on sale in the same condition as regards paper and perforation, "although for ten years previously, the difference in watermark was such that only the more expert could detect it." All through the years, these stamps have been printed "from the one engraved plate made in England and sent out from the workshops of Perkins Bacon and Company." The second stamp which is given honorable mention is the three pence value, green, 1856, a stamp that is only one year younger than the large five pence. For fifty-seven years the three pence has been printed in the same color and in all respects this venerable friend is a worthy partner of the Grand Old Stamp.

One-Cent National Precanceled.—Mr. W. A. Kain, St. John, New Brunswick, has sent for inspection, two copies of the one-cent blue, 1870 issue, that must be included under the precanceled classification. One of the stamps has two printed bars, each a millimeter wide, and the other, three of these bars horizontally across the face. Unquestionably the impression was made by printed rules with the purpose of precanceling the stamps in sheets or strips. We have seen precanceled one cent blue of the 1870 design of later printings used on the envelopes but until now, the National variety had not been examined.

That Reminds Us.—About a year or so ago, a copyrighted label appeared as an advertisement of the International Fair at San Francisco in 1915. The central design of the sticker in an oval frame represented the Golden Gate, with steamer in foreground; and the inscription read: "Panama-Pacific International Exposition, San Francisco, Cal., U. S. A." The letters, P. P. I. E., respectively, one of which was in each corner were printed in a light buff and so were the sun, with "1915" across its face, and its reflection on the water; otherwise, the label was in blue. The label which many of our readers have seen, no doubt, was a superior lithograph and perforated. For some time, we have not seen one of these "stamps" but now that a reader sends one for examination, we should like to know whether the label has been suppressed with others of different kinds. Under the close scrutiny to which labels are subjected by the authorities, when

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

A COLLECTOR'S WORKING LIBRARY.

By CHAS. E. JENNEY.

An article by Edwin B. Hill "Concerning Old Catalogues" in a recent number of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY suggested to me another on the actual working library of a general collector of stamps. Like him I have a file of the Scott catalogues away back to the days when it was a large paper covered volume, but most of them have now served their day and well too, although here and there they conserve bits of information left out of later editions. They stand in a row in my book-case; but on my desk within easy reach of my hand is a varied working library that is consulted almost daily.

First, of course, is the current edition of the Scott catalogue, and with it the little separate booklet listing the U. S. locals and the Chinese Treaty Ports. Third, for State revenues I use Kenyon's catalogue of the state revenues. Fourth, for Mexican revenues and the U. S. francs on envelopes there is Mekeel's old catalogue of the stamps of the world. Fifth, for U. S. envelope varieties I consult Berthold's Varieties of the Nesbitt dies. Sixth, for entire envelopes, Bartels' Envelope catalogue. Seventh, for the U. S. 1903 envelope dies, Pollard's little catalogue of these. Eighth, for Hydrometer and Lock Seals and certain foreign cancellations, I have the little handbooks of the Springfield Philatelic Club on "Side-lines." Ninth, for English stamps, I find Morley's catalogue comprehensive. Tenth, for English cancellations is the large volume of Hendy's History of the Postmarks of the British Isles. Eleventh, for Canada revenues, I go to Hall's Standard Catalogue of the Revenue Stamps of Canada. Twelfth, for U. S. Proofs I delve in Toppan's Tentative Check List of U. S. Proofs. Thirteenth, for Canada in general, Howe's "Canada" has often to be searched. Fourteenth, for U. S. minor varieties Toppan's Notes upon U. S. and their Varieties. Fifteenth, for further information along the same line and for shades and particulars of issue, Power's work on U. S. Stamps. Sixteenth, Gibbon's Catalogue for explanations of types not fully described by Scott.

These may not be quite all, but they present the main features of my working library and all are in constant use, being, each in its way, the best I know of in that line, though some of them are very old publications and out of print. Of course, there are a number of subsidiary handbooks that require occasional reference, such as Poole's "Hong Kong," Melville's "Jamaica" and "The Line Engraved Stamps of Great Britain," Morley's "One Penny Black" and "One Penny Red" and Yvert & Tellier's French catalogue which includes the revenues of France.

In addition to the foregoing there are always a number of current stamp magazines with specialized articles that require digestion, and in addition to all, a most important home-made loose-leaf record of uncatalogued varieties of all countries and their descriptions. Many of these items would otherwise be forgotten in the swift-moving film-roll of philatelic events, and only noticed too late in the volumes of the greatest specialists, were it not for this constant reminder.

And always in my vest-pocket is the little loose-leaf list of my special wants of all countries, with minute annotations of how far they escaped me at some of the past auctions.

The above list may look formidable to the beginner yet I am assured that there are scores of diligent philatelists using about all of them and perhaps more. In the larger cities where there are philatelic societies, it may not be necessary for the individuals to possess so many separate catalogues, but it is certainly handy to have them. Most of the volumes I use as check lists and save a good deal of unnecessary handling of the stamp albums, but this is to a measure offset by frequently missing something if the stamps themselves are not before one.

AEROPLANE CANCELLATIONS.

By ARTHUR T. BROWNE, B. P. S. No. 543.

Columbia, Tenn.—The first aeroplane cancellation from the State of Tennessee was used at an aviation meet held at South Side Park, Columbia, September 10-13, 1912. Aviator Horace Kearney who was drowned while making a flight off the Pacific coast a few months ago, was the aerial mail carrier. From a special postoffice on the aviation grounds Kearney carried mail each day of the meet to the postoffice, a distance of a mile and a quarter. Kearney gave a remarkable demonstration of mail carrying. Each day he flew he reached an altitude of a mile. Yet when he dropped the sack of mail it always landed within 100 feet of the postoffice. Both the aeroplane cancellation and cancellation were in bright red ink. The postmark was circular in shape. At the top were the words "Aeroplane Station." In the center was the date. At the bottom were the words "Columbia, Tenn." The aeroplane cancellation was as follows:

—AVIATION——FIELD—

Cedar Falls, Iowa.—A big Home Coming Celebration was held at Cedar Falls, Iowa, September 2-7, 1912, during which time aviator Lincoln Beachey, America's premier bird-man, and who has recently announced his intention of quitting the game, cut up all sorts of aerial capers and incidentally carried mail on the last two days of the celebration. Beachey made three flights a day. Beachey carried mail from a special postoffice on the grounds to a point near the postoffice, a distance of about two miles. The sack of mail was dropped and picked up by a waiting automobile. The aeroplane cancellation consisted of three lines of type and was as follows:

Aeroplane Mail Service
 Sept. 7-1912
 Cedar Falls, Iowa.

Lock Haven, Pa.—From a Los Angeles aero collector I have secured a copy of the Lock Haven, Pa., aeroplane cancellation which was used October 7, 8 and 9, 1912. I described this service in MEKEEL'S of April 5, the aviator being Walter Johnson of the Thomas Aviation Company of Bath, N. Y. The postmaster at Lock Haven wrote me that no cancellation was used yet Johnson wrote me that there was such a cancellation. And now comes my Los Angeles friend, Mr. Glen W. Perkins, and proves this to be a fact. The postmark was elliptical in shape and purple ink was used. At the top were the words "U. S. Official Aerial Mail Stamp." At the bottom was the date "1912."

Rockport, Ind.—At an aviation meet held at the Rockport, Ind., Fair Grounds, August 20-24, 1912, aviator Horace Kearney carried mail for a distance of about one mile, from the fair grounds to the postoffice. Kearney made a trip a day for the first three days of the meet and averaged about 700 pieces of mail per day. He started from the special postoffice on the grounds and dropped the sack of mail in front of the postoffice. The aeroplane postmark was in blue ink and was like the following illustration:

Aeroplane Station
 Aug 23, 1912
 Rockport, Ind.
 From Rockport Fair

The cancellation consisted of four thick lines, one inch in length and one-eighth of an inch in thickness. The second and third lines were broken. Inserted in these were the words "U. S.—MAIL."

and will be a fitting climax to the series of special numbers we have been issuing. In addition to our regular list of 7200 subscribers we shall print a large extra edition to use during the summer months, for sample copy circulation. In addition we shall print an extra edition for new names supplied by leading dealers.

* * *

OUR contract rates are the lowest, (circulation considered) of any stamp paper in the world, and that our advertisers are satisfied is evidenced by their long continued patronage of our paper. For space to be used any time during a given year send for rate card.

* * *

USERS of large space in a single issue are accorded special terms. This concession is made to allow opportunity for displayed advertisements, auction sales, etc. Note the special rates quoted:

Full page (576 lines) only $57.60
 1/2 " (288 lines) only 30.00
 1/4 " (144 lines) only 15.00

* * *

ALL the world's great advertisers, not only in America but Europe as well are with us regularly and with us because it pays.

* * *

EVEN the small advertiser has his page where two or three lines can be used for offers to buy, sell or exchange. We have averaged over two columns all winter and our patrons express great satisfaction. Here are our terms for "small ads":

Rate per line only 20c
 50 lines to use at will $7.50

Have Copy in May 24

WE would like to know how much space you can use by return mail. Have your copy reach us not later than May 24. Bear in mind that our advertising rates are the cheapest in the world and we will prove our case to any advertiser.

W. H. PECKITT'S 10% NEW ISSUE SERVICE

The great demand that has arisen of late years for the prompt and efficient supply of NEW ISSUES OF COLONIAL STAMPS, and the success of the above service, has caused me to greatly extend the arrangements originally made for the regular supply of this class of stamp.

Taking Colonial Stamps, I have very early supplies of all New Issues as they appear, both of the regular sets and of most Provisionals. These are supplied just as they come to hand, at a uniform percentage over face value of 10 per cent. (1-15 in the 1sh).

It will be seen that this method affects a large saving to the regular subscriber, and at the same time gives the Collector a unique opportunity of participating in a fortunate importation of a Provisional or issue of a temporary character, which, if imported in the ordinary course, is put aside for him as certainly as are the usual Current Sets.

The rate of 10 per cent includes everything as it is received, such as any Provisionals, etc., etc., and so on.

Limitations, such as that stamps are to be up to a certain denomination only; or extensions, such as all are to be supplied in blocks of four etc., can easily be put into effect, in, to take typical instances, the following manner:—

- All Colonial Stamps to be supplied in single copies up to and including £5 value.
- All Colonial Stamps to be supplied in single copies up to and including 20sh value.
- All Colonial Stamps to be supplied in single copies up to and including 5sh value.
- All Colonial Stamps to be supplied in single copies up to and including 2sh 6d value.
- All Colonial Stamps to be supplied in single copies up to and including 1sh value.

And so on, while any variations desired or suggested will be carefully considered: pairs or blocks can be supplied in the same manner, if required.

Subscribers have the additional advantage of receiving gratis and post free my regular Monthly List containing Notes on New Issues, Price Lists of King's Heads, and Serial Colonial Catalogue.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding pre-cancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDRIDGE, Attleboro, Mass. Specimens must accompany chronicle, with self-addressed stamped envelope for return of the same. Please note these rules.

UNITED STATES.—The following new precancels are listed by Frank B. Eldridge:

Riverton, N. J.—(1164) 4c, 10c, 1913, Parcel Post.

Buffalo, N. Y.—(1164) 15c, 1913, Parcel Post.

Seattle, Wash.—Two lines (SEATTLE-WASH.) horizontal inscription in serif capitals, 2½ mm. high, between lines 14 mm. apart and ¾ mm. thick. 1c & 15c, 1913, Parcel Post. Reported by Edmond K. Janes.

Ashland, Ohio.—(1145) 1c, 1913 Parcel Post, Inverted.

ARGENTINE.—Champion's Bulletin notes the issue of the 10c dark green locally printed, on paper watermarked honeycomb. The Stamp Collector's Fortnightly says that the 2c, 4c and 5c values of the current stamps have been overprinted "Centenario de las Instrucciones del Año XIII." Like the similar issue for Uruguay, noted below only 150,000 stamps of each value were thus surcharged, and they were on sale only from April 4 to 20. They were available for postage for Argentine and Uruguay only.

BELGIUM.—We chronicled the new 35c Postal Packet stamp in No. 1160, on the authority of a French contemporary. William L. Aldrich has now shown us the stamp, and we find the colors are quite different from those stated.

Postal Packet Adhesive.

27c yellow bistre and green.

BERMUDA.—William L. Aldrich & Co. have shown us the 2d value in the "Hog Money" type.

Adhesive.

2d gray.

BRITISH GUIANA.—Champion's Bulletin chronicles and illustrates a new issue for this Colony, from "specimen" stamps, the design being an entirely new one. The familiar ship is relegated to a subordinate place in a small circle in the lower left hand corner.

The portrait of King George printed in a medium sized oval in the upper left, with the value in a large tablet in the lower left corner. The portrait oval is surmounted by the crown. The name of the Colony appears in two tablets in the upper right corner of the stamp, while "Postage & Revenue" appears in a tablet at the right centre. Conventional ornaments and native foliage fill up the balance of the design.

Adhesives.

6c gray and black.
12c (?)

CANADA.—Marian L. Merchant and Frank B. Eldridge send us further specimens of special postmarks for coming events in the Dominion, including the Toronto Horse Show, Exposition Provinciale de Quebec, Ottawa Horse Show, Guelph's Old Home Week, Regina Business Men's Convention, Vancouver Mid-Summer Fair, and Edmonton Exhibition.

Adhesives.

40c purple and black; Prieto.
60c blue and black; Montt.

Mr. Davis has also shown us a new envelope, the stamp being similar to the current adhesives, but larger, measuring 25x29 mm.

Envelope.

10c gray brown on white; portrait of Correna.

COLOMBIA.—Champion's Bulletin is informed that as the Colombian Government has not accepted the proposition of the American Bank Note Co., who offered to furnish the proposed emission of 36,000,000 stamps for the sum of $18,000, it is probable that the issue will not see the light. The last award has been held up as the houses taking part in the competition have not conformed to the list of prices. The next issue will be a new fabrication by the "Lithographe National de Bogota." The materials and machines have already been ordered, and experts will come from abroad to direct the work.

ECUADOR.—Several of the stamps of 1907 to 1911 issues have been seen with "Official" in surcharge, according to Champion's Bulletin.

Official Adhesives.

1c red and black.
2c orange and black.
5c carmine and black.
10c blue and black.

FINLAND.—We hear from Mr. Morse that the local cards have undergone a change. Those reported in No. 1131 were lithographed but were later typographed, and aside from the clearer impression, the change can be seen in a coarser groundwork in the stamps and in the line of instruction which is 59½ mm. long instead of 60½ mm.

Post Cards.

10p carmine on white.
20x10p carmine on white; T. 3.

ITALY.—Champion's Bulletin illustrates the Pneumatic Post stamp announced in No. 1165. The stamp is of large design like the "Espresso" and "Expres" stamps, the design showing a portrait of the King at the left, facing towards the left, and framed with a wreath of oak and laurel. The value "10 Centesimi 10" covers the wreath at the bottom. "Regno—D'Italia" is printed in two lines in the upper right corner, with the crown and shield between this and a large tablet in the lower right corner, containing the two words, "Posta—Pneumatica." The stamp is printed on paper watermarked Crown and perforated 14.

Pneumatic Post Stamp.

10c brown.

JAMAICA.—Hermann Focke reports the 4d of the King George set. This stamp was issued at Kingston, May 1.

Adhesive.

4d red and black on yellow.

MITYLENE.—Champion's Bulletin has the following regarding the recent surcharges on Turkish stamps which circulated in the Island. These surcharges were produced in the Post offices of Mitylene and Molyno, the two principal cities of the Island. The number of stamps surcharged of each value were as follows: 2 paras, 21,000; 5 paras, 2,000; 10 paras, 10,100; 20 paras, 18,200; 1 piastre, 5,945; 2 piastres, 446; 2½ piastres, 900; 5 piastres, 133; 10 piastres, 94; 1 piastre postage due, 164; 25l on 2 paras, 2400; 50l on 20 paras, 2400; 1dr on 20 paras, 1200; 2dr on 1 piastre, 1200. As will be seen the emission was exceedingly restricted, and certain values will probably be classed among the great rarities of Europe.

MONTENEGRO.—An "Acknowledgment of Receipt" stamp should have been added to the list of the new series in No. 1167, the type being the same as the adhesives. All are perforated 12.

Acknowledgment of Receipt Adhesive.
25p olive.

NEW ZEALAND.—According to Champion's Bulletin, the Life Insurance series has been issued in new colors, with "V. R." omitted.

Life Insurance Adhesives.

½d yellow green.
1d dark carmine.
2d lilac.
3d yellow brown.
6d carmine rose.

RUSSIA.—Supplementing the statement in No. 1165, we translate the following from Champion's Bulletin: "The new series was not to have a commemorative character—it was simply designed to replace the stamps of 1909. Not until the moment when the Holy Synod has considered as irrelevant the action of daubing the portraits reproduced upon the stamps, and it was proposed to retire them from circulation, was it decided to give them a commemorative, or rather jubilee character. But during the meantime the machines which served for the printing of the preceding stamps having been discontinued, the Postal Authorities finding it impossible to replace the new stamps by the older issues, of which the stock had been exhausted, it was decided that this jubilee series should remain in circulation until the new stamps without portraits were printed. It is thought that at least five or six months will be necessary for the printing of the new stamps, which, according to the latest information, will represent views of Russia."

The above is confirmed by Whitfield King & Co. who say "that the stamps have not been withdrawn, but can be obtained without any difficulty at any Post office in Russia."

URUGUAY.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us three provisionals from this country, the 1c, 2c and 5c of the lithographed series having been overprinted in black—"Centenario—de las—Instrucciones—del—Año XIII." The stamps were issued April 4, and were on sale until April 20. As they could easily have been sold out on the first day, the sales were strictly limited and no one was able to buy in large quantities. The number issued of each of the three values was 150,000. They were to be used only in Uruguay and Argentine, in connection with the stamps noted above.

TACOMA A BIT EXCITED.

Clipping from H. S. BLACKBURN.

A collection of stamps to the number of about 3500 have just been sold by Le Roy Pratt, a Tacoma capitalist, for $300 to an Eastern philatelist. This collection contained only what are known as pre-canceled stamps.

Mr. Pratt and other local gatherers of stamps are all excited over the arrival at the Tacoma postoffice of some special delivery stamps with the top frame line missing. Not one of a hundred persons calling at the stamp window to make purchases could tell there is anything wrong with these stamps.

A small number of sheets were printed on the plate with a defective border, and the stamp collectors are buying them in blocks.

It is said that a single 10-cent special delivery stamp with the upper border missing is worth close to 75 cents each, and a block of four is worth about $3.

The local stamp collectors have a society which meets once a month, usually at the home of the president, James A. Hays. Other members are P. M. N. Carlsen, vice president; V. D. Tomlinson, secretary; August Von Boecklin, Le Roy Pratt, Alfred A. Johnson, Roy W. Russell, Walter A. Herrin, Louis Johnson, R. P. Tarr, Ernest H. Little and Fred Lawrence.

One of the interesting collections is owned by Louis Johnson, an old resident of Tacoma. In his book he has outlined houses of different designs and the stamps serve as windows.—Tacoma (Wash.) Tribune.

Reports from members concerning recent flood conditions.—A little out of the regular order:

C. W. Stutesman, Peru, Indiana.—The water was 5 feet deep in his house. Did much damage to furniture and lost his library; but saved his postal card collection. Himself and family are well and safe.

Seigfried Schachne, Chillicothe, Ohio.—Himself and family escaped all injury. The water reached the cellar. Damage but little.

Rev. M. Klosowski, Plover, Wis.—Town flooded. Some damage in the town. Himself safe.

H. E. Carpenter, Cincinnati, Ohio.—All safe. Much damage in the city. Terrible conditions.

Nicholas Adler, Louisville, Ky.—Resides on the Indiana side of the river. No damage to himself. Great damage in the city, and terrible condition of affairs.

W. E. Ault (former member). Jeffersonville, Indiana.—Safe, but distant members of the family had bad scare. Much damage done.

Serious Exchange Wanted on Approval Sheets

With Medium and Advanced Collectors and Dealers

In the future we intend to greatly enlarge the scope of our stock and we therefore offer IN EXCHANGE for stamps, suitable for our use, of all countries but specially U. S. A. Departmental and General Issues, Hawaii and English Colonies:

All the Stamps of Spain, Spanish West Indies, Cuba, Porto Rico, Philippines, Rio De Oro, Fernando Poo, Elobey, Guinea Used, unused and also in pairs, strips, blocks and on original covers which hitherto we have made our speciality and of which we certainly hold the largest and most important stock in the world.

Within the last few years we have made purchases exclusively in these stamps for sums exceeding $100,000 of which the most important were:

The entire magnificent stock of the firm Antonio Vives of Madrid for which we paid $20,000, the celebrated specialized collections of Count de San Simon and Miguel Galvez also of Madrid, the whole stock of M. T—— of Barcelona, the greater part of the Spanish stocks of the late dealers Isaac Blanco and Jules Bernichon of Paris.

Exchange is Made on the Following Conditions:

(I) We do not demand any discounts, as we do not indulge in speculation and only wish to form a stock of foreign stamps in the way of exchange. Stamps must therefore be quoted by both parties at catalogue prices (Scott, Gibbons, Kohl, Senf, Yvert, etc.)

(II) We take stamps catalogued at least 5 cents up to $100 each and as we have practically no stock of foreign countries we can use almost anything if in perfect condition. Selections under $10 Catalogue Value are not accepted. We accept up to 20 specimens of the medium priced stamps but we will be glad to furnish, if wanted, only one specimen of any desired kind.

(III) In exchange we offer any stamp of the above countries according to list of wants and we are disposed to give rarities for cheap and medium stamps.

(IV) With Dealers we are open to exchange per 10 to 50 pieces or sets on cash basis.

(V) We answer always within 8 days by sending a selection of at least equal value. All the stamps remain the property of the sender until contra value has been wholly selected.

(VI) All remittances must be registered or insured.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 231, Altadena, Calif.

THE STAMPS OF THE GERMAN EMPIRE.

Bavaria.

THE THIRD ISSUE.

An official notice, dated July 6th, 1862, announced that on October 1st following, various changes would be made in the colors of the different values, viz.—

The 3 kreuzer, taken as equivalent to 5 Austrian neugroschen or 1 silbergroschen, will for the future be printed in rose instead of blue.

The 6 kreuzer, equivalent to 10 Austrian neugroschen or 2 silbergroschen, will be printed in blue instead of brown.

The 9 kreuzer, equivalent to 15 Austrian neugroschen or 3 silbergroschen, will be printed in light brown instead of green.

The colors of the remaining values will be altered from the same date as follows:—

The 1 kreuzer, from rose to yellow.

The 12 kreuzer, from red to green.

The 18 kreuzer, from yellow to vermilion red.

The change in the colors of the 3, 6, and 9 kreuzer was made so that these denominations would correspond to those of the other signatories to the German-Austrian postal union and this, of course, necessitated the changes in the other values to prevent confusion. The exact dates of issue of the new varieties is not known. All we know is that the stamps in the new colors were placed on sale as the stocks in the former tints became exhausted. The stamps were printed from the same plates as before and in most of them considerable variation of shade may be found. The 6kr in ultramarine is a rare shade worth looking for.

This completes the history of the "numeral" stamps of Bavaria but before dealing with the later issues it will be as well to refer to certain varieties, printed in black on colored paper, so that there may be no misunderstanding as to their status should any of our readers come across them. We can best do this by reprinting the following paragraph from the Philatelic Record:—

It was the custom in Bavaria to make up the stamps for the supply of the post-offices into packets of fifty sheets, and these were placed in covers of various colored paper, on which a copy of the stamp, with the number of sheets and stamps in the packet, was printed in black. No order for this is found among the official documents relating to the earlier issues, but the system continued in use till the close of the numeral issues. During the period which commenced subsequently to the issue of the 1 kreuzer, type II, down to October, 1862, the color of the paper for the 1 kreuzer was gray, that for the 3 kreuzer was blue, that for the 6 kreuzer was brown, that for the 9 kreuzer was green, that for the 12 kreuzer was red, and that for the 18 kreuzer was yellow. The stamps impressed on the covers had no postal value whatever, and were simply printed on the covers as an indication of the particular value of the stamps contained in them.

THE FOURTH ISSUE.

The adoption of a new design for the stamps of Bavaria evidently involved much serious consideration for, though the idea was mooted in the early part of 1865 and proofs were actually existent twelve months later, it was not until January 1st, 1867, that the stamps were really issued. The approaching change was announced by means of a Government Notice dated December 14th, 1866, the salient provisions of which were as follows:—

With the Royal approval a new issue of postage stamps has been prepared, which will be issued according to the consumption of the stock of the existing values.

The new stamps are, like the former, printed in color on white paper traversed by a red silk thread, and bear the Royal Arms of Bavaria, with the two supporters in white relief on a colored ground, and with the numeral of value in each angle. The stamps will, like the former, be issued for the values of 1, 3, 6, 9, 12, and 18 kreuzer.

The colors of the stamps of 3, 6, 9, and 18 kreuzer are, as in the former issue, carmine-red, blue, light brown, and vermilion-red; the stamps of the 1 kreuzer are green in place of yellow, and those of 12 kreuzer violet in place of green.

The delivery of the new stamps to the post-offices will be in sheets of 60 pieces, and in larger quantities in packets of 50 sheets.

The design consists of the Arms of Bavaria surmounted by a Royal crown with lions as supporters. Under the Arms is scroll ornamentation with "KREUZER" in small capitals below; while above is the name "BAYERN." The preceding details are on a background of solid color and of somewhat eccentric shape. In the angles are numerals in white on solid colored discs to denote the various values, while the spandrels are filled with ornamental scrolls. In referring to the change of design the Stamp Collectors' Magazine, made the following interesting comments on stamp designs in general:

The substitution of an elegant design like this for the existing prosaic figure, is matter for congratulation. That a stamp may be ornamental as well as useful, is a proposition which most postal administrations now show their acquiescence in. Economic reasons are, we fear, too much in favor of armorial bearings as a device for stamps; but for our part, while acknowledging the excellence of the change from figures to arms, we must confess we should prefer to see the features of foreign sovereigns on a larger number of stamps than at present bear them. The objection to the employment of our own Queen's effigy on her colonial stamps, that the frequent repetition is monotonous and tiresome, would not hold good in respect to continental monarchs, over whose dominions the sun sets in the ordinary course of nature.

The original or matrix die was engraved on steel by Peter Reiss, a medal coiner employed at the Royal Mint. The secondary dies, on which the numerals of value were engraved, and the brass blocks which formed the printing plates were also struck at the Mint.

The plates were constructed by a process similar to that employed for the numeral series. Each plate consisted of sixty brass clichés arranged in two panes of thirty each (6 rows of 5) placed side by side. A space about the width of a stamp separated the panes. The design was embossed in slight relief on a colored ground the series being a particularly attractive one. The paper was similar to that used for the preceding issues, having silk threads embedded in its substance in such a manner that one thread was apportioned to each vertical row of stamps. It is probable that the use of this paper prevented the adoption of perforation which, at that period, was in general use.

There is a well-known minor variety of the 1kr in which the numeral in the upper right hand corner has a distinct colored stroke across the centre.

On January 1st 1868, a new postal arrangement was made with the North German Confederation, Wurtemberg, and Baden involving a postal rate of 7kr. Later this rate was extended to include the agreements with Denmark and Belgium and the natural outcome was the issue of a 7 kreuzer stamp. The issue of this new value was announced in a Government decree dated August 30th, 1868, and at the same time it was decreed that the color of the 6kr would be changed to brown so as to avoid confusion with the 7kr. These new varieties were placed on sale on October 1st and a month later the 9kr was withdrawn from use and the 6kr in the old color of blue was demonetised. The new 7kr value was similar in design, impression, and paper to the other denominations of the series.

All values of this issue are said to exist on laid paper and as such are recorded in Scott's catalogue. M. Moens, in a note in his catalogue observed that "the paper is found with fine lines resembling laid paper." It seems quite certain that the variety is not a true laid paper but is merely due to some slight imperfection in manufacture. The "laid" and "wove" varieties may be found on the same sheet and the former is generally considered of such minor importance as to be hardly worthy the attention of even an extreme specialist. It would, therefore, appear that the "laid" paper varieties are hardly worthy of catalogue rank.

Most of the stamps of this issue provide considerable variation in shade.

SPECIALIZED UNITED STATES.

By FRANK E. GOODWIN.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

Two Cents, Issue of 1875-79.

Unlike many of the other common stamps of the United States the 2 cent vermilion is free from interesting varieties. Usually the average collection will show two or perhaps four specimens, the ones printed on hard and on soft papers. Even with the most diligent and exhaustive research a well filled page is difficult to complete.

When we study this stamp closely we find that it is interesting, and is worthy of much consideration. While it is remarkably free from plate varieties, there are several shades and a few paper characteristics which commend it to the specialist as a rather fruitful field for research.

It was this same common stamp printed in vermilion which first started the writer to value the year date cancellation. An ardent collector friend one day showed me a copy of the stamp, on soft paper, which plainly bore a cancellation of October 12, 1878. This was about six months before the Continental Bank Note Company consolidated with the American Bank Note Company. Previous philatelic history had taught me that the latter concern had a monopoly on the soft paper printings, and that the soft paper test was an infallible sign of American Bank Note Company's print. The appearance of this indisputable year date, two and a half months before the close of 1878, upon a stamp of undeniably soft paper set me thinking.

The only solution I could arrive at was that a mistake must have been made by the postmaster in arranging the date in his stamp. A few weeks later another specimen appeared, dated Nov. 2, 1878, and issued from a postoffice not near the first. A third specimen, cancelled in Newark, N. J., October 14 or 15—last figure rather indistinct—but 1878 very plain, settled it in my mind that this stamp at least had been printed and issued by the Continental Bank Note Co., before its consolidation with the American.

A 3 cent, cancelled at Pepperell, Mass., in 1878; a 5 cent blue from New Haven, Conn., December 7, 1878, a 30 cent stamp from Washington, D. C., Nov. 28, 1878, and later several other specimens on soft paper, cancelled the same year, and with late months, convinced me that soft paper, for a little while at least had been used by the Continental people for stamp printing purposes. With these facts in mind I still maintain that some stamps of Continental print were printed in 1878 on soft paper.

The stamp first appeared in June 1875, when the color was changed from red brown to vermilion. Mr. Luff, in his most instructive work on the United States stamps, classifies the shades as follows: orange vermilion, vermilion, scarlet vermilion, deep scarlet vermilion.

The stamp was printed from plates No. 161 to 169, inclusive, and 234, 241, and 242, all of which had previously been used to print the 2 cent brown stamps. Plates 245, 246, 296 and 297 were made later for the vermilion stamps.

Known varieties are: Imperforate, ribbed and double paper.

The stamp is catalogued as being grilled by the Continental shaped embossing for legal purposes. It is not so mentioned in Mr. Luff's book, and there has been expressed doubts as to its genuineness in this form.

On Feb. 4, 1879, the American Bank Note Company took over the contract held by the Continental Bank Note Company, and issued the stamps on soft paper. At first the Continental plates were employed, Nos. 296 and 297 having been used. Later, new plates were made, numbered 338, 339, 391, 392, 393, 394, 412, and 413. The new company changed the imprint to the name of its own company.

No accurate records are available of the number of stamps in vermilion issued to the government by the American Bank Note Co. So, too, is history lacking in the separation of the vermilion and brown two cent stamps printed by the Continental Bank Note Company.

In 1875 a special printing was ordered from the Continental Bank Note Co., for the Centennial exposition. Why a special printing of this current stamp Precancelled U. S.

I beg to announce the purchase of a large stock of precancelled stamps, none of which were used since 1908. All are precancelled on the 1898 and 1902 issues, and the lot contains many of the early dated varieties. I believe this gives me the best stock of old precancels in the country.

My office is busy assorting this accumulation and it will take several weeks to get it into the shape desired.

Just now, I have a few approval lots ready for beginners. Requests will be filled in the order of receipt. Reference (two stamp dealers) is required from all unknown to me.

swer later." Too late; we have won the prize with Annam & Tonkin.

Borus Blurbb is late this month but it is worse late than never:

Madrigal May, the blooming month of fairest flowers,
Stamp joy dispenses in well-known showers.

Says a ruminating reader: "I wish that you would mention in your paper some time that you have over 7,000 subscribers." We shall give the suggestion due consideration.

Says a sage scribe: "Though there is a oneness, too, for me about stamps yet how manifold are their guises?" The professor evidently is no lightning calculator.

"I have been addicted to philately for many years and it intoxicates me, as of old," confides a reader who might find it to advantage to vote the prohibition ticket.

The plot thickens. Hear: "I have written a little play, full of humorous passes that could be used as a curtain-raiser at the convention of the American Philatelic Society convention. It is in one act and is called 'The Battle of the Stamps.' What do you think?" Write to General Coolidge.

Old Doc Dodder says: "A friend tells me that there was only one stamp out of twenty-eight on his want-list that a certain big dealer could supply. Yes, but a dealer has been known to send all the stamps on a want-list where the wanter kept only one."

"I did not know that there was so much fun collecting stamps until I got your paper. Will you accept a check for twenty-five dollars for a fifty-year subscription?" asks a man in whom our confidence is somewhat shaken by the fact that his letter came postage due.

TWO NEW ADVERTISING CONTRACTS.

We are pleased to announce the return to our columns of Frank S. Parmalee of Omaha, Neb., who has been taking a little vacation from dealing in stamps. He will be remembered by our older subscribers as formerly taking regular space in the WEEKLY and he will be with us from now on. Mr. Parmalee is an old-time member of the A. P. S. his number being 1804 and he is also a member of the C. P. S. His advertising will be found regularly in the place assigned him and we not only welcome his return but give him the best kind of an introduction to our readers.

The Central Stamp Exchange of Chicago, Ill., takes space this week and will be with us regularly in the future. The Exchange is endorsed by Mr. Severn of that city and this of itself is a sufficient guarantee that all obligations assumed will be faithfully carried out. We give our new advertiser a cordial welcome to our columns.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

DISCURSIVE NOTES.

By EDWIN B. HILL.

It is believed that a subject, sustained to infinity, sometime would be interesting to the many. Again, it is known a few paragraphs, without connecting thought, prove entertaining to the few. Under which banner I choose to enlist, the following paragraphs will prove. They differ in no way from the title, and are merely discursive notes about stamps and stamp-men, who, like the poor, both in purse and wit, are always with us. . . . And so I plunge in.

Any callow youth with a toy printing press can readily become editor and publisher of a paper masquerading under the cognomen "philatelic." The Tiffany library was full of these Volumes-One-Numbers-One-Two-Three-and out. The Lord Crawford library, which absorbed the Tiffany collection, added to the crime, for which no punishment can be met. The saving clause, "the few leading journals," gives one pause. Every last one of these trivial sheets which flutters its rags in the philatelic breeze considers itself a born leader, when the fact is they were all stillborn and never led anything unless it were a merry chase after advertising and subscriptions amongst the gullible.

If only there were concentration! A half dozen fairly excellent magazines could be evolved from the half hundred papers now vaunting editorial ambitions. But do not anticipate this millennium. It smacks too much of elimination; and egoism, divorced from a means of exploit, would soon cause the looked-for but ever-denied eclipse.

The warning, in a recent issue of the WEEKLY, against sending approval selections to boys in the lower part of New York city, recalls the statement of a dealer friend half a dozen years ago:

"I never send approval selections to New York city, unless to some one known to me. There is a gang of boys and young men there who are out to rob every dealer unwise enough to comply with their requests. These persons have access to philatelic publications and boys' papers and every dealer who advertises is chosen victim."

This is one instance wherein advertising does not pay!

There is one truthful dealer. He has informed me regretfully that he can't possibly fill a want list of United States stamps in the condition desired, for the very excellent reason that the stamps are not to be found outside collections. This dealer sent a few stamps to prove his contention, showing the grade of condition. These were the pick of his stock. Five years ago he would have been laughed to scorn. A year ago he would have been merely ignored. Today one buys—regretfully. If it is the best one can do,—well, one cannot wait forever.

Now this is exactly the condition of affairs all our dealers have been shouting at us from the housetops for the

POOLE'S GREAT BOOK

The Stamp Collector's Guide

Now Placed on Sale—Price 25c

We cannot be too extravagant in our praise of this book. It is all that its name implies and is suited both for the advanced collector as well as the beginner. We have no hesitancy in affirming that this book will be a faithful companion, frequently consulted and of permanent value. Its many chapters are marvels of information, a veritable thesaurus of philatelic information.

We must have the cooperation of every advertiser in the matter of the early receipt of advertising copy. It must reach this office not later than Saturday of each week, which will enable us to issue the WEEKLY on time as a general thing. Our large edition of 7200 copies is a severe tax upon the facilities of our mailing force and the early receipt of copy will aid us very materially in getting the paper into the post office on time.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Keep in Mind—August is convention time and then comes the great exhibition in New York. The convention of the American Philatelic Society is a fitting prelude to the event of the philatelic year. The convention and the exhibition will serve as proclamations to the public that philately flourishes. The progressive collector of stamps should identify himself with the two occasions, as it is through his support that the triumphs are made possible. This year of all years is the one in which the collector should make the connection between himself and the convention and the exhibition by attending them. Everything is being done by the committees having the work of preparation in charge at both attractions to invite success which can be assured only by a good attendance.

In Ward Thirteen—Said the Attendant at the Asylum for the Addled: "Honest, I have to laugh myself when I think of that latest arrival over there. It seems that once he bought a used stamp that turned out to have a tear in it. The thought of how he had overlooked the defect grew on him until the buying of a single used stamp became a surgical operation almost. As a buyer of stamps, his equipment included glass, tongs, millimeter scales, and what not but no complaint was made by his relatives until he bought an alcohol lamp to use with a kettle and distilled water. Whenever he considered buying a used stamp, he started the lamp and soon had the kettle singing as he wanted to boil the stamp to see if it had not been repaired. That was too much for his suffering folks. Now that he cannot buy stamps here, he has been persuaded to use his lamp and kettle to make tea for everybody. O, yes, I think that we can restore this specimen."

Still With Us—Count Lapp De Booz is speaking: "I was seeking an unknown poison of the greatest virulence in remote Ipiray to enrich toxicology, as I had reason to think that it was to be discovered there in a variety of bee found only in that obscure land. I was pursuing one of these bees when a band of natives captured me and dragged me before their ruler. When the Begull saw me, fierce lightnings darted from his eyes and he ordered that as the sun went down, I was to be the target for poisoned arrow practice. I was conducted to the open and hobbled to a stake. I had taken my little book of duplicates from my pocket for a last look at my treasures. As I gazed at the seven centesimos, Uruguay, 1901, with its picture of luscious fruit in profusion, I decided to use the stamp to attract the poison bees. Holding the specimen in my fingers, the bees soon alighted on it to be caught easily. Removing the terrible poison from the insects, I bided my time when I scattered the poison, which was now powdered, right and left, with instant and deadly effect; and it was then no trick to escape. I have become somewhat of a specialist in Uruguay stamps, in consequence."

Stamped—A collector who was "on the spot" tells of the assassination recently of President Arango of Salvador in a letter dated San Salvador, April 4th, 1913, that has been received: "I suppose that you have heard that the president of this republic has been assassinated. My wife and I were in the park when it happened. I never knew that I could run so fast. When the shots started to fly, we dropped behind a bench that I thought was of stone until a bullet went through it cleanly about six inches from my right ear. I thought that it was about time for bed and figuring that a straight line was the shortest distance between two points, I slid between the iron posts of the park fence and crossed the street to our hotel. My wife got through all right as she weighs about one hundred pounds but can you imagine me getting through a space of about ten inches? I did though and never lost a button. Things are a bit calmer now and I can proceed with my collection. Everything in the way of news that we get here is twisted out of shape by the censors, who do not allow anything to be published that they consider inimical to the country's welfare."

Something New—An idea whose merit by no means is wholly in its originality, we believe, is offered by Wilmot Corfield in the London Philatelist. He proposes that a sign or device be adopted that should be used only with the authority of the Postal Union, which includes practically all the countries of the world. As for the subject, Mr. Corfield suggests for favorable consideration, a monogram, the arms of Berne or, what in his opinion is an appropriate symbol, the "Svastika" of the east. Mr. Corfield has noticed that the corner ornaments of stamps often are meaningless and without character; and likewise the watermarks. Consequently, for the top corners of the stamps of the Postal Union countries he advocates a "Svastika" and for the lower corners, "Royal (or other cypher)." For the watermarks: alternately "Svastika" and cypher. Both devices would be hallmarks of authority, it is claimed whose reproduction would be illegal and they would serve their purpose as distinctively as the "broad arrow." In illustrating the stamps, their corners would have to be in a dead black so as to evade the proscription of the use of the symbol. We should like to see Mr. Corfield's suggestion given due attention by the Postal Union officers. The Svastika is the fylfot—the Greek cross with arms continued at right angles—or Swastika, as it is called usually in this country, that ancient symbol that has been used so widely that its precise import is not established.

It Poured—In another column there is a letter from Mr. Joseph Beifeld whose stamp labels commemorating the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, were offered to those readers of the WEEKLY who would write for them. Before publishing his generous proposal, we warned Mr. Beifeld that in all probability he would receive a hundred or more requests for the stamps. We cannot believe that he was prepared for the deluge of mail that resulted, as we were not; but nevertheless, Mr. Beifeld has kept his word to the letter and has sent out well over a thousand sets to our subscribers. We predict that the end is not yet but that for months to come, Mr. Beifeld will be pursued with requests from readers near and far for those stamps. We believe that we have impressed Mr. Beifeld with the fact that the vitality of philately to-day is unimpaired and that the good old days of the late 60's when Mr. Beifeld was a power in philately have been succeeded by even better ones. It may be added that Mr. Beifeld's offer to send a set of stamps to each applicant is still open and he has requested us to give him a list of the other stamp papers in this country as it is his intention to send their editors sets of the stamps and at the same time invite them to tell their readers that they, too, may have the labels for the asking.

FOR PARCEL POST CHANGES.

David J. Lewis Will Advocate Reduction in Present Rates.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Congressman David J. Lewis, of Maryland, the father of the parcel post, has devoted the last three months to an exhaustive study of the operation of the new postal system. He has figured out the cost of transportation of packages for each 100 miles and the cost of handling at terminals. As a result Mr. Lewis has completed a speech which he will deliver in the House, calling for radical changes in the present Parcel Post act. These changes can be made either by an act of Congress or by the Inter-State Commerce Commission, acting upon recommendation of the Postmaster-General.

He will advocate three important changes in the parcel-post act—a reduction of the present rates for local zones, the extension of local zones and an increase in the weight limit. Mr. Lewis' new rate card will cut the present rates down more than one-third and, used in connection with this plan to enlarge the zones, the whole scheme is framed to develop an easy commercial communication between cities and large towns and their urban territory.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

A STAMP COLLECTOR IN THE MAKING.

By ARTHUR IRWIN SMITH.

I still have the first stamp I ever saw; or, at least, the first one to which my attention was definitely attracted. It is a two-cent Columbian, and so far as I know it has no secret marks or missing lines. I was four years old when it came into my possession, and the fascination of its queer little picture and strangely perforated edges prompted me to keep it safely hidden away. My sister was saving canceled stamps for some invalid, taking part in one of those endless chain affairs which used to be so common, and when I saw her tear the oblong two-center from the corner of a letter she had just received from a friend I begged it for myself. That was my start as a collector.

Later I saved all the stamps I could get, regardless of condition or duplication. The bright colors and the pictures appealed to me. When I was seven or eight I had about forty varieties pasted neatly down in a shabby little medical memorandum book. I had never seen a foreign stamp. During the Spanish-American War I secured some proprietary revenues from the medicine bottles that were bought for family use, and their novelty revived my waning interest. I was now getting old enough to enjoy reading the Youth's Companion and other magazines for children, then in circulation, and it was not long until I began to see small advertisements announcing that "a hundred different foreign stamps from Ceylon, Egypt, etc., and a pocket album, will be mailed for ten cents." At eight, perhaps my greatest desire was to secure this little insignificant packet. It would have meant more to me then than would ten thousand rarities now.

My wish was never gratified. I was never given any pocket money, more than a few cents at a time, because my parents could not afford it. At Christmas I had a dollar or two, but what boy could think of stamps during that glorious season of noise and out-door sports? Time drifted on, my wishes were lulled, and at the age of twelve my desire to see and possess some foreign stamps was still unfulfilled.

In those days there came a turn of fortune for me. On Saturday evenings, and sometimes on Sundays I regret to say, I would go out for long tramps through the woods, or on long fishing excursions. A negro friend had taught me how and where to find ginseng and the sale of the roots I would find netted me quite a little sum of spending money. The dried ginseng roots could be sold for five dollars per pound. It was my first way of earning my own money, and I still find pleasure in going to some densely wooded hill and searching for the Chinese weed. With this money I bought books and subscribed for papers; but, although I still thought of forming a big collection of stamps later on, somehow I neglected the matter even when I had the necessary money. Desire long ungratified will become dull as the years go by, and perhaps die altogether unless new stimulation is received.

One day while out on a fishing trip I ran across an old Indian village site. When I went home that night my pockets were bulging with treasures and I carried a hatful in my hands. There were long red jasper spearheads, and broad white quartz arrowheads, and little sharp-pointed blue quartz drills, but of course I did not know the difference then. They were all "arrowheads" to me. In some manner a sample copy of a general collector's magazine had come to me a few weeks before, and I had noticed advertisements of Indian relics for sale among its pages. I think the rate was ten cents per line; at any rate I spent all of my remaining ginseng money on a simple little notice stating that I had relics for sale. A few days later I found another village site, and it was not long until I had a really valuable stock. I did not realize their true value and sold them for very small prices. Perhaps I was the first one to put relics from my section of the state on the collecting market; at any rate I found I could sell more than I could find. I was a magnate among boys of the neighborhood.

Some of the first money I received through the mails for Indian relics I spent with a reliable stamp firm for an Imperial album. It was a wonderful book to me. Some boy stamp dealer saw my little Indian relic advertisement and taking it for granted, I presume, that I must also necessarily be interested in philately, fired a batch of unsolicited approvals at me. I kept all the stamps and asked for more. That is the only unsolicited approval selection I have ever found justification for. There were two sheets cataloguing one dollar, valued at thirty-five cents net, and it seemed to me that I was getting the mines of Golconda for my paltry third of a dollar; but when I mounted the forty stamps in my little Imperial album they seemed to be all swallowed up. I began to crave more and more, and to look about for new ways of adding to my collection.

About that time I received a letter from Roy Farrell Greene, a philatelic poet and a prince of good fellows. He wrote me that he would be glad to exchange good foreign stamps for some Indian relics. I responded with a trial box of a dozen or so, and a liberal selection of stamps came in return. Our exchange relations continued for months, perhaps years, and it was through his kindness that I began to build up a nice little collection in the right way. I bought only sparingly from the approval lots sent me for cash sales, for there were many other things I needed. I bought and paid for a bicycle, a gun, and a violin, all with my own earnings, and at the end of the year my collection numbered only a little more than a thousand varieties. Still, it contained good stamps that you rarely find in the beginner's collection, thanks to Mr. Greene.

Another great wish of mine was to go to high school at the county seat town. It was finally arranged, but it required much economy and raking and scraping of money. I must sell my stamp collection! I made the deal by mail across a thousand miles of intervening mountains and plains, and the two dollars it brought paid two weeks tuition for me. I learned in those two weeks perhaps one-tenth of what I had learned in making the collection they represented. The boy who collects stamps is usually a good student, however. If he is trained in the right way he is usually a good man, cultured and refined. Stamp collecting is not a pastime of the lower classes. There is so much of sentiment and romance, and so much in it that appeals to the imagination, that coarser natures are rarely interested.

Afterwards I began another collection, and I have always been more or less interested in various lines of philately since that time, although not always an active collector. There are times when the hours drag slowly unless my stamps are at hand. When the day's work is over and my eyes have not yet become heavy-lidded, perhaps on account of the worries of every-day business or the cares of family life, there is nothing more soothing than a half hour spent among my album's leaves.

There is so much of history clinging to each tiny adhesive or original cover:

some that I know and some of which I can only imagine. The older stamps of our own country, especially those of the Confederate States on original covers, have an appeal to me that has never been equalled except, perhaps, by my little two dollar collection of a decade ago. There is more or less of wanderlust in all of us, and every tiny label I have from foreign lands whets that passion wonderfully. With me, every hobby is a passion, and philately and travel are among my leading hobbies. I have cards and envelopes that I mailed myself from Canada, Mexico and Cuba, and when I view the pictorial issues of Jamaica, New Zealand, and other far-away countries and colonies, I picture the time when I shall see those wonders, too, and live leisurely hours among them as I have done in the mountains of British Columbia and the tropical avenues of Historic Havana.

UNITED STATES.—Frank B. Eldridge lists the following new precancels:

Scranton, Pa.—Two lines (SCRANTON—PENNA) horizontal inscription in sans-serif capitals between two lines, 15 mm. apart, lines 1¼ mm. thick, type very similar to previous one, only letters are thicker. 1c, 1913, Parcel Post.

Kansas City, Mo.—Two lines (KANSAS CITY—MISSOURI) horizontal inscription in capitals with serifs, between two lines 12 mm. apart, and 1 mm. in thickness. 1c & 2c, 1913, Parcel Post, 1c, KANSAS CIT MISSOURI.

Scott's Circular has the following under the head of "Stamps on Parcel Post Mail":

"Judging from the packages of stamps we receive, neither collectors nor postmasters are aware of the fact that postage stamps cannot legally be sent by Parcel Post. They are printed matter, or, in other words, 'books', and must go at book rate. On the other hand, stamp albums, according to the Government's ruling, are not books, but merchandise, and therefore are mailable by Parcel Post. We wish we could think of a Latin or French quotation that would fit this situation. We simply can't."

AUSTRALIA.—Whitfield King & Co. show us two of the higher values of the Kangaroo set. Unlike the other values previously chronicled, these are printed in two colors. This only serves to still further accentuate the absurd figure of the Kangaroo, while the colors themselves would find a more suitable place on a circus poster.

Adhesives.
5sh yellow and gray.
10sh pink and gray.

BERMUDA.—Benedict Prieth sends us the 2d gray, as chronicled in No. 1168.

BRITISH HONDURAS.—We are indebted to Hermann Focke, Dr. Roy F. DeSart, and Whitfield King & Co., for specimens and information regarding the new British Honduras King George stamps. Whitfield King & Co. send specimens of the 1c, 2c, 10c, 25c, and 50c values, and Dr. DeSart the 1c and 2c values. Our Ipswich friends state that the Belize Postmaster writes that all the King Edward stamps have been withdrawn, and are to be destroyed at an early date. All the new stamps are in the type of the 5c, chronicled in No. 1161. There are also $1, $2 and $5 values, which we have not yet seen.

Adhesives.

1c gray green.
2c carmine.
10c lilac and olive green.
25c black on green.
50c lilac and blue on blue.

CANADA.—Sometime since we chronicled the current 1c and 2c stamps as issued in coils, and perforated horizontally 8. The New England Stamp Co. has shown us the same values, also in coils, but perforated 8 vertically.

FRENCH COLONIES.—The New England Stamp Co. has shown us specimens of the recent surcharges, having a strongly marked variety. Practically all of the 108 varieties recently chronicled have this variety. The variety has the surcharged figures 3/64 of an inch apart, where the normal space is only 1/32 of an inch.

GREAT BRITAIN.—According to a statement recently made in the House of Commons by the Postmaster General, a series of Postage Due stamps will be introduced at an early date.

In several newspapers the statement has been made that the new Royal Cipher watermark recently introduced for the stamps of Great Britain will be adopted by the Crown Agents for the Colonial stamps printed to their order in place of the multiple "Crown CA" watermark. Official contradiction of this rumour comes through a curious channel—the Schweizer Briefmarken-Zeitung which in its current issue publishes a letter from the Colonial Office:

I am directed by Mr. Secretary Harcourt . . . to inform you that there is no foundation for the report that the watermark now used in the new postage stamps of the United Kingdom will be substituted for the Crown agents' multiple in the case of new issues of stamps for the British Colonies. . . —HENRY LAMBERT, for the Under-Secretary of State.

GREECE.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the 1l value lithographed and overprinted "Lemnos." The 5l, 10l, and 25l have previously been seen lithographed.

MALTA.—The Colonial Office Journal states that the next issue of Malta 4d is to be in a dark green color. The St. Paul's shipwreck design will be used for the 10sh stamp only and the 2sh and 5sh values will be similar to the Nyassaland of 1908. The 4d stamp will be of the Grand Harbor design.

MONTENEGRO.—Whitfield King & Co. show us a used copy of the 5pa of the new set chronicled in No. 1167.

NEWFOUNDLAND.—Hermann Focke has shown us a new reply letter card from the Island, the stamp and inscription at the top being the same as the 1c card recently chronicled. The reply card is smaller and folded within the sending card. Both have the arms of the Colony on reverse in a fancy frame, with "Newfoundland" and "This card may be transmitted only within the Island" below. The return card has an additional three line inscription on the reverse, reading: "If anything be enclosed in this Letter Card it will be treated as an insufficiently paid letter, if not already prepaid at that rate. Notwithstanding the above limitation to the Island mails, the specimen before us passed through the foreign mail and was delivered in New York without the imposition of an unpaid letter tax."

NICARAGUA.—Dr. Roy F. Desart reports having received a cover from El Bluff, Nicaragua, franked with a revenue, Scott's type A 19, 25c yellow, hand stamped "B" in purple. Dr. Desart does not say whether the usual "Dpto. Zelaya" is omitted or not.

A SLOT MACHINE GRILL.

By A. P. S. No. 3633.

The ultra-specialist in United States stamps has further cause for rejoicing in a new variety of the current issue of the one cent and two cents, although this time Uncle Samuel is not the guilty one. It happens that the slot machines now in use by the Red Cross Society, and which grinds out the two stamps above mentioned, are provided with a mechanism by means of which the stamps are fed to the one who drops his nickel in the receiver, and in so doing the stamps are neatly "grilled" from one end of the strip to the other. The "grill" ranges from 2 mm. to 2½ mm. in width. The stamps mentioned are part-perforate 8½, and those the writer has extracted from the device bear the vertical perforation only. It may be said, for the benefit of those who may not have seen the "machines," that the one-cent stamps are delivered to the user in strips of four, while the two-centers are provided in pairs, in each case the purchaser being given a Red Cross label as "change" for his nickel.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from P. W. Fuller.

—We have failed to note the appearance of the New Yorker Briefmarken Zeitung, described as the only German stamp paper in the U. S. It is a very pretentious monthly magazine of sixteen pages and is published by Stephen Stern, 16 E. 23 St., N. Y. City. It bears the marks of enterprise and we have no doubt a sample copy will be sent to any of our readers who request the same. We add this paper to our exchange list with a good deal of pleasure.

—We have received from W. R. Ricketts the section of his "Philatelic Literature Bibliography Index" from British West Indies" to "Carter, H."

—It has been reported in the general press that a set of stamps is to be issued in connection with the International Dry Farming Congress to be held at Tulsa, Okla. next fall. We are in receipt of a letter from the Third Assistant Postmaster General saying that no steps have been taken in this direction.

—R. A. Haden of Soochow, China, calls our attention to the fact that there is a considerable variety in the surcharged Republic stamps, not only in the color of the ink used but in the irregularity of the placing of the overprint. He writes that in the same sheet, whatever the denomination, these varieties of surcharges can be found, especially so with the lower denominations, 1/2c, 1c, 2c, 3c and 4c

—We have received from Arthur W. Line, Pomona, Cal., an oddity consisting of a cover mailed in Sierra Madre, Cal., and bearing a 2c green Mexico stamp doing service as a 1c U. S. Freaks of this kind are occasionally sent us and they may be charged up to carelessness of P. O. officials.

—The New Orleans Stamp Club is meeting regularly every month and has decided to meet throughout the summer. At the May meeting in addition to the regular meeting a collation was served. The club is well advertised in the Picayune and we are indebted to E. Foster for a clipping.

—A. C. Roessler advises us as follows in relation to two British Colonial sets:—Bermuda 2d gray, ship type, was issued May 7, and the set now stands 1/2, 1, 2, 2 1/2, 6d and 1sh. Turks Island George set is now complete and consists of the following values:—1/2, 1, 2, 2 1/2, 3, 4, 6d, 1, 2, 3sh.

—Otto F. Moses, 7011 Hough Av., N. E., Cleveland, O., sends us a handsome pamphlet advertising the "Perry Memorial and Centennial Celebration". Any intending to attend the A. P. S. convention will no doubt be welcome to a copy.

A RARE CONFEDERATE.

There is probably no Confederate provisional adhesive stamp about which so little is known as the two Greenville issues, 5-cent and 10-cent, Scott Nos. 51 and 52. The writer had frequently said in the past that he had seen every Confederate stamp illustrated in the catalogue except a Greenville. A photograph or two of the 5-cent stamp has been finally located, but no trace of a 10-cent one could ever be found except the illustration in the catalogue, which has been there for several decades. It is possible that only one or perhaps two copies are known to exist. It seems certain that no prominent American collector has ever been able to obtain a specimen, as it is lacking in the three or four largest collections with which we are acquainted. Possibly when the stamp was first discovered it was sold in Europe, and at the same time included in the catalogue where it has remained for many years without another copy coming to light. It is also possible that the copy above illustrated is the only one ever known to exist, and that it was catalogued from this specimen.—Philatelic Gazette.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by HERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 231, Altadena, Calif.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

THE STAMPS OF THE GERMAN EMPIRE. Bavaria.

THE FIFTH ISSUE.

Although, as we have previously observed, Bavaria was the first of the German States to issue postage stamps it was the last to make use of any provision for their easy separation. This was apparently due to the fact that the silk-thread paper was considered such an excellent safeguard against counterfeiting that the authorities were loth to give it up. At last, however, the obvious convenience of perforation made its adoption indispensable and the silk-thread paper was replaced by a new watermarked paper. A Government Notice dated June 12th, 1870, stated that a new issue of postage stamps of the values of 1, 3, 6, 7, 12, and 18 kreuzer would be made and issued as soon as existing stocks of the old series were exhausted. It was stated that the paper would no longer contain the red silk threads and that the stamps would have the edges indented, but no mention was made of the watermark. The stamps were ready for issue on July 1st, and were placed on sale just as quickly as the corresponding values of the imperforate series were sold out. The same plates were used, and the same colors were retained, the differences being confined to the watermark and perforation. The watermark consisted of a number of crossed lines forming a diamond pattern generally known as "lozenges." There are two varieties of this watermark in one of which the diamonds or lozenges are 17 mm. wide, while in the other they are narrower and only measure 14 mm. in width. Gibbons catalogues both varieties in full applying much higher prices to the variety with narrower lozenges. Both, however, occurred on the same sheet so that the philatelic importance of the differences is not particularly great. The paper was intended to be horizontally laid but on the majority of specimens it is exceedingly difficult to find any trace of the laid lines, though they are generally quite plain on the margins of the sheets. This appears to be due to the fact that the intersecting lines forming the lattice watermark were so much heavier than the "laid" lines on the dandy roll that they received most of the pressure and, consequently, while they were deeply indented into the paper the horizontal lines of wire to which they were stitched made no impression at all. The paper is, therefore, best described as wove.

As the same plates were used as for the 1867-68 series it follows that the stamps were printed in sheets of sixty divided into two panes of thirty each.

The perforating machine was so constructed that an entire pane of thirty stamps was perforated at one operation, the gauge being 11½.

In 1872 certain revisions were made in the postal tariff a Post-office Notice dated November 30th, stating that for the future the rate on single letters to France, Great Britain, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Constantinople, and the United States via Bremen or Hamburg, would be 9 kreuzer; and that the rate to Italy, Russia, Sweden, Turkey, Alexandria, and the United States via Cologne, would be 10 kreuzer. As these rates could not be made up by existing values except by the use of two stamps it was announced that labels of these denominations would be issued. At the same time it was stated that owing to the limited use for the 12 kreuzer stamp no more of this value would be printed. On December 31st the provisions of this Notice came into effect the 12kr being withdrawn and the new 9 and 10 kreuzer stamps being placed on sale. Of these the 9kr was printed in pale brown and the 10kr in yellow. The plates were of similar size to those of the other denominations and the paper and perforation were also similar.

Late in 1876 Bavaria, in common with many of the other German States, decided to make a clean sweep of its obsolete postage stamps, envelopes, etc. According to an article in the Monthly Journal the lot was placed on sale in October, 1876, and in addition to a list of the quantities of the different varieties a lengthy note was added of which the following is a summary:

All these articles, which were withdrawn from use on January 1st, 1876, have been stamped with an obliteration dated June 30th of that year; no reprints will be made; offers may be submitted for the whole stock, for the whole of one or more kinds, or for fixed quantities of different kinds separately. Offers must be sent in by January 1st, 1867, after which the Government will announce its decision. Preference will be given to the largest offers.

No account will be taken of tenders submitted by firms or individuals who have no domicile in Germany or Austria-Hungary, unless they are vouched for by some firm domiciled in Bavaria, and of sufficiently high standing.

The entire lot was purchased by Mr. G. Zedmeier, of Nuremberg, though the price paid was not made public. The lot included the following remainders of the issue we are now discussing:—

THE SIXTH ISSUE.

On August 5th, 1874, a new stamp of 1 mark was issued, the value being expressed in Imperial currency. This denomination was specially intended for the prepayment of the rate on large parcels and packages within the Union of the German States. The die was engraved on steel by Herr P. Reiss, medal coiner to the mint, and the stamps were printed at the Mint of Munich. The design shows the Royal Arms, with supporters, surmounted by a crown and resting on a scroll pattern base. Above the crown is "BAYERN" in a curve, and under the base "MARK" in large capitals, the whole being embossed on a ground of solid color. In each of the four corners the value is expressed by a large "1" embossed in white on a disc of horizontal lines.

The plate was constructed in the same way as those for the other values but consisted of fifty stamps arranged in five horizontal rows of ten. The same watermarked paper was used but as the stamps were of extra large size (measuring 25 mm. by 21 mm.) the impression fell very irregularly over the watermark, the paper, of course, being originally intended for stamps of much smaller size.

The stamp was at first issued imperforate as the only perforating machine available was not adapted for use on

THE TIBET ISSUE.

We are indebted to A. R. Lamb, Howrah, India for information in connection with the set of Tibetan stamps issued by the Dalai Lama. The native characters common to all the stamps are described by Mr. Lamb as follows:—

"Phoi Shung"—Tibetan Government.
"Yig"—stamp!

Then comes the value of each stamp, which reads:—

"Then tam-cheg"—1 rupee (Tibetan)=6a.
"Then sho-gang"—two-thirds rupee=4a.
"Then che-gye"—one-half rupee=3a.
"Then kan-sum"—one-third rupee=2a.
"Then Kha-gang"—one-sixth rupee=1a.

Mr. Lamb goes on to say:—"Though these stamps have been, or are supposed to be, issued for postage purposes, they are only available from the Lhasa Post Office, and from no other place in Tibet as yet. The present issue is not likely to have a very long stay as I was told that the Dalai Lama had not approved of them when he was staying at Kalimpong."

A most interesting feature of this issue is the large postmark used by the Lhasa Post Office. We should be very glad to reproduce the same in the WEEKLY were it not for the fact that it is so indistinct that it would be impossible to procure a good cut.

GREAT GOLCONDA

Inimitable packet of 1000 Central and South American postage stamps the "Ne Plus Ultra" of packets, absolutely beyond competition, contains 700 varieties of stamps, the greater portion of which are legitimately postally cancelled, and balance are in mint condition; and are from, Guatemala, Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua and Costa Rica in Central America, and from Chile, Peru, Venezuela, Ecuador, Bolivia, Uruguay, Paraguay, and Portuguese India in South America, the catalogue values ranging from $1.25 down to the lower values, per stamp.

The varieties cover a large selection of Salvador, Nicaragua, Paraguay and other surcharged stamps, as well as Commemorative and Jubilee issues, not omitting the later issues of the named countries to some extent.

The balance of 300 stamps, are approximately of same grades and varieties as make up the first 700, and are a first class mixture.

The 1000 packet will catalogue over $75, according to Scott's 1913, and guaranteed to exceed that figure. Condition is very good, stamps having been carefully gone over, and all damage and imperfections detected, have been eliminated.

To the new collector the opportunity presents itself, whereby for a nominal sum, he at once comes into possession of a ready-made nucleus leading to the formation of a larger collection. To the more advanced collector, the certainty of securing many surcharges and new issues, at an extremely insignificant price, of stamps hard to get, and to the dealer, the packet offers a remarkably fine profit on his investment.

It may interest prospective buyers to have a few of the stamps in the packet described; these have been taken at random from the 700 varieties and represent high, and lower values.

CHAPTER XL.

5 Cents, Issue of 1875-1882.

The treaty of Berne, in 1875, by whose terms the rate of International postage was made five cents, created a requirement for a stamp of the denomination of five cents. Designs were hurriedly submitted, as hastily approved, and the order to make a die and plates for the new stamp was given to the Continental Bank Note Company. The stamp was issued on or about June 21, 1875. This design, a full faced portrait of "Zach" Taylor, had previously been used upon a tobacco stamp of the denomination of six cents. It is far from being an artistic piece of work, and while it is a bit handsomer than the 2 cent stamp of 1862, with Jackson's face portrayed, yet it is considered one of the ugliest productions of the generally handsome series of stamps issued by this government.

While this stamp has never been considered very prolific in varieties, yet there are sufficient differences to make it an interesting stamp for the average specialist. To the very studious it possesses quite a wide field, in that there are various engravers' marks which indicate operations of the stamp makers, not apparent upon the face of the stamps to the casual examiner.

Two plates were made at first, being numbered 243 and 244. The demand for this denomination made it necessary to increase the printing output, and plates 247 and 248 were soon after made. Later plate number 284 was constructed, and the last plate made by the Continental Bank Note Company was number 306.

Mr. Luff gives as shades: blue, dark blue, greenish blue and deep greenish blue. I have seen several copies in a shade darker than dark blue, which might be called a blackish blue.

This stamp is catalogued by Scott as having been grided with the Continental grille, for legal purposes. Mr. Luff, in his work on the stamps of the United States, makes no mention of this. I have seen a copy which was embossed, and appeared to be regular, but should hesitate to include it as grided without further evidence.

Paper varieties are: vertical ribbed, horizontal ribbed, double paper.

THE ISLAND OF SAMOS STAMPS.

By G. W. SULMAN.

I have just returned from an extended trip to the far East and found awaiting me a large number of stamp journals. After perusing these carefully, I was struck with the lack of knowledge displayed regarding the issues of the Greeks for the island of Samos. I submit the following facts regarding three issues which were current during my visit to the island in March. First there was an issue to commemorate the capture of the island from Turkey which took place in November 1912. Turkey having held the island from the Greeks since August 1824. This issue was a very small one and all the stamps were initialed J. S. by

The foregoing list of 80 stamps, catalogue a total of $9.85, equivalent to $123 per 1,000; the guarantee of $75 per 1000, is therefore a safe one, and may be relied on.

Price $10 per packet, postpaid

Orders for packets, together with money orders or checks, should be addressed to the governor of the island. They were as follows:

1 drachma, brown	10 drachma, green
2 " blue	20 " red
5 " olive

These have all the same design, oblong shape, are dated August 1824—November 1912 and show two buildings side by side. One looks like a country school house and the other like a ruined fortress. As this issue consisted of high values only, it was necessary to have stamps of lower denomination so a series was placed in use with the head of Hermes of the following values:

1 lepta, grey	25 lepta, blue
5 " green	50 " brown
10 " red

These were only in use a short time when they appeared with the surcharge "Hellas" as follows:

1 lepta, grey	25 lepta, blue
5 " green	50 " brown
10 " red	1 drachma, orange

These are all bonafide issues and were on sale at the Post Office in Vathy, the capital, when I was there.

EDITORIAL.

A Fat Year—A special number of the WEEKLY in May is testimony to the remarkable activity of philately this season that is enduring beyond the usual term. Ordinarily, there is a slackening of zeal in philatelic circles with the advent of warm weather and this condition is accepted as a natural one. We well know that the present season is a prosperous one and we are hopeful now that it has been under way so strongly that the impetus will carry philately over the drier months, with but slightly diminished volume. While the season would have given a glowing account of itself even though it did not have the adventitious aid of the New York Exhibition, yet the influence of the forthcoming exhibition is now manifest at a time when the effects of a waning season would be shown, if the rule held good this year.

Auspicious—As the time for the New York Exhibition becomes near, the thorough work of the officers having the preparations in charge becomes the more evident. The exhibition has been brought to the attention of collectors abroad in a way that has secured the interest and cooperation of many of them. It is safe to say that there will be a sufficient number of exhibits from foreign countries to loan a piquancy, as it may be regarded, to the exhibits. It is learned that the applications for space by American exhibitors is meeting all expectations and it is not premature to assure all who have followed the progress of the Exhibition that the occasion will be the most impressive and significant in the annals of philately in America. The display will merit a large attendance and it is pleasing to hear that a number of the great European collectors intend to be present.

A Bad Deal—Mr. Cedric Bonnell of Nottingham, England, has favored us with a clipping from the Nottingham Evening News of May 12th which gives particulars of a stupendous fraud that has been perpetrated at the expense of a philatelist of Nottingham. Elsewhere in our columns, the sordid tale is told, and using the case as a text, one may enlarge upon the dangers of "get-rich-quick" philately. Those whose standing is open to question find it necessary to lure attention by offers of enticing kind but the buyer in such instances is no match for the person who has been schooled in trickery and whose maladroitness enterprise is so many-sided that it confuses the unsuspicious mind. Stamps may be said to have almost a staple value and the great bargain should be viewed from all angles before it is acquired from an "outsider." Of course, there are instances when philatelic knowledge is power and the collector may gain largely through it but the chances are as good in the legitimate field of philately as among its camp followers. The collector who deals with the philatelist of established reputation has a sort of guarantee of protection against the results of any misunderstanding or mischance. It is worth while to pay a premium for insurance of this sort, if necessary.

From Washington—Among the departmental orders issued from Washington recently are several of some interest to philatelists. Under date of May 16th, sealed proposals are invited up to June 10th, 1913, "for supplying 5,000,000 postal savings certificates of deposit during the fiscal years ending June 30, 1914, to be printed from engraved intaglio plates or by lithographic or typographic processes." Attention is called again to short-paid letters for foreign countries and the complaints arising from the collecting double the amount of deficiency in postage show that the rule governing postage due on foreign letters is not understood generally. The impression is held by many persons that letters mailed in the United States for delivery in France, not to mention other foreign countries, are subject only to postage of two cents, whereas the postal union rate is applicable to them. The postmaster general has directed an officer "to establish a system to provide for the periodical test of the accuracy of all scales used in the postal service. Postmasters and all postal employees will be governed accordingly."

New Stamp Books—On May 21st, according to a special despatch in the newspapers, designs for two new stamp booklets were approved by the department. One of the new books will contain ninety-six stamps of the one cent denomination while the second will have twenty-four of the one cent and twenty-four of the two cent. The book holding both the one and two cent stamps will be a popular one, we predict, and will be appreciated for its convenience by travelers in particular, one of whom is said to have suggested the idea to the authorities. The stamp books as we know are sold for one cent over the face value of their stamps but this small advance yielded a profit of $180,000 to the government in a year.

Provisional Proprietary Stamps—Mr. Willis D. King, Nashua, New Hampshire, asks about a four cent red, 1875-81 issue, medicine, surcharged "Pond's Apr. 1883 Extract." There is a class of surcharged proprietary stamps that are regarded by specialists as provisionals. In the stricter sense, the only surcharged stamps that meet the requirements are those of firms that ordered special dies and previously to the receipt of the stamps printed from them, used the ordinary revenue stamps with their initials or names type-printed on the stamps; or those firms that used the general issue, duly surcharged, in the absence of needed supplies of the distinctive stamps from Washington. However, the stamps that "mention the business on their face" usually are collected with the stamps such as described. We find Mr. King's stamp listed in an old catalog of U. S. revenue stamps under "Surcharged Proprietary Stamps."

Poor Prophet—A question asked frequently by newer collectors is one concerning the probability of great price advances in certain stamps but it is a wise philatelist who refrains from predicting "futures." The more competent it seems that a person is to judge prospects of the kind, the more squarely the resisting prophet dodges the issue. There is danger to reputation in these estimates and as confirming this remark, we refer to the following prediction by a writer in 1893 who, at least, was a close student of United States stamps: "The U. S. 90-cent orange, 1890, is one of the many stamps that will show a marked increase in the next catalogue. . . . Although priced at but ten cents in Scott's fifty-third edition, it is worth fifty cents easily, and will probably advance to that price in the fifty-fourth edition." The stamp went up in price and five years later had reached sixty-five cents; then the quotation fell to fifty cents where it was maintained for over ten years and now, twenty years after, the catalogue price is sixty cents." This little instance is casually recalled merely to indicate the twists and the turns that some of the stamp values experience.

73-CENT STAMP BOOK.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—A design for a new stamp book with twenty-four one-cent and twenty-four two-cent stamps, selling for seventy-three cents, has been approved.

OUR REVIEW.

That busy writer, D. B. Armstrong, the excellence of whose work keeps paces with his industry, has written in collaboration with R. E. R. Dalwigk, a popular guide to stamp collecting, entitled, "Stamps for Beginners." The facile pen of Mr. Armstrong has done effective service for philately in England and this latest product while making no pretensions will prove of telling advantage in a practical way to philately. The pamphlet of seventy-five pages with appropriate cover in red, whose design is adapted from the six pence George stamp is an elementary treatise and the text is in a style to entertain the casual reader and establish a bond of interest in stamp collecting. If the reader of the little book is a "prospect" of any promise, he will be swayed to philately in many instances by the perusal of the guide. We are pleased to hear that the pamphlet has been well received in England and that it is meeting with a ready sale in the railway book-stalls. Its circulation should be pushed in all avenues through which the public is reached.

Publishers: The Philatelic Press and the Aldine Publishing Co., Ltd., Chancery Lane, E. C., London, England. Price six pence.

SUMMER PURCHASE

We have secured a dealer's stock of approximately 100,000 stamps, all of the better grade, cataloging between 5c and $6.00 each. They were not arranged in any kind of order, most of them being mounted in small approval books or loose. We are sorting this lot for stamps needed in our stock envelopes. The majority of the stamps, however, will be mounted into our special 50% discount selections. This will take about two months to finish. As fast as the books are mounted they will be put in circulation.

We do not know what we are going to find in the lot, but from those we have seen, we can safely promise to show the finest assortment of stamps at 50% discount that we have ever offered. We cannot promise to send stamps of any one country or group of countries, but if you are a general collector, do not fail to ask us for some of these selections. Write us today to send the books as soon as ready and thus secure first choice.

U. S. POSTMARKS AND CANCELLATIONS

By CARROLL CHASE, M. D.

Recently there has been evidence of widespread interest in the postmarks and cancellations of this country. The subject is very broad and little has been done towards its systematic study. I, lately, have been trying to arrange some of the accumulation that I have on hand by putting this material into general sub-divisions.

The following classification is submitted to stamp collectors as a working basis for the study of this interesting branch of philately. It should be stated that these classes often necessarily overlap. Experience will probably show that this list is incomplete and that it can be much improved.

1. Sending Postmarks. Show name of city or town from which mail matter was sent. May also show year; year and month; year, month and day; or year, month, day, and hour. May also show Postoffice—station or sub-station—indicated by number, letter or name. May be black or colored. Shapes of postmarks are numerous—round, straight, octagonal, etc.

2. Receiving and In Transit Postmarks. Frequently the same as sending postmarks. Often show the word "Received" or its abbreviation in the postmark. May show date or station, be black or colored, and of various shapes.

3. Obliteration Marks. Those used actually to cancel the stamps. May be the sending postmark or one of the hand stamps (mentioned later) made for a special purpose. Those most frequently used were made for the purpose, and are either separate or on the same handstamp as the sending postmark. They come in many colors and innumerable shapes even taking the form of an animal as the famous (or notorious) Port Townsend, Wash. "kicking mule."

4. Forwarding and Missent. Various shapes and colors.

5. Registration or Insured Postmarks indicating that the cover has been registered or insured.

6. Railroad Postmarks usually show the name of the railroad or railroad postoffice (R. P. O.) on which the cancellation was used. May be only the word "WAY" or "STEAM" etc.

7. Steamship and Steamboat Postmarks. May show "Steamship" or "Steamboat" alone or in another postmark; the name of the ship or boat; or the name or number of the mail route.

8. Collect or Due or Postage Due. May show one of these words only or may also show the amount.

9. Paid or Numeral Postmarks. May be the word alone, the word and the amount, the amount alone, or any of these in a sending or receiving postmark or obliteration.

10. Carrier Postmarks to indicate the collection or delivery of the cover by carrier. May or may not show the word "carrier" or "delivery."

11. Local Post Postmarks.

12. Official or Free. May be either word alone, or either in a sending postmark or in an obliteration mark.

13. Dead Letter or Advertised.

14. Written Postmarks. May be in pen or pencil, black or colored.

15. Advertising or Exhibition Postmarks usually in a sending postmark.

16. Aviation Postmarks including balloon, aeroplane and carrier pigeon posts.

17. Foreign Offices Permanent, temporary or military.

18. Express Cancellations. Rare on government adhesive stamps, common on envelope stamps.

19. Pre-cancellations date back to the 1851 issue. Applied before the stamp was placed on the cover.

20. Machine Cancellations. First used in Boston, Mass., in the eighties or nineties (?).

21. Returned for Stamp or Better Address or Held for Postage, etc.

22. Miscellaneous. All not included in first twenty-one classes, such as, "Special Delivery," "Supplementary mail," "Not mailable," "Stamp lost," "Opened by mistake," "Too late for regular mail," Thumbprint obliterations acid or alkali obliteration (such as used on Blood's Local stamps), etc., etc.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—We have added several new members to the Booster Club of late. Three have just been placed on the membership roll, Wm. Foxton, Buffalo, N. Y., E. G. Reed, Hartford, Ct., and J. E. Summers, Jr., Taunton, Mass., by sending in new yearly subscriptions.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from V. A. Hoffmann, (2), Geo. C. Webber (2), M. A. Lesser and Geo. W. Schaefer (2), A. R. Butler, I. W. Risdon, Chas. R. Morris, W. L. McAtee, A. W. Blackman.

—Harry T. Willcox advises us that two new stamp books are to be issued, one to contain ninety-six 1c stamps and the other twenty-four 1c and twenty-four 2c.

—The address of Louis P. Wulff, formerly of Oxford, Miss., and Memphis, Tenn., is wanted by Iole Dione of Grandview, Wash., who is unable to locate him at either of the above addresses.

—We shall publish next week some of the prices realized at the 55th auction sale of the Philadelphia Stamp Co. held recently.

—We find that we have failed to notice the appearance of the Boston Philatelic News-Letter, No. 2 having just appeared. The News-Letter is published from Box 2678, Boston, Mass., and the subscription price is 35c per year. We give this information at the risk of suffering from the rivalry of this publication. The paper is a little different from the customary second number and its contents show the hand of experience. A stamp will no doubt bring a sample copy.

—The 5c blue Panama-Pacific has been precanceled in two lines "Tacoma, Wash." Paul J. Miller, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., informs us of this fact.

—M. A. Lesser, 302 Broadway, N. Y. City, has decided to dispose of his large general collection. His United States, British West Indies and old German States are particularly strong. The offer is open to dealer or collector.

And of which its subscribers, past and present, write as follows:—

"I have always felt that you could do what other dealers do, and do it better. I wish your New Issue Service every success."

"I am greatly pleased by your quick and efficient service."

"I should like to thank you for your unfailing courtesy and attention during the several years I have been receiving New Issues through you, and it will always be a pleasure to look back on the time, and it may be that some time in the future I may again be a client."

IS ONE of which you might profitably write for further details.

All Particulars Post Free Upon Application.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding pre-cancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDREDGE, Attleboro, Mass. Specimens must accompany chronicle, with self-addressed stamped envelope for return of the same. Please note these rules.

BRITISH SOLOMON ISLANDS.—The Australian Philatelist says that owing to an unexpected shortage of the ½d and 1d values, fresh supplies of the canoe type were ordered, pending the arrival of the Georgian series. These were received on a much thinner paper than the ordinary issue.

CHINA.—The Philatelic Journal of India says that the two commemorative sets were engraved and printed at Peking, the Chinese Government having installed at the capital a Bureau of Engraving and Printing under the direction of three Americans.

DENMARK.—A new issue of post cards has been shown us by Mr. Schachne, the word "Brevkort" measuring 4x3½ mm. The cards are with and without watermark.

Post Cards.

- 3 ore gray on white; no watermark.
- 5 ore green on white; no watermark.
- 3 ore gray on white; watermarked.
- 5 ore green on white; watermarked.

FALKLAND ISLANDS.—Maury's Collectionneur chronicles the following new stationery, with portrait of King George.

Envelope.

1d red.

Post Card.

1d red on blue.

HUNGARY.—The Journal des Philatelists states the new stamps of Hungary, of which the designs were approved two years ago, will appear immediately. These stamps will not be printed at Vienna, as one would suppose, but at Budapest, by the Royal Bureau of Printing, from which came the stamps of the issue of 1872. The accepted designs were announced and described in the WEEKLY two years ago. The new series will also include post cards of 5f and 10f, letter cards of 6f and 10f, and reply post cards of 5f. The pneumatic postal service being ready for operation in Budapest, there will be created for use in connection therewith special envelopes, post cards, and letter cards.

An innovation is shown us by Mr. Schachne in the latest post card for this country, an ornamental frame adding greatly to the appearance of the new 5 filler card.

Post Card.

5f light green on buff, with border.

INDIA.—The London Philatelist reports having seen three more of the rupee values of the Georgian series. They are of large size and the same design as the high values previously chronicled.

Adhesives.

- 2r yellow brown and carmine.
- 16r pink and green.
- 15r pale olive and blue.

INHAMBANE.—Scott's Circular says that Inhambane as a Portuguese colony is likely shortly to give way to Quilmaine, the name of a larger territory which includes the Inhambane district.

A $1200 POSITION OPEN.

The Government Stamp Collection to be Re-arranged.

The collection of foreign and domestic postage stamps owned by the government, a great part of which has been in storage for years, is to be overhauled, arranged as to countries and issues, mounted and placed on exhibition in the new National Museum. The collection is said to be one of the most complete in existence, although, it is stated, the exact number of stamps is not known. The collection embraces sets of every kind and denomination of postage stamps ever issued by this government, besides practically complete sets of stamps issued by every government that uses postage stamps.

The work of classifying, sorting and mounting the stamps will be done by a philatelist to be selected from the successful candidates in a competitive civil service examination to be held June 23. Candidates for the examination, it is announced, may be men or women, must be more than twenty-one years old, and must have had practical experience as a postage stamp dealer and philatelist. The position will pay $1,200 a year, and it is believed the work can be completed within one year.

U. S. CIVIL-SERVICE EXAMINATIONS.

A Position Awaiting Some Philatelist In Connection with the Government Collections.

(Supplementary Clipping Published Elsewhere.)

The United States Civil Service Commission announces an open competitive examination for philatelist, for both men and women. From the register of eligibles resulting from this examination certification will be made to fill a vacancy in this position in the National Museum, Washington, D. C., at a salary of $1,200 a year, and vacancies as they may occur in positions requiring similar qualifications, unless it is found to be in the interest of the service to fill any vacancy by reinstatement, transfer, or promotion.

The duties of this position will consist of overhauling and arranging, according to countries and issues, the collection of stamps now in storage in the Museum, and in mounting this collection for exhibition. The person appointed as a result of this examination will be employed approximately a year, and possibly for a longer period.

Competitors will not be required to appear at any place for examination, but will be rated upon statements of their qualifications contained in the application and examination form and corroborative evidence as to their qualifications, integrity, and reliability. Practical experience as a postage-stamp dealer, is a prerequisite for consideration for this position and applicants should be careful to name only persons who are able and willing to vouch for the applicant's honesty and reliability.

Age, 21 years or over on the date of the examination.

Under an act of Congress applicants for this examination must have been actually domiciled in the State or Territory in which they reside for at least one year previous to the date of the examination.

This examination is open to all persons who are citizens of or owe allegiance to the United States and who meet the requirements.
